'Store Bandit' Proves to Be Innocent Man

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — For the past six months James Oscar Pike, 30, has been in Chino prison, serving a five-year term for armed robbery. The Riverside County district attorney said Friday that Pike is innocent and Superior Court will be asked to free him immediately.

Three witnesses identified Pike in court as one of the men in ski masks who held up a Palm Springs supermarket, taking $3,000. Pike, a Palm Springs bartender, protested his innocence.

Dist. Atty. Byron G. Morton said two other men have confessed the holdup and lie detector tests indicate they are telling the truth.

Russians Angry as Two U.S. Destroyers Near Black Sea

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP) — Two American destroyers neared the Black Sea Saturday on a U.S. naval operation that angered the Soviet Union and caused signs of uneasiness in America's Atlantic Alliance partner, Turkey.

Turkish sources said the USS Dyess and USS Turner from the Mediterranean 6th Fleet would transit the Dardanelles and the Bosporus to the Black Sea Sunday.

It will be the first appearance in sixth months of American warships in the sea which the Soviet Union claims makes Russia a Mediterranean power.

Though the American Navy has termed the projected five-day cruise of the two destroyers in the Black Sea a routine operation, it has brought charges of provocation from the Soviet Communist party newspaper Pravda along with a claim that one of the ships is carrying nuclear weapons.

Officially, Turkey, which shares the Black Sea basin with the Soviet Union and controls the passage of foreign warships through the Dardanelles and the Bosporu under the Montreux convention, maintained a reserved legalistic attitude.

The Foreign Ministry asserted that it is as legal for the U.S. ships to pass through the straits to the Black Sea as it is for Soviet navy ships to pass to the Mediterranean.

"It is not up to us to comment or interpret the Montreux convention, we just apply it," said Foreign Minister Ihsan Sabri Caglayangil in Ankara.

Unofficially, however, there were unmistakable indications that many Turks were worried about being caught in the middle of a power play between their giant NATO partner and their giant seashore neighbor.

Most of the Turkish press reported in a careful "no comment" tone the Soviet objections to the U.S. ships and the official Turkish and American reaction.

Nixon Plans to Retain Many Career Officials

WASHINGTON (AP) — The incoming Nixon administration plans to replace most government policymakers but retain career officials in many executive posts, one of its chief talent scouts said Saturday.

Harry Flemming, 28-year-old son of former Secretary of Welfare Arthur Flemming, said his Staff Search and Selection Program hopes to fill at least 500 of the 1,000-1,500 sub-Cabinet posts by Jan. 20.

Flemming's office here is dealing with offices below agency chiefs and department secretaries, undersecretaries and assistant secretaries, which are being handled by Nixon's staff in New York.

Controversy on Zoning Receives Illumination

Is zoning moral? Do individuals have the right to determine how their neighbor's property will be used? Can members of the zoning board remain objective and fair?

For years, zoning has been the center of controversy and debate. The above questions have been argued back and forth and inside out but zoning is still with us.

John J. Roberts, a reporter for The Emporia Gazette in Kansas, recently took a revealing look at the zoning problem in that community of 20,000.

The result, "Zoning: A Case Study", has been printed in the December issue of The Freeman magazine.

Because of recent annexations to the city, some of which result in different zoning regulations for the newly acquired areas, the Gazette Telegraph is reprinting the article. It will be found today on page 3-C.

ORBITING OBSERVATORY — Artist's rendition shows NASA's Orbiting Astronomical Observatory as it appears in orbit after being successfully launched by an Atlas-Centaur rocket at Cape Kennedy, Fla. Four of 11 telescopes aboard the stargazing craft look out the four round holes distributed around center well as shown facing viewer. Seven other telescopes peer out opposite side. Huge Stargazer Satellite Is Launched Into Orbit by U.S.

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — A huge stargazer satellite swept into orbit Saturday and elated project officials predicted it would be instrumental in unlocking celestial secrets—incluidng clues to the origin of the universe.

"Everything is working perfectly," a space agency spokesman said after the spacecraft oriented its two huge wing-like solar panels toward the sun on its fourth orbit around earth.

"We have no problems at all," chimed John Umstettor, spacecraft test and operations manager for Grumman Aircraft Engineering Corp., prime contractor for the satellite.

Packing 11 telescopes to be switched on Wednesday, the $75 million craft—named OAO 2 for the second Orbiting Astronomical Observatory—blasted away from Cape Kennedy atop a powerful Atlas-Centura rocket. It rode into a near perfect orbit ranging from 479 to 485 miles high.

The two-ton satellite is the heaviest and most complex scientific spacecraft ever launched by the United States. It is designed to provide astron-

Enemy Steps Up Action; Blast Blows Up Bridge

SAIGON (AP) — Enemy sappers in a daring raid blew up a bridge on the U.S. Marines' supply lifeline near the demilitarized zone but engineers quickly built a bypass and truck convoys Saturday were rolling through on schedule.

The enemy blew up the single span bridge on Highway 9 Friday night, four miles west of the Marines huge supply base at Dong Ha and 14 miles south of the DMZ.

The destruction caused only a brief halt in the flow of supplies to the key Vandergrift Combat Base 45 miles inland.

The combat base is the staging area for two Marine regiments and other Leatherneck units—about 5,000 men—operating in the northwestern corner of South Vietnam to check on any renewed invasion by North Vietnamese troops.

Ninety per cent of the supplies going into Vandergrift move over Highway 9 by truck convoy and then are shuttled to field units by helicopter.

Any major disruption in the "VC Express" convoys— which marines explain may stand for either Vandergrift Combat Express or Viet Cong Express—would put a severe strain on the 3rd Marine Dvision's logistics system along the DMZ.

No allied casualties were reported in the destruction of the bridge, but the blast was another indication of increased enemy activity along the DMZ.

The U.S. command has announced 128 incidents in the DMZ serious enough to cause retaliatory fire from American planes, warships and artillery since the bombing halt of North Vietnam Nov. 1. There were three Friday. President Johnson ordered the bombing halt with understanding that North Vietnam would clear its troops from the DMZ and stop indiscrimate shelling of cities.

With ground action light, South Vietnam's delegation left Saturday for Paris peace talks, just a month after four-party negotiations originally were expected to begin.

There was a six-member delegation headed by Ambassador Pham Dang Lam and Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky, a stout anti-Communist, who will be supreme adviser.

Thieu saw the delegation off, then told newsmen who asked what the delegation's position would be: "I repeat once again it is to bring to Paris our will for peace."

Success of the conference, he added, would "depend on the position and attitude of the Communists."

That there will be hard fighting while the negotiations progress is certain. Hanoi Radio broadcast a call by the Viet Cong command for its armed forces to "make all-out efforts and dash forward to win yet bigger successes on the road to complete victory." This was the third such broadcast in recent days.

James Berger Named Realtor Of the Year

James C. Berger, of Berger & Berger Inc., was named Realtor of the Year by the Colorado Springs Board of Realtors Inc., during the group's annual installation dinner Saturday.

Berger, a past president of the local realtor board, is a native of Wyoming where his father spent a lifetime in the real estate business.

He is a graduate of the University of Colorado where he majored in business.

tate Boards, National Institute of Real Estate Brokers, National Institute of Farm and Land Brokers, Colorado Association of Real Estate Boards, The Home Builders Association, Pikes Peak Kiwanis Club and the First Christian Church.

Al Plamann, recipient of the award for 1967, told the dinner guests that receiving this award is the greatest honor in the real estate world. It is one of the very few honors presented to a person by those who work with him every day for many years.

The installation dinner was held at the Broadmoor Hotel.

Pope Says He Wanted Orderly Church Change

By GERALD MILLER

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI, sounding troubled and worn, told a group of student priests Saturday the Roman Catholic church is in an hour of "self-demolition."

He referred to himself as a "sign of conflict" but said he is grateful to God for the ordeal he is suffering and said he would trust in Christ to bring him and the church through its present crisis.

The Pope acknowledged that he had hoped for an orderly kind of change to occur in Roman Catholicism after the Vatican Ecumenical Council instead of the ferment that did explode.

"The church," the pontiff said, "is experiencing a time of disquiet, self-criticism, one would even say of self-demolition. It is like an internal, acute and complex upheaval which no one would have expected after the council."

Pope Paul said, nevertheless,

Priest Who Wed Nun 'Works For a Living'

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — A Roman Catholic priest, who says he never realized how bad some sermons are until he listened to them from the other side of the altar, disclosed Saturday he and a nun are married.

Daniel F. McCarthy, 38, said Saturday that he stopped working in the priesthood Sept. 14, then on Nov. 29 married a nun.

McCarthy and the former Joanne King, 36, were married by a justice of the peace "somewhere in Nevada." Now, they want to get permission to marry in the church as Catholics.

The couple live in Tempe where McCarthy is attending Arizona State University for a master's degree in sociology. He works part time at the Sun City Rural Fire Co. "I thank God for all my firemen who cover for me when I have to go to school and can't work," said McCarthy: "Now I'm learning what it is to have to face the challenge of earning a living."

McCarthy, who was ordained in Boston in 1957, has worked at Phoenix parishes in the Tucson diocese. He said the Most Rev. Francis Green, Tucson bishop, asked him to leave the priesthood over a disagreement on the Pope's birth control encyclical.

"I cannot preach what the church wants, or I might kill a sick mother, destroy a floundering marriage or perhaps cause future generations to starve to death," McCarthy said.

His wife Joanne works in the recovery room of Good Samaritan Hospital in Phoenix. McCarthy said she previously worked as a registered nurse for nine years. She then was a nun for another nine years even though she never actually took final vows as a sister of Notre Dame in Ohio.

CIC Acquires More Property In Core Area

An agreement to purchase the Masonic temple building, 9 N. Nevada Ave., has been signed by Colorado Interstate Corporation, it was announced here Saturday by Byron E. Thady, president of the Colorado Springs Masonic Building Society.

Under the terms of the purchase agreement, the members of the organization will continue to use the Masonic temple at its present location until December 1971.

In the interim, work is expected to proceed on the construction of a new Masonic temple, costing approximately $1 million dollars, to be erected near Fontmore and Panorama Drives.

Announcement of the plans to build a new Masonic temple first was made in October 1967 at the 100th anniversary banquet of El Paso Lodge 13, AF

Queen Elizabeth on Way To Retirement in Florida

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — The Queen Elizabeth, on a course toward retirement as the world's largest ocean liner, made her last landfall Saturday surrounded by hundreds of tiny boats swarming like Lilliputians deviling Gulliver.

Dredges worked overtime, meanwhile, to finish digging Port Everglades deep enough so the Queen Elizabeth could dock Sunday, a day late. Only 10 other ports in the world can handle this Queen.

She will spend her remaining days landlocked here as a convention center and hotel.

Black paint covered the 2½-foot letters that stretched 68 feet along the bow of the dethroned monarch, given her famous name 30 years ago in a way alongside Scotland's River

Sen. Thurmond, 66, Will Wed 22-Year-Old Girl

AIKEN, S.C. (AP) — Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., a vigorous and vocal 66, confirmed his intentions Saturday to marry a former beauty queen 44 years his junior.

"She's very smart — a straight-A student," said Thurmond of his bride-to-be, 22-year-old Nancy Moore, who was Miss South Carolina of 1966.

Thurmond, who celebrated his birthday last Thursday, has been a widower almost nine years.

The surprise engagement was announced Saturday by Miss Moore's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Robinson Moore Sr. Her father is a chemical engineer at the Atomic Energy Commission's Savannah River plant near Aiken.

The wedding date will be announced later. Thurmond referred all questions to his fiancee, but indicated they might be married before the end of the year.

Students in Italy Demand School Reform

ROME (UPI)—Tens of thousands of high school and college students boycotted classes and demonstrated for educational reforms in Italian cities Friday. The youths tied up traffic in several cities and officials wondered when the nationwide agitation would end.

The demonstrations, in Rome, Genoa, Naples, Bologna, Anzio, Udine and other cities, followed four days of strikes and violence throughout the country as the new premier-designate tried to put together a new government.

The biggest student turnout came in Genoa where several thousand youths marched through the streets chanting for reforms that the last government had promised before it fell.

Similar protests erupted in Rome, as the city tried to return to normal after a paralyzing strike by one million workers Thursday. Students there also voiced anger at the fatal shooting of two Sicilian farm workers by police Monday.

That incident touched off violent rioting in more than a dozen cities and towns in Italy durng the week and more than 200 persons were injured.

While Friday's youthful protests were peaceful, they added more pressure on Premier-designate Mariano Rumor to put together a government coalition quickly. Sources close to Rumor said he was confident he could do so by next week.

His task is to combine the right number of Christian Democrats, his party, and leftist factions, particularly the Socialists, into a meld that will be able to push legislation through parliament.

The last government, that of Premier Giovanni Leone, fell in mid-November because it was unable to enact the educational, social and wage reforms demanded by millions of Italians in all walks of life.

Computer Can't Tell About Peace Corps

WASHINGTON (AP) — A vignette from the computerized world of promotional mailing:

The Peace Corps received Friday what was called "a personalized invitation" from a record company's automobile sweepstakes addressed to: "Mr. Peace Corps, 806 Conn Ave NW, Washington DC."

The salutation was, "Dear Mr. Corps," and the letter started out, "In Washington the Corps family has been selected to receive this lucky number."

Nothing to buy, of course, just a chance to win a new car. "But please act now," the flyer said, "The Corps family could be a winner."

The promotional text was printed, but inserted—obviously by a "personalized" computer—were the words, "the Corps family," in the same way that the "Smith" or "Sutphin" family was in the letters sent them.

Fine Levied Against Airline Operators

WASHINGTON (AP) — A $5,000 fine has been levied on the airline operating the charter plane that was forced down on Russian territory last June with 214 Vietnam-bound U.S. troops aboard.

The Federal Aviation Agency, announcing the fine against Seaboard World Airlines Wednesday, said some of the plane's radar was not working and the first officer lacked required training.

The FAA said some units of the radar had been checked by a person not authorized to approve its condition.

The jetliner was held for two days on Iturup Island north of Japan after being forced down by Soviet fighter planes.

Plan Protest When Pope Says Holiday Mass

FLORENCE, Italy (AP) — Defiant parishioners fighting for their ousted rebel priest called on all Italian workers Friday to stage a protest before Pope Paul VI when he says Christmas Eve Mass in front of the blast furnaces of Taranto.

The people of Isolotto parish put up posters urging workers from all over the country to flock to the Taranto steel center in southern Italy and appeal directly to the Pope to reinstate the rebel priest, Don Enzo Mazzi.

Pope Paul announced Dec. 1 he would celebrate midnight Mass this Christmas before blast furnaces at Taranto to show Christian solidarity with workers.

Don Mazzi was ousted from his parish Thursday for publishing a controversial catechism that showed Christ as a leader of the poor against the upper classes.

Salvation Army Makes Request for Rezoning

A request by the Salvation Army to rezone from R-2 to R-3 a 1.2-acre area on Iowa Avenue between San Miguel and Uintah Streets tops the 31-item agenda of the city planning commission on Thursday.

The commission meeting is scheduled to get underway at 2 p.m. in council chambers at City Hall.

The property involved originally was suggested by the Salvation Army as a new, social services center. However, the idea met strong opposition from residents in the neighborhood. In the meantime, the Army found other property for its center and located a buyer for the Iowa Avenue plot provided the nem zoning can be obtained.

The planning commission agenda, in addition to the Salvation Army item, is as follows:

—James C. Bergrstrom requests a rezone from A-1 to R-5 on 3.6502 acres south of and adjacent to the Templeton Gap Floodway and about 1,000 feet northeast of the intersection of Primrose and Hollyhock Drives. The matter has received considerable opposition when presented before.

—Request by Dean F. Chausto rezone from R-3 to M-1 with a conditional use to allow an auto wrecking yard at 501 E. Las Veags St.

—Request by Red Feather Corp. to rezone from PBC-3 to PCB-1 about 1.6396 acres north of the intersection of Montery Road with Shenandoah Drive.

—Request by James Berger to rezone from A-1 to PBC-1 a 4.4165-acre plot at the intersection of Academy Boulevard and Flintridge Drive.

—Request by Dean F. Casee to approval of a planned unit development (PUD) on three acres in the Country Club Heights Subdivision.

—Request by Humble Oil and Refining Co. to erect a 50-foot sign at its service station at the intersection of Glen and Uintah Streets.

—Request by G. K. Rocks to rezone from R-5 to C-6 a 1.25-acre area located west of North Circle Drive between Dale and Yampa Streets.

—Request by Duane R. Jensen to rezone from R-3 to R-5 the 11.7-acre tract at the intersection of Limit and Bijou Streets.

—Request by W. J. Peyser to rezone from R-5 to C-6 the 1.74-acre parcel located on East Monument Street between Willamette and Weber Streets.

—Request by James A. Smith to rezone from R-5 to PBC-1 the 1.56-acre tract at the intersection of Carlsabd Drive and South Circle Drive.

—Request by Michael H. Collins to approve an amended development plan for a PBC-2 at LaSalle Street between the south and north lanes of Academy Boulevard.

—Request by R. L. Esau for free-standing sign in a PBC-1 zone at the intersection of South Circle Drive and Fountain Boulevard.

—Request by M. L. Dunn and F. L. Strange for an amendment to a PBC development plan at the intersection of Union Boulevard and LeLaray Street.

—Request by the Sunnyrest Sanatorium for a 24-month extension period so its PBC-1 zone at East Hills Road between the south line of Cache LaPoudre Street extended east and the north line of East Dale Street.

—Preliminary and final plats of Village Seven Subdivision by Shepard Development Co.

—Request by Rustics Hills, Inc., for vacation of six lots at the intersection of Babcock Road and Palmer Park Boulevard.

—Final plat of Rustic Hills Subdivisions No. 7 by Rustic Hills, Inc., at Babcock Road and Palmer Park Boulevard.

—Preliminary and final plat of Austin Estates Subdivision No. 3 by Ochs Brothers at Academy and Palmer Park Boulevards.

—Request by Chevron Oil Co. for vacation of Chevron Subdivision on five acres at Garden of the Gods Road and Interstate 25.

—Final replat of Chevron Subdivision as amended at above location.

—Final replat of Gatehouse Gardens by Bruce E. Yeakel on above property.

—Request by Smartt Construction Co. for a variance at 4305 Brady Road to permit a child day center.

—Request by Payne Chapel Church for a variance at the intersection of Weber Street and Pueblo Avenue to allow two off-street parking spaces where 30 are required.

—Request by W. M. Metzler for a variance to waive sidewalk requirements on the north side of Brener Place east of Wesley Drive.

—Petition by Cimarron Development Co., and others, for annexation of Skyway Addition No. 1, an area of 56.69 acres west of the intersection of County Farm Road and South 21st Street.

Sertomans Hear City's Aviation Head Tuesday

Frank W. Ladwig, director of aviation for Colorado Springs, will discuss future expansion plans at Peterson Field during the Centennial Sertoma Club's Tuesday luncheon at the Stockyards Steak House.

Ladwig, who received a bachelor of science degree from the University of Wisconsin, has been in Colorado Springs since 1952. He operated a welding and general contracting business until his appointment in 1965 as director of special projects for the city, and later as director of aviation.

He retired recently from the Army Reserve with the rank of lieutenant colonel. He has been flying since 1937 and has logged more than 8,000 hours as a pilot. He is a licensed commercial glider pilot, and flight instructor.

Computer Group Schedules Meet December 17

Learn to Recognize Opinionated Literature

By THE READING LABORATORY, INC.

The fellow who said that the pen is mightier than the sword has a lot going for him. However, the sword is a lot more honest than the pen; it has one clear purpose.

One who wields the pen has any of three purposes, because words reveal, words conceal and words deceive. You have to be on much closer guard against language than against the sword.

Watch for and recognize biased words or "loaded language."

Consider "book-burners," "radical," "extremists," "leftists," "rightists," "ultra," and others from the long list of words intended to convey bias, not opinions, to deceive, not reveal.

Watch language! Watch the labels on those words!

Then too, since the beginning of time people have been saying things like "Every man has a right to his own opinion." The everlasting mother-in-law has wailed: "Some father he'll make! He can't even drive a nail." There has always been a teacher to say, "This school has had nothing but trouble since your Algernon enrolled."

If these statements are as old as the hills, let us venerate their age, not their logic.

In all such statements (and they will appear in most respectable writing with someewhat more sophistication), ask yourself, "Is the statement so general as to be meaningless?"

In reading critically, learn to examine and question general statements, especially the cliches most poeple accept without thinking.

When a writer explains his views, he uses two pieces of equipment: facts and reasoning. Facts are easily checked, and only fourth-rate writers or special pleaders will distort them.

What you have to be on guard against is the writer's reasoning. You can take two truths — it's done every day in the week — and arrive at a wrong conclusion.

If the reasoning follows logical rules, it is called "valid" reasoning; otherwise the reasoning is regarded as "invalid."

The following rules will help you steer clear of the fallacies that result from invalid reasoning.

1. Do not try to compare things that are not really comparable;

2. Do not try to draw a general conclusion from two statements as to what is not so;

3. Do not try to deduce a general conclusion unless you begin with a general, universal statement;

4. Do not try to reason about a whole class of things from a mere segment of it.

Another thing, don't worry about imposing too much on your memory; you won't collapse mentally from trying to retain as much as humanly possible from what you read. The more you exercise your mind, the bigger the load it can carry with ease.

Retention is no problem if you practice prereading, questioning, outlining and summarizing.

In a nutshell: Get the right mental approach so that you are moved to retain the material for good; summarize each paragraph as you go; summarize only in key words so that you will learn to spot key words as you continue. Practice: read a news story in your paper, then ask someone to quiz you on what you read.

You are as rich as what you retain; you retain as much as you motivate yourself to retain.

In conclusion let us make a few suggestions to help you in your reading habits. Read more than one paper, and read papers with differing views on the social scene. The same with magazines. If you are proud of the fact that you are a dyed-in-the-wool conservative, try to find out why the other fellow is just as proud of being liberal.

If you love science, then don't carve a narrow niche for yourself the rest of your thinking life. Read all the science you like, but the world doesn't begin and end with it. Enrich your life with literature. There is nothing so boring as the man who limits his conversation to one topic.

Biographies — well-written biographies — are about the most adventurous reading experiences you will ever have. History will be seen as a personal thing, not as a dry collection of facts.

Reading outside your special interests gives you new insights, new vocabulary, new ways of thinking and writing. But read, and read with discrimination. Junk doesn't relax you, and it lowers your sights.

Ninety per cent of what you will ever know comes from reading. Make reading a habit; make it a relaxation; make it your finest and most stimulating companion; make it your great wealth.

And read The Reading Laboratory way: read fastern, with better understanding, more critically and with retention.

Defense Dept. Seeks Teachers For Overseas

The Department of Defense Dependents Schools System is recruiting school teachers and administrators for the Overseas Dependents Schools for the 1969-70 school year.

Positions are located in overseas areas where U.S. military and civilian employees have their families. The curriculum is similar to that in U.S. schools. There are more than 300 elementary and secondary schools established in 28 countries for some 160,000.

Applicants for teaching positons must be at least 21 years of age; have a bachelor's degree; 18 semester hours of professonal teacher training; a teacher's certificate, or be eligible for one; and two years of successful teaching experience within the past five years. Applicants for admnistrative postions require more training and experience.

Starting pay for a teacher with a bachelor's degree and two years of experience is $6,195. Higher salaries are given for advanced degrees.

Interested persons may contact the nearest State Employment Service Office for complete procedures. (AFNS)

Farming efficiency in South Africa has increased to such an extent that it requires only 14 farmers to provide 100 families with agricultural products as compared to 23 farmers who produced the same amount 20 years ago.

Post Office Forecasts Harvest Year

The Colorado Springs Post Office will process about 22 million pieces of mail during the Christmas season, according to Postmaster R. H. Wardwell.

"Since a piece of non-ZIP Coded mail may be handled as many as ten or twelve times from deposit in the corner mail box until delivery, and ZIP coded mail is handled about half that, the number of individual actions required by the postal service during this season is astronomical," the Postmaster said. He asked all area residents to give postal employees a helping hand by shopping early, mailing early and using ZIP Codes.

"ZIP codes on parcels mean far less chance of damage because of more direct routing and fewer handlings, but the success of the program hinges on public use of the Codes," he said.

ZIP codes were developed to simplify mail handling, to cut out several hand separations, to ship the mail by a more direct route, and to save money, he says.

The head of the Colorado Springs Post Office also reminded patrons that the use of free "local" and "out of town" separation bands will help move the mails faster. These bands are available at the Post Office.

The Postmaster urged everyone to check the return addresses of incoming mail and to record the proper ZIP codes in address books for persons to whom they write.

Union Proposes Licensing of Auto Mechanics

By JOHN CHADWICK

WASHINGTON (AP) — The licensing of automobile mechanics should not be restricted to repairmen alone, a union official says.

William W. Winpisinger, vice president of the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers, told a Senate panel Thursday that licensing should be by the federal government and not only for mechanics.

Winpisinger, whose union represents 120,000 auto mechanics, said any legislation requiring licensing should provide for registration and close regulation of auto repair dealers, automatic licensing of any mechanic with four years' experience and equal representation for labor on the licensing authority.

Also appearing Thursday before the subcommittee headed by Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., was Tom A. Williams, president of the National Automobile Association.

Williams said the NADA has not taken any position on the licensing of auto mechanics, but he said he personally would not want "any more roadblocks" than there are now to getting the mechanics dealers need.

Hart said some people feel incompetent repairs contribute substantially to the highway death toll. He told Williams "if you could be assured of skilled mechanics in repair shops, you'd be happy, I'm sure.

"We have a shortage of doctors, but no one is suggesting we eliminate licensing them," Hart, who has suggested state licensing, said.

Winpisinger told the subcommittee that there are no required standards of training in the auto repair business.

"Anyone can call himself a mechanic and hire himself out to work on your car or mine," he said, "And yet the average American's exposure to and risk from auto travel is about 400 times greater than his exposure to and risk from air travel."

In the air transport industry mechanics are licensed by the federal government. "Only licensed mechanics may certify that a plane is airworthy before it may fly," Winpisinger said.

Hart told the auto dealers he would appreciate their submitting their suggestions on how a licensing system should be set up, without committing themselves on whether they favored it.

attended a meeting of the South Carolina Republican Executive Committee in Columbia Saturday and marched down Main Street later in Pearl Harbor Day military parade. He is a retired major general ni the ARM Reserves.

"We just aren't sure when we will have the wedding," said the blue-eyed, brown-haired Miss Moore. She said she got to know Sen. Thurmond when she worked as an intern in his Washington office for four weeks in 1966 and again for three months in 1967.

Nicknamed "Moose," Miss Moore attended Duke University for two years before representing South Carolina in the 1966 Miss America contest.

A pianist, she was among the preliminary winners in talent. She is five feet, six inches tall, weighs 115 pounds and her measuremnts are 35-22-35.

Miss Moore holds a degree in English and political science from the University of South Carolina. She entered law school this fall but dropped out, apparently to prepare for her wedding.

Thurmond married pretty Jean Crouch, one of his secretaries, in 1947 when she was 21 and he was just shy of 45. She died of brain cancer Jan. 6, 1960. They had no children.

Four million miles and 2.3 million passengers later Marr guided the 82,997-ton, 1,031-foot vessel past Gold Coast resort cities from Palm Beach to Miami. She moved so slowly there was no wake to show where she had been or to endanger the some 200-300 pleasure boats crowded around her.

No passengers were aboard on this last trip from Southampton, England. With her was her regular 1,200-man crew.

The big, black ship, her two red stacks and white bridge glistening under a cloudless sky, was surrounded by the criss-cross wakes of the private fleet of sail and power craft.

Meanwhile, Marr planned to keep his ship moving instead of anchoring the sea buoy of Port Everglades, 25 miles north of Miami. Coast Guard officials warned him of reports anti-Castro guerrillas might try to bomb the queen in protest of England's trade with Cuba.

that in this situation he felt "joy and confidence."

"It is a feeling of great confidence and trust. Many expect clamorous gestures, energetic and decisive interventions by the Pope.

"The Pope does not believe he must follow any other line but that of confidence in Jesus Christ, who more than anyone else cares for His church."

Some members of Vatican circles read into this statement a rejection by Pope Paul of any suggestions that he should resign to open the way for a new pontiff.

There had been recurrent reports in the recent past that the Pope was considering resigning upon raching the age of 75, the regular retirement age for bishops. Pope Paul is 72.

Walker Report Writers Accused Of Overreacting

By DANIEL RAPOPORT

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The head of the House Committee on Un-American Activities said Friday that his hearings found Communist participation in demonstrations during the Democratic national convention. He said the Walker Report on the disorders "overreacted" to the evidence.

"The hearings have shown that Communists and other revolutionaries participated in the planning of the demonstrations in Chicago," Rep. Richard Ichord, D-Mo., the committee's acting chairman, told a news conference summarizing four days of committee testimony.

Ichord sharply criticized the Walker report on the Chicago disorders, written under contract for the National Commission on the Causes and Prevention of Violence by a study team headed by Chicago lawyer Daniel Walker. The report said Chicago police were guilty of a "police riot" in the streets of Chicago during the Democratic national convention.

The Walker investigators, Ichord said, "overreacted" to the evidence and wrote a report which "read like a ovel instead of a fact-finding report." He said newsmen also were guilty of "overreaction" during the disorders as were "a small minority" of Chicago police.

During the hearings, three men who organized the Chicago demonstrations under the National Mobilization Committee to End the War in Vietnam freely acknowledged they were "revolutionaries" in that they sought a complete overhaul of the U.S. political and economic system. But one, David Dellinger, said he was a pacifist, and all three said they tried to avoid violence in Chicago.

"It's really a matter of their philosophy," Ichord said. "If the police attempt to enforce the law, they consider that they have the right to use force to defend themselves, as they put it."

Ichord reminded newsmen that two witnesses, Dellinger and Thomas E. Hayden, testified they met with North Vietnamese and Viet Cong representatives in Paris before the convention and told them of their plans for Chicago. Hayden and Dellinger both insisted the demonstrations were not influenced by these meetings, but Ichord indicated he thought otherwise.

"I don't think there's anyone here who can deny it was certainly in their (Communists') interests," he said.

Nixon Plans to Retain Many Career Officials

icy decisions will in most cases be replaced," he said. But he added "some policy people we definitely plan to keep" and "career executives generally will stay."

The total number of persons hired may be a bit below the present employment level, he added. "We're going to try and streamline a little bit," he said.

Flemming said some 3,500 personnel summaries already have been received, some in response to the 80,000 letters sent to prominent Americans including those listed in Who's Who in America.

The resumes are processed by an eight-man staff which weeds out those obviously unqualified and passes the rest on to a group which has been studying the staffing needs of various government agencies.

The names are being filed by computer under such categories as region, party affiliation, whether recommended by a congressman but not race, Flemming said.

Those being asked for recommendations, press aide Copp Collins said, include 21,430 college presidents and educators, 12,571 bank presidents and officials and 12,000 company presidents.

Each letter is signed by Nixon and says "I seek the best minds in America to meet the challenges of a changing world."

omers with their first unobstructed glimpse of the universe above the blanket of earth's atmosphere.

The atmosphere distorts light reaching telescopes on earth and absorbs vast amounts of energy streaming from stars and other celestial bodies. OAO 2 was built to concentrate on observing ultraviolet light, a type not visible on the ground, emitted by "young" stars between 10,000 and 100,000 years old to help astronomers learn about chemical and physical characteristic of those steller bodies.

"The theory is to put stars of different agents in some order to deduce the evolution of stars and the universe," explained Dr. James E. Kupperian Jr., OAO project scientist at the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Goddard Space Flight Center

OAO 1, launched in 1966, failed after only two days in orbit when its batteries short circuited.

Homer E. Newell, NASA associate administrator of space science and applications, predicted after OAO 2's successful launching Saturday that the satellite would open up "a new arena" for astronomers exploring "things like quesars and other galaxies."

Quesars are mysterious celestial objects emitting such vast amounts of energy in light and radio waves that they can be observed out to the fringes of the universe.

The observatory contains two major experiments, a cluster of four telescopes developed by the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory and a group of seven telescopes designed by the University of Wisconsin. The Smithsonian experiment will scan large portions of the sky, studying more than 700 stars each day. The Wisconsin package will inspect about 1,000 stars one at a time—during the next six months.

Denver's Mayor Also Quits Post; Blames Low Pay

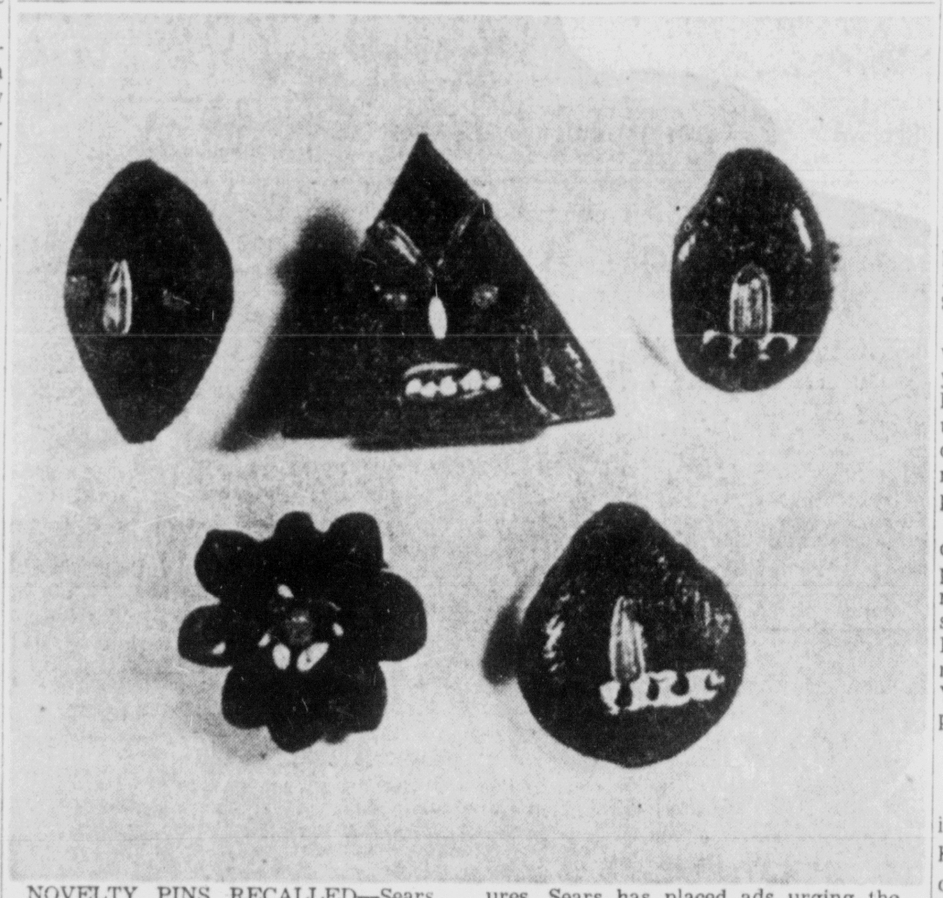
DENVER, Colo. (AP)—Denver Mayor Tom Currigan, citing the refusal of Denver voters to increase his pay and that of other city officials, submitted his resignation Saturday to take a vice-presidential post with Continental Airlines.

Currigan said his resignation would be effective Dec. 31 at 10 a.m.

He will be succeeded by Public Works Manager Willam H. McNichols.

Currigan said the refusal of voters three times to hike the salaries of city officials was a "material factor," but not the only factor. He did not elaborate, however observers noted the resignation of other officals recently, including Safety Manager Howard Phillips, may have had some influence.

Currigan's public career spans 19 years, during which he served as administrative assistant clerk and recorder under Mayor Quigg Newton, two terms as elected city auditor and two terms as mayor.



NOVELTY PINS RECALLED—Sears, Roebuck and Co. has issued an urgent recall of 300 to 400 of the above novelty pins which contain the poisonous, hard-shelled jequirity bean. The beans, shiny orange with a black tip, are located in the center of the flower design and in the eyes of the other figures. Sears has placed ads urging the return of the pins in each of the 117 cities across the nation where the pins were sold. Local Sears officials Saturday told the Gazette Telegraph they were not one of the stores which had sold the pins.

Formosan Judge Is Accused of Bribery

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — Mrs. Tsai Ping-tang produced a pair of pants belonging to Judge Li Shih-lu as evidence to support her charge that he met her in a hotel room and demanded $250 to set her husband free.

Mrs. Tsai said she ran off with the pants after the 41-year-old judge took them off. Her husband, who was scheduled to go on trial in Judge Li's district court in southwest Formosa, is charged with misappropriating public funds.

The judge claimed six men dragged him to the hotel and pulled his pants off. The justice ministry said he was lying and suspended him from the bench. It referred him to the disciplinary committee of the Judicial Yuan to decide if he should be punished and how.

HONG KONG (AP) — Authorities Saturday released Tse Kwong, identified as secretary of the Communist "Government, Armed Forces and Hospitals Chinese Workers Union."

He was among 54 Communists arrested without charges at the height of last years' anti-British riots. Twenty-two are still in custody.

Biossat Drops Cabinet Names for Nixon-Watchers

BY BRUCE BIOSSAT
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA) — The hallmark of White House inner circle operations in the first phase of President-elect Richard M. Nixon's administration will be flexibility.

Several appointees have been loudly proclaimed as "generalists" and have had their assignments painted in extremely broad strokes.

This is deliberate on Nixon's part. It leaves him free to observe their performance and, if necessary, to narrow their functions to more specialized fields as their abilities are made clear in action.

As a vital corollary, the President-elect is likewise left free to name others later to fill gaps in the circle which may quickly be revealed to him as his regime gets under way.

Nixon-watchers should keep a sharp eye on such writer and researcher types as Raymond Price, Patrick Buchanan and Dr. Martin Anderson, the latter a favorite Nixon idea man.

Though these men appear likely today to have more clearly restricted assignments than some others, their potential may be considerable. The gradation from writer-researcher to policy-framer is sometimes an easy step, and it should not be forgotten that Theodore Sorenson was also Kennedy's principal speech writer.

Nor should it be overlooked that both Price and Buchanan were among a bare handful of men summoned by Nixon early last summer to all three of his secret election-planning meetings at Key Biscayne, Fla., and Montauk Point, L. I.

It is significant that, with the naming of his White House staff nearing completion, he does not have—and at the outset now seems unlikely to have—anyone on the roster with such immediately specific assignments as these:

Chief domestic policy formulator with the sort of potent authority and back-up staff which Theodore Sorensen had in the John F. Kennedy administration.

Broad-gauge White House press secretary with the range of responsibility enjoyed by Kennedy's Pierre Salinger and President Johnson's Bill D. Moyers. (The latter also had the advantage of close-in knowledge of the President's thoughts and plans on major matters.)

A foreign policy co-ordinator and adviser on the model of McGeorge Bundy and Walt W. Rostow, with specific command of the President's necessary in-house foreign affairs operations center.

A hasty reading of the terms of former Kansas Congressman Robert Ellsworth's assignment makes him sound like a roving trouble-shooter who might be largely occupied in dashing from one special project to another.

But the language did indicate some responsibility for policy-framing, and it evidently is Nixon's intent today that Ellsworth should do a good deal of major policy advising.

Whether he ultimately becomes a Sorenson-style specialist in this field obviously depends partly on how he works out and partly on what Nixon's needs are shown to be as he gets the feel of the job.

No seasoned White House observer expects that the present nuts-and-bolts press officer, 29 year-old Ronald Ziegler, will later emerge with press powers comparable to those exercised by Salinger and Moyers. He has neither the knowledge nor the experience and cannot quickly acquire either one.

An educated guess is that Nixon understands fully the need for a press secretary of broader powers and that he simply intends to rely on Ziegler (in his more limited role) while he leisurely shops around for a suitable prospect.

One thing seems certain. It will not be Nixon's former top personal press aid, Herbert Klein. Klein's broad-brush assignment as a kind of general press overlord of the whole executive branch is being badly misread by much of the press. It is a story that does not fit in here, but warrants telling later after further probing.

In the matter of foreign policy co-ordinator, Nixon sources indicate it is the President-elect's intention to get along without one for at least awhile.

He will have the in-house foreign affairs command post, manned at the outset by as yet unnamed secondary staff people. In effect, he will, then, be the co-ordinator himself. He may wish to try this to see how it works. Again, with flexibility the key, he can always bring in a White House co-ordinator in this field at any point he deems necessary. And, again, he has time to shop around.

There is one further advantage in avoiding a choice now in the foreign policy arena. Whoever Nixon picks as secretary of state will not be moved to look with jealousy, at least at the outset, at some little-know "inside" competitor within buzzer-range of the President's desk.

It will ease Nixon's problem of persuading his choice for secretary of state that the job can still have the requisite dignity and authority, whatever the President's need for nearly instant information and guidance in this high-paced nuclear age.

John Kennedy did not have the same problem when he chose Dean Rusk for the office. Though Bundy was set to come aboard the White House staff, no one then had conceived—even on paper—the full scope of the inside foreign policy command post which later developed.

Nixon's flexible approach to the building of his White House establishment is not wholly a matter of shrewd design.

It is also a necessity, dictated by the peculiar floating chaos of the period between election and inauguration, and the difficulty of recruiting trusted men of specific talent for dealing with problems whose full nature can only be roughly grasped until the new President is actually in the White House.

More than some who have preceded him in this job, Nixon evidently seems bent on keeping his White House manpower options wide open. When he begins to read the crucial cables and confidential reports and to use—with key staff help—the powers only a sitting Chief Executive has, then he will get a proper gauge on his needs and on the fitness of the men surrounding him in that building.

From that time on, the inner circle will start to take on its truly meaningful shape and substance. The chances are it may bear only limited resemblance to the vague, shadowy form it has been given in the daily appointment announcements of November and early December. And some of the "early faces" may quickly vanish from the scene.

Man, 64, Hurt When Struck by Auto Saturday

A 64-year-old man was injured late Saturday when struck by an automobile as he crossed Pikes Peak Avenue.

One of the three grandchildren who was walking with him barely missed being hit also but the grandfather shoved him out of the way a split second before the vehicle struck.

The injured man was identified by Police Cpl. William L. Brown and Officer Roman J. Krafczyk as Henry Francies Hayes, 3003 E. Pikes Peak Ave. He was taken to the Air Force Academy Hospital where his condition was reported to be satisfactory Saturday night.

The officers identified the driver of the vehicle involved as Royce Earl Turner whose address was given three miles south of Kiowa.

The investigating officers said Hayes was crossing Pikes Peak Avenue from north to south in the 2800 block. He was accompanied by three grandchildren, ages 4, 5 and 7. The two younger children preceded Hayes and the seven-year-old boy.

Apparently the grandfather saw the car approaching just before it struck him. He shoved his grandson out of the way.

Turner told officers he has just left his place of employment minutes before the mishap occurred at 5:38 p.m.

POPULATION

NEW DELHI, Inda (AP) — President Zakir Husain today warned India's 530 million citizens their number will double if the country's family planning program fails.

"If we fail, our population will become 1 billion within the next three decades and all our development efforts will be like writings on sand, endlessly washed away by tides of increasing numbers," he said.

President Husain spoke at the start of National Family Fortnight. He said India's program was the biggest of its kind in the world and its success would mean "a healthier and stronger India of tomorrow."

LAEF Selling Christmas Trees

The Fund-Raising Committee of the Colorado Springs Chapter, Latin American Educational Foundation, Inc., is engaged during December in selling Christmas trees to raise "Dollars for Scholars." The net proceeds of this holiday project will be utilized to help American boys and girls of Spanish ancestry to achieve higher goals of learning in college or in vocational trade occupations.

Luis A. Crotez Jr., president of LAEF has announced that Bob Mooney, temporary chairman of this project, will be operating the tree lot at 1866 N. Circle Drive.

Spruce and balsam trees are on hand and they are from the Cripple Creek area. Sizes from four to 10 feet are on display.

Patrons are invited to visit the lot and their purchases will aid the educational goals of the local LAEF chapter.

School Improvement Basic Idea Behind Supervision

Inspection and supervision of schools is as old as public education in the United State, and the basic objective, to improve instruction, is still the same today, according to Dr. William Liddle, director of elementary education for the Colorado Springs Public Schools.

"Until about the middle of the nineteenth century, lay citizens of a community made all the inspections and provided the supervision. Interested lay citizens still make it a point to visit and observe their schools, but the regular and systematic evaluation and supervision is now a function of specially trained personnel," Dr. Liddle said.

The big change in supervision, in addition to the number and kind of personnel who are engaged in it, is the change in concept and function. The modern supervisor, he said, supports and assists teachers and share with them the responsibility for developing and improving curricula and instructional methodology.

In the CSPS every supervisor heads at least one committee of teachers that continuously studies one part of the instructional program. Working together they reveiw materials, presently being used and those under consideration for future use. They study teaching methods in the subject fields and keep up with the most recent research in the fields of educational and child psychology.

Change in education is occurring at a constantly accelerating pace, according to Dr. Liddle. In the local schools, however, new programs, materials, and methodology are adopted only after they have been tested. At present there are about 80 special projects in progress that require careful supervision and evaluation before they will be considered for district-wide implementation, he said.

The supervision and part of the evaluation is the responsibility of supervisors. Change often requires in-service training for teachers who will conduct the new programs, and supervisors initiate and provide much of that training, Dr. Liddle added.

Another major duty of supervisors is to do demonstration teaching. This sometimes results from observation during a visit to a classroom, but principals may request help for a teacher and the teachers themselves frequently ask for assistance.

Teachers, especially those new to the system, need help in becoming familiar with the curriculum and the materials and special services available to supplement their efforts. Organizing a schedule of instruction and forming instructional groups may also be problems for the young and inexperienced teacher. When that happens, a supervisor works with the teacher, sometimes for an hour or so, but in some cases for several day at a time.

Dr. Liddle pointed out that the increased number of new teachers each year adds significantly to the supervisors' work load. Many of the newcomers are recent college graduates with no experience except as student teachers. Supervisors visit all new teachers four or five times during their first year in the district, and each visit lasts long enough for the supervisor to see a whole sequence of instruction. They give encouragement through commendation and make recommendations for improvement if it is needed.

Employment in District 11 is probationary for the first three years, and one purpsoe of the supervisors' visits to classrooms is to evaluate teacher performance. In March the supervisor and the principal meet to discuss the competency of first-year teachers and jointly decide whether to recommend them for employment the next year. Principals supervise and make recommendations concerning the second and third-year teachers.

A time consuming but important function of supervisors is to observe and confer with pupils whom teachers have recommended for retention. Before any action is taken on such a recommendation, supervisors confer with the teacher, the parents, the principal, and often other school district specialists.

Performance of all these supervisory tasks demands cooperation among a number of people, Dr. Liddle said. "The supervisors' role is to provide leadership, specialized training, and experience that will contribute to better education for all children in the CSPS elementary schools."

Auto Dealer Protests Repair Cost Testimony

By JOHN CHADWICK

WASHINGTON (AP) — A spokesman for automobile dealers hit back at what he termed irresponsible allegations made at a Senate investigation into auto repair costs.

Tom A. Williams, president of the National Automobile Dealers Association, expressed shock and dismay at testimony "indicting the automobile industry in general with unethical business practices."

He said it is highly probable "that the headlines resulting from irresponsible allegations made here have inflicted irreparable injury to the business reputation" of the nation's dealers and that, "as a result, thousands of employes will suffer adverse consequences."

His statement, prepared for the Senate antitrust subcommittee, referred in part to testimony by Glenn F. Kriegel, operator of an automobile diagnostic test center in Denver.

Kriegel told the subcommittee earlier in the week that only about 1 per cent of 5,000 cars tested at his center had been repaired according to manufacturers' specifications.

Without referring to Kriegel by name, Williams said that "we strongly object to being castigated as individuals who by lesion daily cheat 99 per cent of our customers by rendering inadequate service or failing to perform the services necessary to maintain our customers' vehicles in safe operable condition."

"If these allegations were absolutely fact," said Williams, a Greenboro, N.C., Chevrolet dealer, "neither I nor the thousands of quality franchised dealers in this nation would be in business."

"We wouldn't even be able to continue to reside in our own communities," he said.

To rebut the charge that only 1 per cent of auto service repair work is performed satisfactorily, Williams said that in a NADA survey of 10,000 auto owners, 64 per cent of those responding said the dealers' service work was satisfactorily completed the first time.

He also said that 71 per cent reported that in their estimation the dealers' service prices were reasonable.

Williams said that the NADA reports to its members any unfavorable comments that come to light as a result of its own investigative actions.

"We use this type of information to impress upon our membership that performance in the customer interst is the only way to operate successfully," he said.

Williams protested that all too often the industry has been the victim of unjustified criticism and has served as "the whipping boy for unqualified experts."

George Murphy Will Seek Another Term

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Sen. George Murphy, R-Calif., said Friday he will run for another term in 1970.

Asked by newsmen at the Republican Governors Association if he would run again, Murphy said "yes, sure, and I'll make it too."

There had been speculation that Murphy, who had a serious throat operation three years ago, would not run.

Johnson May Ask Pay Hike Okay for Nixon

By WILLIAM F. ARBOGAST
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The new Congress will have to move fast if it intends to give Richard M. Nixon a pay raise when he becomes president, or to stop a hefty salary hike for its own members.

President Johnson is expected to recommend across-the-board pay boosts from President on down through Congress and the executive and judiciary branches.

In order for Nixon to get a raise from the current pay scale of $100,000 yearly, Congress would have to give its approval before Inauguration Day, Jan. 20.

The Constitution forbids any change in the President's salary during his term in office. Thus, Congress would have to okay the boost before Jan. 20, or else Nixon will have to wait for a possible second term.

However, most other pay recommendations for congressmen, judges and various officials would go into effect in mid-February without Congressional action.

The increases may follow the recommendations of a nine-member commission created by Congress in 1967 to make a study of government pay scales.

The law that created the commission requires any pay raises recommended by the President must be included in his budget, to be submitted to Congress by Johnson no later than January 18.

The White House said the commission recommendations have not been formally presented to the President, who can revise them up or down or ignore them completely.

While the commission itself has made no announcement of its proposals, congressional and other sources hear that it will recommend a yearly raise for members of Congress, from $30,000 to $50,000; a $35,000 hike for the chief justice to $75,000, increases for Associate Justices from $39,500 to $65,000; $25,000 boosts for cabinet officers to $60,000, and comparable raises for other executives.

The commissions's jurisdiction does not include the salary of the President and the vice-president but it can suggest hikes. It has been reported the recommendations will be $100,000 to $150,000 for the President and from $43,000 to $75,000 for the vice president and the speaker of the House.

Congress could approve the whole thing, except for President and perhaps vice president and House speaker by simply doing nothing. Or it could kill the whole proposal or enact a law fixing different pay rates.

But if it does take action it must be within 30 days after the President makes his recommendations, or the congressional, judiciary and other executive pay boosts automatically become law.

Because organization of a new Congress is time consuming it would take unusual speed to enact by mid-February legislation changing the recommendation.

That speed could be generated if enough senators and representatives believe a $20,000 raise for themselves would be a political error when most of them are calling for economy.

Some members believe the political dangers of a large raise would be lessened if the act took place early in a session, with two years to go before the next elections. The voter would have more time to forget.

The experts are in disagreement over whether it would take a separate law to boost the pay of the vice president and the speaker, since they are in a special salary classification.

The speaker, as a member of the House, could accept the same salary voted for other members on the basis of the commission's recommendations. He and the vice president now get $53,000 including an expense allowance.

Chippewa Medicine Man Dies at Age 124

WARROAD, Minn. (AP) — A Chippewa medicine man believed to be between 110 and 124 years old died Friday at a nursing home.

John Ka-Ka-Gesick was born to Chief Ahya-Sha-Wash and his spouse May-Muska-Washie in a teepee on the shores of Lake of the Woods.

Residents said Ka-Ka-Gesick could clearly remember places, portages, battles and events of long ago and could speak of them in his native tongue.

In August 1905, Ka-Ka-Gesick was presented with a patent deed to his land and home, 102 acres on the south shore of Lake of the Woods, by President Theodore Roosevelt.

Secretaries On Warpath Over Skirts

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The interoffice memo has become the principal weapon in a skirt skirmish raging in Michigan's Capitol.

It started when one disapproving committee clerk circulated a memo among her fellow female legislative employes which said:

"How short is too short?

"The right length is dictated by your size, age and intelligence. It is measured by good taste, the proper place and occasion. Honestly now, are your legs and knees so truly fetching that they must be exposed to everyone, at all times, anywhere?"

The memo added: "Your skirt is too short if: when you sit there is nothing to tug down. . .turning around in your chair pulls it thigh high. . . someone else has to do your filing for you."

The other side was soon heard from. A less disapproving secretary parodied the first memo with a memo of her own.

"The right length," she asserted, "is dictated by your nationality, religion and the shape of your head."

"Your skirt is too long," she added, "if: when sitting you look as though you're still standing. . .when turning in your chair it gets wound up in the swivel."

A male then jumped into the fray with a memo inquiring: "Honestly now, is your face so truly fetching that it must be the only thing exposed to everyone, at all times, anywhere?"

In response, probably, to male meddling in this clearly feminine debate, another secretary switched the discussion to beards.

"How long," her memo inquired, "is too long?"

"The right length of beard," she said, "is dictated by your age, intelligence, and what your face looks like when clean shaven. It is measured by good taste, the color of your hair, and what time your five o'clock shadow appears.

"Honestly now," she asked Capitol males, "is your face so truly homely that it must be exposed to no one, at no time, nowhere?"

"Your beard is too long," the memo added, "If: little children cry with fear when they look at you. . .you use a hairdryer to dry your face. . .the Capitol pigeons seek you out during nesting season."

Ex-Beggar Says How It's Done in Book

MILAN, Italy (AP) — At an author's party introducing his book on begging, Sebastiano Amara, 25, a Sicilian, told guests all one needs to make up to $11,200 a year is "to buy a couple of crutches and wear dirty clothes, broken-down shoes and a suffering face." He said he gave up begging to work in a Milan factory because "a man has pride," but to prove his book is no fable he changed back into beggar's rags and in 15 minutes of street panhandling came up with about $16.

Mount Olympus, in Washington, gets about 200 inches of precipitation a year, the greatest amount of any spot in the conterminous U.S.

FEDERAL TAX TIPS

By AUGUST W. EICKMEYER
Colorado Springs Representative of the District Director Internal Revenue Service

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U. S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q—How do you justify settling tax debts with famous people for just a fraction of what they owe when you get the full amount from the average taxpayer?

A—The same treatment is provided all taxpayers regardless of their income or amount of tax liability. The situations where some taxpayers settle their tax obligations for less than what IRS says they owe occur with average individuals as well as famous individuals even though it does not receive the same publicity.

There are two basic situations where taxpayers settle their liability for less than the amount assessed. The first occurs where the actual amount of the tax owed is disputed by the taxpayer. In these cases, a lesser tax laibility may result following a court decision on the case or a pre-trial agreement between the taxpayer and IRS. The determining factors could be the court's interpretation of the law or the availability of records the taxpayer had not previously provided.

The second situation occurs when the amount of tax due is not questioned but the taxpayer doesn't have sufficient assets and income to make full payment over a reasonable period agreement representing the taxpayer's maximum ability to pay may be made after first determining no greater amount can be collected by any other means. Such agreements also provide that if the taxpayer's financial situation improves payment will be increased according to maximum ability to pay.

Q—Can a farmer depreciate his breeding stock?

A—It depends on how the stock was acquired. If the breeding stock was raised rather than purchased then the stock can't be depreciated. The cost of raising is deducted as a farm expense.

If the stock was purchased, then depreciation is the only way to recover this investment over its useful life. The cost of purchased breeding stock is not deductible in one year where it has a useful life of more than one year.

Q—I've been asked to send in my records on contributions. If I do that and the records are all right, will I have to make a personal trip to your office?

A—The purpose of having a taxpayer mail his records to IRS is to avoid whatever inconvenience a taxpayer may experience by having to make a personal visit to our offices. In some cases, however, the records supplied by the taxpayer are not adequate and a personal interview with the taxpayer is arranged.

So to answer your question, a personal visit to our offices will depend on the adequacy of your tax records.

Q—I want to sell some stock I own before the end of the year so that I can deduct my losses on this year's return. Does the stock actually have to be sold by the end of the year or is it enough to have notified you broker by December 31.?

A—On the sale of stock, the date your stock was sold at a loss is the one you should use for tax purposes. If this date, or trade date as it is sometimes called, came in your 1968 tax year then the transaction can be reported on your 1968 return. However, gains are reported in the year you have actual or constructive receipt of the money.

Q—I work and have to pay someone to look after my children until I get home. Can I deduct this expense?

A—Child care expenses may be deducted when certain conditions are met. Be sure to check the instructions that come with the tax forms. They explain what you have to do to qualify for this deduction.

Former Grain Dealer Faces Federal Charges

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP)—A federal grand jury indicted former grain dealer William H. Addington of Wichita, Kan., again Friday—this time adding a charge that he sold government-owned grain to milling companies.

Also indicted was William T. Allison of Topeka, former manager of Addington's Hutchinson, Kan., grain elevator.

They were accused in nine counts of one indictment of selling 1.32 million bushels of government-owned grain to milling companies. Five counts charged them with making false statements to a federal agency in 1964 and 1965.

Allison was named in a second one four-count indictment. It charged that in 1964 he converted 144,800 bushels of grain owned by the Federal Commodity Credit Corporation to his own use, made a false statement and filed a false claim for payment.

Addington, a one-time candidate for GOP nomination for governor, was named Sept. 21 in a 25-count federal indictment charging fraudulent issuance of warhouse receipts for 57.5 million pounds of sorghum.

The charge involved a warehouse at Elkhart, Kan., that was owned by Addington and managed by Kenneth E. George of Mountain View, Okla. George also was named in that indictment.

They pleaded innocent Oct. 7 and were freed on bond pending the trial.

Addington also has been convicted on a state charge of making false entry in the books of a corporation involving the Hutchinson warehouse and has been sentenced to one to seven years in the state penitentiary. He has appealed the conviction to the Kansas Supreme Court.

State Senator Would Kill Teacher Tenure

DENVER (UPI)— State Sen. Chester K. Enstrom, R-Grand Junction, today attacked teacher tenure and called on educators to be more businesslike in money matters.

"One of the first things that would be done is to stop tenure and get rid of the poorer teachers."

The Western Colorado senator's sharp remarks came in replying to United Press International's annual legislative questionnaire. The particular question that raises his ire was: "Do you personally believe higher state taxes are needed to meet increased demands for state services and education."

In answer to another question, Enstrom did say he expected the upcoming 1969 Colorado Legislature to increase state aid to public schools, possibly through repeal of the $7 per person food tax credit allowed on the state income tax for sales taxes paid on food purchases.

Enstrom also said he doubted that increased state aid for public schools would reduce local property taxes.

The major issue of the 1969 session, Enstrom said, would be more money for education. He said some increase for education was needed to offset inflation.

But he said the "more money for education issue" would be "controversial because educators have not made more education available for the money spent."

He predicted GOP Gov. John A. Love would recommend higher state taxes "at least enough to take care of inflation." He said the legislature might increase the state gasoline tax by one penny, hiking it to seven-cents-per-gallon.

Enstrom said he favored a strengthening of the Colorado Bureau of Investigation and "I have had a bill written to give the blind with a seeing eye dog some protection which he does not now have."

Enstrom also said the 24-11 edge Republicans will have in the Senate in January might lead to some problems.

"I look for some stormy times in the Senate with the large number of Republicans with a small group trying to run it," Enstrom said.

1,870 Invitations For Colorado GOP

DENVER (AP) — A total of 1,870 souvenir invitations to the inaugural ceremonies for President - elect Richard Nixon in Washington Jan. 20 have been authorized for Republican party workers in Colorado.

But Colorado has been assigned only 299 tickets for the Inaugural Ball that night. Mrs. Jo Anne Gray, GOP national committee-woman for Colorado, said these may be purchased for $35 each by persons who receive special invitations from the inaugural committee.

Pravda Blasts Mediterranean NATO Air Watch

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet newspaper Pravda charged Saturday that a new allied air watch on Soviet ships in the Mediterranean is a "typical provocation, fraught with danger."

Vladimir Yermakoov, writing in the Communist party paper said the air watch was a "violation of the norms of international law which provides for freedom of navigation in open seas in peacetime."

He charged that the Naples-based service of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, commanded by U.S. Adm. Edward Outlaw, "threatens the security of the Mediterranean peoples."

The accusation came one day after another Pravda writer attacked the United States for ending two destroyers from the Mediterranean into the Black Sea for a five-day cruise beginning today.

A spokesman of the U.S. Navy European headquarters said, "U.S. destroyers have in the past visited the Black Sea and we would expect this practice to continue."

Since the 1967 Middle East War the Soviet Union has increased the number of its ships in the Mediterranean. It has proclaimed itself a Mediterranean power and charged that U.S. 6th Fleet threatened peace in the area.

May Have Cured Sister's Cancer With His Own Cells

By JOE McGOWAN JR.
Associated Press Writer

LIMA, Peru (AP) — A young Peruvian physician says he may have cured his half-sister's cancer by giving her cancer-fighting antibodies which he created by injecting himself with her cancerous cells.

Dr. Alfonzo Zavaleta Cruzado, 34, said in an interview that the experiment was performed less than a month ago and five years are required before it will be known if his sister, Mrs. Elis Wenzell, has been cured of cancer of the uterus.

But the cancer appears to have disappeared, he added.

Zavaleta said his experiment differs in some respects from similar experiments which are being performed in the United States and elsewhere, with encouraging results.

He said he took specimens of his sister's cancer cells and injected them in his own leg. His system formed antibodies to destroy the foreign cells, the doctor explained, and the antibodies were then transferred to his sister.

Zavaleta said the experiment is similar to the body's natural tendency to form antibodies to resist bacteria or reject transplanted organs.

Dr. Oscar Miro Quesada, an associate of Zavaleta and director of the National Institutes of Health, told The Associated Press: "It is too early to know the results of Dr. Zavalea's technique. But this is a beginning."

Miro Quesada, who also is president of the Peruvian Society for Immuno-Pathology, added that he had "always felt a cure for cancer would come from a crossfire between chemistry and immunology."

He said he and Zavaleta "have been conducting chemical trials with hopeless cases—people with one foot in the tomb and the other on a banana peel" and have kept them alive for one to 1½ years before their cancer cells became resistant to the chemicals.

The Zavaleta experiment differs from similar cancer experiments in the United States in which pair of unrelated cancer patients have exchanged cells.

Quads Are Born to California Couple

SYLMAR, Calif. (AP) — Mr. and Mrs. James L. Gallion became the parents of quadruplets Friday.

"It's a little hard to take. We don't have room right now," said Gallion, 28, a sheet metal mechanic foreman. The Gallions who have a two bedroom house in the Los Angeles suburb, already have two boys.

Mrs. Gallion, 22, and the new arrivals—three girls and a boy—were reported doing "just fine." The smallest girl was one pound, 14 ounces, and the boy, two pounds, 11 ounces.

U.S. Artillery Fires on Reds Prowling DMZ

SAIGON (AP) — American artillery opened up three times Friday on targets inside the demilitarized zone, U.S. headquarters reported, after a reconnaissance plane was fired on and two groups of enemy troops were sighted.

The three incidents raised to 36 the number termed significant in the once-neutral buffer zone since the Nov. 1 halt to the bombing of North Vietnam.

No major ground fighting was reported across the country Saturday but the South Vietnamese command said the district town of Duc Phong, 83 miles north of Saigon, was hit by about 100 mortar rounds overnight. Spokesmen said initial reports told of "very light casualties" from the barrage.

PILOT

ROME (AP) — Alitalia airline pilot Marco Fugazzola, 60, logged his 1,000th transatlantic flight last week and thinks it may be a world record. He started the crossings in 1951 with Alitalia and has flown routes between Europe and North and South America ever since. Two more trips this month and he retires.

Astrological Forecast

Carroll Righter

By Carroll Righter

MONDAY'S FORECAST

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You now have a good chance to see everything in broad scope in whatever interests you. Be wise to make the decisions necessary for your future progress and advancement. Show others you think they are just great, as most everyone needs compliments and reacts favorably to them.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) If you show affection for others both you and they are inspired and you soon know how to make your future more successful. Good day to buy those important Christmas gifts. Then forget all and enjoy your special hobby.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Good day to converse with kin how you want conditions at home to be in the future and come to right decisions. Read your newspaper and find necessary comforts to add to house. Be practical.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Get in touch with those persons you want to help you with repairs to your home. Then try to be in good standing with friends. Fine day for some big shopping. Be sensible with money.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Stop fussing about little things and start thinking big if you are to gain that important position in life you so desire. Consult with successful persons. Get their advice and follow it.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You are very charming right now and get just about anything you set out to get. Plan just how you can secure the attention of some attractive person you admire. Stop feeling that you are not tall enough.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Some time spent in solitude will give you fine ideas how to get ahead faster in the future. Stop choking yourself in that small rut you have been in for such a long time. Be a more valuable person.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Listen to what a good friend has to say about gaining your most cherished aims — then out to have a good time. You have to clarify just what you want to accomplish. Then make a beeline for them.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) If you talk over that matter with a higher-up, you find you obtain the right advice for gaining your aims. Follow every regulation that applies to you. Are you keeping your figure as trim as you should have it?

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) A good day to hit on some new ideas and look into foreign matters that appeal to you. Make that long-distance call that brings the right information you want. Stop being such a sleepyhead. Be active.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You are interested in ridding yourself of obligations and can do just that in a most specialized and clever way. Be precise. The one you love is in a fine mood tonight so be a happier person.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You can rely on that partner who can give you the right idea, advice, when most needed. Liten carefully. Be more cooperative with others and you find you can have real harmony everywhere.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Work is the keynote right now if you want to make big strides forward in your career. Put in a good day and then out to the fine recreation that appeals to you. Be with mate or congenials.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one of those clever young people who will be inspired and can easily gain the goals set for himself. The sky is the limit so don't limit your progeny's thinking. Slant the education along lines of public duty or whatever is of real depth and scope. Select the right college.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

IOOF, Rebekah Lodges in UN Youth Program

Area IOOF Lodges and Rebekah Lodges, District 16, will participate in the 20th annual Odd Fellows' United Nations Pilgrimage for Youth. Arrangements are being made this week with all city and county high schools for the selection of qualified students to take part in the week of observing the United Nations at work.

Students selected for participation in the Pilgrimage will be sophomores or juniors in high school and will be chosen for their activities in community welfare, scholarship, leadership, concern for world affairs and general fitness.

The project is on the approved list of national contests of the National Association of Secondary School Principals for the twelfth year.

While at the UN, the delegates will observe the UN in action, tour the buildings, hear business conducted in the five official languages, listen to explanations of various departments and agencies, have meals in the UN Delegates' dining room and interview rerpesentatives of member nations.

They will visit International House where graduate students from more than 80 countries live under one roof and have an evening at Radio City Music Hall, a boat trip around Manhattan Island, and visit Empire State Building Observatory.

Area winners of the contest who participated in the tour last summer were Dixie Young of Simla and Bruce Young of Yoder. They were among 968 students from around the country and Canada who were on the tour.

Pinello Students on GT Tour Recently

Pupils from Pinello School were recently taken on a tour of the Gazette Telegraph and were accompanied by their teacher, Mrs. Alice Johnson.

Fremont Action Group Requests Yuletide Help

Good, clean, usable clothing for all ages is needed throughout the entire county but especially children's shoes, boots and outdoor clothing, it was announced this week by Fremont County Community Action Inc. supervisors.

These items are being collected at the Rockvale Community Center and Headstart school where there is ample room to store clothing, toys, craft supplies and any kind of equipment.

The workers are anxious to secure swing sets children have outgrown. There is always a need for good books and at this time of the year there is a particular need for boots that children have outgrown.

Businessmen and business houses may have surplus stocks such as paper supplies, odds and ends, or side-products usable for crafts or play materials for young children.

Anyone having such items is requested to take them to the Rockvale Center if possible. Anyone unable to take them to the Center is requested to call 784-6282 between the hours of 10 a.m. and 6 p.m. and someone will pick up the items.

While the goods are stored in Rockvale, they benefit families throughout the entire county, according to the Community Action. Because of the large area, it is not definitely known how many families will benefit from the supplies.

At this time of year many churches, sororities or groups of various kinds like to help needy families. Those desiring names of families who need help are requested to call the Community Action in Canon City at 275-3342 and they can furnish same.

New Hope Enterprises report it can always use items that are repairable and salable. The work there is growing and expanding and it is hoped that by next year three or four more full-time workers will be furnished by the state to help with rehabilitation work especially in teaching simple trades. At the present time there is contract work that keeps the workers busy.

Articles are being collected at the office of the West Central Guidance Center to be distributed as Christmas gifts for patients in Colorado State Hospital in Pueblo.

Favored gifts are jewelry and toilet articles for either men or women. Gifts may be left at the Guidance Center in the Fremont County Courthouse in Canon City by Dec. 15. The gifts will be taken to the hospital where they will be wrapped for Christmas.

Members of the Navy Mother's club, who visited Ft. Lyon's Veterans Hospital recently, were told patients there can always use shaving cream, after-shave lotion, any kind of toilet articles or items for personal use such as cigarettes, candy or gum. These are not distributed indiscriminately but stock-piled until there are enough gifts for each man in a ward or section to be remembered then distribution is made.

TEACHES

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — California's teacher of the year is Lawrence E. Newman, 43, who has been deaf since before he was old enough to go to school. Newman teaches mathematics in the high school department of the California School for the Deaf at Riverside.

SCSC Schedules Winter Quarter Registration

Winter quarter registration at Southern Colorado State College is scheduled to begin at 12 noon Jan. 2 and will end at 7 p. m. Jan. 3. First day of classes will follow on Jan. 6. All registration will be conducted in the College Center Ballroom on the Orman Campus.

All students will register according to times denoted on appointment cards which they will receive by mail. Contrary to previous announcements, seniors will register first, followed by juniors, sophomores, freshmen and unclassified students.

In response to a request from the President of the Associated Students of SCSC, Richard Ratliff, the registration schedule for winter quarter has been revised. Instead of having freshmen register first, as was done fall quarter, classified students will register by appointment according to the number of credits earned. This will put those students nearest graduation first in line.

Ratliff said the fall registration worked a hardship on students needing lower division courses to complete degree requirements. He reported the Student Cabinet had taken an extensive cross section of student opinion and on the basis of its findings strongly urged the administration to revise the order of registration.

Humane Association Warns Of Holiday Threat to Pets

As the holiday season draws near, the American Humane Association advises that what could be a joyous time for humans could also be disaster or death for the family cat or kitten.

Felicia Ames, director of the Friskies Cat Council, points out that those enticing decorations on the Christmas tree can easily be pulled down, batted around or even chewed. It is this last possibility that threatens the family cat with violent indigestion or possibly a hurried trip to the veterinarian.

Fragile ornaments should be hung high. They break easily and the tiny pieces can be swallowed. Icicles and tinsel can also disappear down a cat's throat. If all the tiny strands can not be pulled from kitty's mouth or throat, the animal should be taken to the nearest animal hospital for emergency treatment, Mrs. Ames advises.

Owners are also advised to beware of artificial snow which is poisonous to a cat. Also listed as deadly hazards are cotton (which is especially fascinating to Siamese cats), holly berries, rhododendron, poinsettia leaves and mistletoe.

She also comments that Christmas morning with its ribbons, string and cellophane as well as small toys, needles, pipe cleaners, flash bulbs and anything else small enough or tempting enough to chew can also spell trouble or death for a cat.

Poultry bones are described as the most dangerous of all Christmas problems. Mrs. Ames recommends that the family pet be given his turkey in a can and he will not be tempted to gnaw on brittle bones that can stick in his throat or pierce his intestinal walls.

The Humane Association lists one last reminder: "If you are entertaining with egg nog or Tom and Jerrys, remember these are ambrosia to most cats. If you don't want Kitty to end up the holidays with a hangover, keep his whiskers out of the foam. And don't overlook the appetizers. Smoked oysters, clam dip and garlic-flavored croutons are all feline fancies. They also spell bellyache."

A town with a population of 50,000 produces enough waste in a year to cover about 75 acres of land to a depth of 3 feet.

Date-Line

By Ele and Walt Dulaney

Dear Ele and Walt: Bob and I started going steady a year ago. At the time I thought he was really in love with me because he asked me to go steady knowing that I could only see him in my own living room because my parents outlawed outside dates until I turned 16.

I was 16 in May but we still haven't gone out. The reason is he bought a motorcycle and every time he asks me out its to ride on the motorcycle which my parents forbid, or go to public dances, which are also forbidden. There are lots of other things to do but he just asks me to the stuff I can't do. Do you think he's playing games with me? — Sitting Home.

Dear Sitting: Let's give your steady the benefit of the doubt and guess that frustration over the frequent turn-downs has just rusted his date ingenuity.

Give him a hand. On a piece of paper write a short list of the no-no's you face. Then under it write 20 or more outings you could say yes to enthusiastically.

Mix the no-cost ideas with low-expense suggestions and present the list to your beau with the message: "It's fun being with you any place, but I know our living room must get a bit boring for you. So here are some other places I could go and be happy to be with you." — Ele and Walt.

Dear Ele and Walt: In a short time I have to take a special qualifying test for the college I've wanted to attend for the past few years. This is extremely important to me and I'd do anything to do my best. Yet everytime I feel like this, tighten up and get a headache and do very poorly. My grades are always fine but tests are something else. Do you think some tranquilizers would help? My sister is using them at work. Is there some other suggestion you can make? — Keith.

Dear Keith: Please don't say its Harvard or bust. That will surely pump up your pressure to the breaking point, Instead, get busy and select four other schools — two moderately difficult admissions and two easy-entrance campuses.

Many people start at an easier college, do well on the long day-to-day haul, then gain admission to their dream school at mid-point freshman year or at the start of the sophomore year when the new students have thinned a bit. Having some alternate possibilities will lessen your exam sweat.

Tranquilizers? See your family doctor. He has a far better idea of your reaction to drugs than any well-meaning pharmacist could possibly have. If he does prescribe something, he'll doubtlessly suggest a trial run to insure the tranquilizer doesn't slow your brain or make you drowsy while it clams your nerves.

Our own prescription: Before the exam promise yourslf a treat after the test, "Up or down, I'll go on the town." Then forget midnight cramming and get a good night's rest. Rise early enough so you can shower leisurely, eat an adequate breakfast, listen to a favorite record and then make it to the test without an Olympic sprint. When you get the test, read and reread the directions for each section, then take a deep breath and plunge in. Good luck! — Ele and Walt.

Dear Ele and Walt: I'm 19 and self-supporting. My girl finishes high school in June and we plan to get married. We know we won't be able to afford a fancy house or nice furniture but that's okay with us. We'll work together to get the things we want over the years. Already we've saved $750 in our bank accout in half a year.

The problem is her parents and mine had a meeting this past Sunday and they want us to limit our dates to once a week and forget all the marriage ideas.

They say, "Get to know each other better before you think of marriage," but that doesn't make sense. How can we get to know each other better when we can hardly see each other? And how can we forget marrige when we've been working toward it for half a year? We don't want to elope. So please suggest how we can straighten out their thinking. — Linc.

Dear Linc: You need an arbitrator. Check with your minister or doctor and see what marriage counseling services he can recommend. Set an appointment to meet with the counselor first as a couple privately, and then plan on a second session when both sets of parents can join you. The counselor can guide the discussion so all concerned explore their feelings and look for the best outcome for your relationship.

When you marry someone, you do in truth also marry his family, so do your best now to work out your difficulties before saying I do. — Ele and Walt. (A Bell-McClure Syndicate Feature)

Colorado's Water Code Is Due for Revision at Legislature Session

EDITOR'S NOTE—Last year the Colorado Legislature appropriated almost $200,000 to gather reports the lawmakers said should help them in updating the state's water laws. The Colorado Water Code, called by Colorado Water Conservation Director Felix Sparks "antiquated" faces its severest test in the coming session of the legislature in January. The following is the first of a three-part series on one of the reports paid for by the people of Colorado and prepared by Clyde-Criddle-Woodward, Inc., of Denver.

By RAY BROUSSARD
Gazette Telegraph Staff Writer

Though Colorado's water code is a workable one and needs only legal, reasonable upgrading, Colorado legislators come January must find ways of allowing well pumping in order to prevent in the state a "static economy and stagnation of water resource development."

That is one of the most significant conclusions made in a report just issued by the engineering firm of Clyde-Criddle-Woodward. The report, for which the Colorado Legislature appropriated money last year, will be presented to them before the 47th General Assembly convenes Jan. 8 in Denver.

One of the ways that the state engineer might effect harmonious relations between surface and ground pumpers, the report suggests, is by exercising "tighter controls and more direction." And changes must be made, the report concludes, to limit a water right to a period of use. More money is asked for the state engineer's office.

The report concludes that a poorly-paid, ill-staffed state engineer's office resulted in the indiscretions that resulted in Fowler farmer Roger Fellhauer's well being shut down more than two years ago. The Colorado Supreme Court agreed. More development by wells should be allowed to coexist with surface diversions, says the report, but a more properly run state engineer's office will be able to control the waters more efficiently.

By tighter controls, the report means the state engineer's office should be in a better position to enforce laws that have a reasonably clear meaning. By upgrading the laws, by "tightening them so that they have proper direction," cases like Fellhauer's would have been averted.

But, it was pointed out, the state engineer's office used "arbitrary and capricious means" to shut down Fellhauer's well because it had no clear, concise laws to follow in pre-supposing that Fellhauer was breaking the law by diverting from a well 400 feet from the Arkansas River and thereby using water that belonged to somebody else.

Fellhauer's case also brought out the fact that Colorado must find some way to have the "surface diverters and the ground pumpers live in harmony or there will be nothing but discord for another 100 years."

Only within relatively recent years have the large water users who are generally agricultural been able to drill wells and pump water profitably. But well development, after 100 years of surface pumping in the state, offers a major threat which must be handled by the Colorado Legislature.

Improved technology in drilling, plus more efficient and dependable pumps and motors, encourages large scale drilling of wells. But the encroachment of pumping on surface streams whose base flows were long ago over-appropriated has created hostilities among water users.

The historical water policies of Colorado as included in the state constitution, water experts say, assure that all waters of streams are public property and subject to appropriation by the people of the state for beneficial uses. Priority of rights among different users designate domestic water first, agricultural second and manufacturing third.

Ground water users were not included in this original declaration and therein lies the source of the multitude of battles that has ensued practically since the end of World War II when the pumps came into prominence.

Rights-of-way for conveyance structures can only be obtained by water appropriators through the payment of "just compensation to the owner of the property on which the storage or conveyance structures are to be built."

Although many voices of surface water users had been raised claiming interference to their rights by the pumpers, the shouts have only recently reached the ears of the water administrators, the legislature and the courts.

A report just issued by the Consulting Engineering firm of Clyde-Criddle-Woodward, Inc., on "Colorado Water Administration," states that "after 100 years of water development and use, the people of the state are greatly concerned over how they will get water in the future."

The report points out that the owners of the earliest rights, developed "without meaningful controls," are now concerned that "their" water will be taken from them or at best, they will be forced to improve their systems and practices while the new users and those still without water are insisting on a share of this public resource.

A water code and its sound administration, the report avers, provides a "legal base on which technical and financial help may be obtained for beneficial development of the water resources, whether by individuals, local groups or by agencies of state or Federal government."

The engineering firm in its report points out that because of the aridity of most of the farm land of Colorado, irrigation was found necessary for successful agriculture by the earliest settlers. Colorado was admitted to the Union by proclamation of President Grant Aug. 1, 1876.

However, the people had already adopted a state constitution which, among other things, "declared the water of streams to be public property dedicated for use of the people of the state under the doctrine of appropriation."

Priority of time, preference between kinds of users, condemnation of rights-of-way and means of limited unfair assessments against the water users were all dealt with under the constitutional law adopted in convention March 14, 1876.

As water use in Colorado developed, governmental policies were expressed by laws and the laws had to be administered by a "responsible state agency." Because of this, a general water code was adopted and the position of the state engineer established and an engineer appointed to administer the water laws.

But, as the report points out, water rights and their administration are not static. Problems continue to develop because the water resources remain rather constant but demands for water grow rapidly. During the state's period of growth and development, agencies were established to deal with water problems other than administration of rights.

Each new agency spent some time getting itself oriented so that it would cork with other older agencies. Into this category fall the Colorado Water Conservation Board and the Water Pollution Control Board.

Irrigation is known to have been practiced in Colorado along the Arkansas River near La Junta as early as 1840. Mexican and Indians diverted water from the stream to flood the adjoining land. By 1852 formerly transient white trappers settled among the Mexican and Indian population and helped expand irrigation along the Rio Grande, Arkansas and Platte Rivers.

The first priority for use of irrigation water in Colorado was recognized by the courts at San Luis on the Rio Grande April 10, 1852. Irrigation development was expanded along the Rio Grande, Arkansas and Platte Rivers by small groups, partnerships and individuals. By 1870 there were many small tracts being irrigated in the state.

Horace Greeley organized the Union Colony in 1869 and settled on the Cache La Poudre River in 1870 at what is now Greeley. This colony actually began the irrigation agricultural empire which now exists in Colorado. An rea of more than 30,000 acres, made up of farms from 80 to 160 acres each, was brought under irrigation by this colony.

The period from 1870 to 1890 saw rapid expansion of irrigation along the South Platte, Arkansas and Colorado Rivers, but not all these developments were considered sound. There was, according to the report, considerable speculation, overexpansion, poorly constructed works and inadequate water supplies.

Of significance is the fact that the courts repudiated the common law doctrine of riparian rights in early cases from 1872 to 1882, ruling that the doctrine of appropriation had existed from the time of the earliest appropriations of water within the boundaries of the state.

Colorado early established the principle thaat "ownership and control of water rested in the state and that management of canals should be by the water users."

From those earliest years to the present there has been controversy over water, but with each succeeding decade, more people have become involved. Today, pressures against water administration policy and possibly in the law itself, makes change seem inevitable.

The report concludes, in this first installment, by pointing out that "modern conditions require that various water rights must be permitted to cause some reasonable mutual interference with other rights to avoid a static economy and stagnation of water resource development."

CC Professors To Be Honored For Writings

Two Colorado College history professors, Harvey L. Carter and Frank H. Tucker, will be honored at a special luncheon Thursday at the El Paso Club in recognition of the publication of their recent books.

Prof. Carter is the author of a new edition of the memoirs of Kit Carson published by the University of Oklahoma Press. Publication of the book, "Dear Old Kit" coincides with the 100th anniversary of Carson's death.

Dr. Tucker's book, "The White Conscience" published by Frederick Ungar Publishing Co. New York, will be available Jan. 7. The book documents the thesis that the European and American white man carries a heavy and unacknowledged burden for its mistreatment of nonwhite countries and races over the centuries. Publishers Weekly describes it as "drawing on Carl Jung's pioneering analysis of the white man's mind and conduct, and as a searching appraisal intended as an accounting which hopefully, by laying bare the facts, will help dispel the white man's self-delusions."

Historians from Colorado College, the Air Force Academy and the University of Colorado Center here will attend the luncheon along with President Lloyd E. Worner and Dean George Drake of Colorado College and author Marshall Sprague.

The University of Colorado Center will be represented by Thomas Reeves, assistant professor of history, while guests from the Air Force Academy will include Col. Alfred Hurley, Lt. Col. Victor Sutch, Major John Schlight, Maj. Oakah Jones and Col. George Fagan. Colorado College faculty members attending will be Carroll Malone, professor emeritus of history, Louis Geiger, history department chairman, William Hochman, Tom K. Barton, Roger Heacock, Robert McJimsey and Arthur Pettit.

W. H. Bowman Died Friday in Canon City

William Henry Bowman, a former resident of Colorado Springs, died Friday in a Canon City hospital. Funeral services will be held at 10:30 a.m. Monday in Holt-Wilson Mortuary's Chapel of the Garden with the Rev. Willard Ballard officiating.

Burial will be in Lakeside Cemetery in Canon City.

Mr. Bowman was born March 25, 1896 in DeQueen, Ark. The family moved to Oklahoma in 1907 where they lived for 30 years, moving here in 1937. They lived here for eight years, then moved to Mountain Home, Ark., where Mr. Bowman operated a gift shop. While in Mountain Home he was active in business and civic affairs and was president of the Chamber of Commerce.

He retired about seven years ago and moved to Canon City. He belonged to the First Baptist Church and the Wray McKinstry Post, American Legion, having been a veteran of World War I.

Mr. Bowman was married on April 12, 1918, in Tulsa, Okla., to the former Miss Myrtle Kennedy. The couple celebrated their Golden Wedding anniversary last Easter Sunday.

Survivors include Mr. Bowman's widow in Canon City; a son, William H. Bowman Jr. of Boulder; a daughter, Mrs. Robert Genschorck of Colorado Springs; seven grandchildren; four great-grandchildren, and two brothers and four sisters, C. W. Bowman of Oklahoma City, R. L. Bowman, Miss Hazel Bowman, Mrs. William R. Biggs, Mrs. L. M. Windle, and Mrs. Floyd Cate, all of Muskogee, Okla.

LATVIAN CEREMONY — City Councilman Larry Ochs Saturday broke the ground where a group of former Latvian citizens, now residents of the Pikes Peak region, will erect a statue and fountain to express their gratitude for the freedom they found in the United States. Some 2,000 Latvians fled their country when the Communists took over in the early 1950s. About 250 have settled in this region. Others in the above photograph who participated in the ceremony were, from left, Mike Collins, architect, Ansis Berzins, Joseph Reich and John Eglitis.

Groundbreaking Held for New Latvian Memorial

Ground was broken Saturday at the downtown site where a group of former Latvian citizens, who came to this country in the early 1950s to escape Communist oppression, will erect a fountain and statue.

The combination figure, which will be about 10 feet tall, is to be erected on the center parking at the intersection of Cascade and Pikes Peak Avenues.

Some 50 persons turned out in the biting cold wind for the 11 a.m. ceremony.

"The flame of freedom burns hotly in the breasts of these Latvians," Councilman Larry Ochs, representing the city of Colorado Springs, told the group.

Noting that about 2,000 had fled Latvia after the Communist takeover, Ochs said the Pikes Peak region was fortunate in that some of them came to this region. It has been estimated that about 250 have settled in the Pikes Peak area.

Ochs said it was most appropriate that the ceremony recognizing the Latvians' flight to freedom was to be started on Dec. 7, commonly known as Pearl Harbor Day when the American people also started a major campaign for freedom.

"On behalf of the citizens of Colorado Springs," Ochs said, "I rejoice with the Latvians for this thing of beauty" to be presented the city.

The statue to be erected is a representation of an ancient Latvian harp to symbolize a song of freedom.

Other speakers at Saturday's brief ceremony included Rev. W. A. Enge of Immanuel Lutheran Church, and Carl Welsh of the State Game, Fish and Parks Department.

'The Littlest Wiseman' At Chapel of Our Saviour

The Chapel of Our Saviour in the Broadmoor will again present the Christmas play "The Littlest Wiseman" this year. The play was written by Lloyd and Dorothy Shaw and has been presented annually ince 1917 by the Chapel of Our Saviour.

Arthur G. Sharp, associated with the Colorado College faculty and director of the college's Dramatic Club, is again directing the play.

Harold "Bucky" Ingersoll, a professional sound engineer of the region, is also helping with the play. Stanley Myers is working fith him on lighting techniques.

Music for the play will be under the direction of Ben Gahart, music director, arranger and organist, who will conduct both the large adult choir and the children's choir in voicing the carols of a past generation.

The cast includes the Rev. James Burnette, Clark Keith, Hal Simmons, Jack Williams, Hal simmons, jack Williams, Alex Barnsbee, David Roberts and Nicholas Nance.

The Angels include Leslie Pearce, Twinkle Puffer, Laura Anderson, Lea Bloom, Norma Lee Juinlan, Carol Curtis, Donna Sherrard, Kista Sherrard, Brookie Shoemaker, Becky Wilson and Barbara Puffer.

The adult choir soloists are Betty Straeb, Mary Strunk, Patricia Washburn, Walter Wilson with Nancy Dwight, Jennifer Dwight, Joan MacDonald, Barbara Bradley, Mary Bennett, Marissa Rolofson, Shirley Dearing, Dorothy Brown, Susan Brown, Lorena Bymaster, Gordon Strunk, Richard Beidleman, Laurie Dawson, Keith Dawson and Polly King Ruhtenberg.

The children's choir includes Catherine Ainsworth, Mary Ainsworth, Patty McGee, Ann Morath, Martha Morath, Susan Morath, Marianne Thombs, Ann Canon, Lynn Davis, Lori Krieger, Lynn Weiler and Sarah Inman.

There will be no admission charge. Performaces will be held Dec. 16, 17 and 18 at 8 p.m. at the Chapel of Our Saviour, 8 Fourth Street, Broadmoor. Professional babysitters will be available in the church parlor. Reservations may be made at the church and picked up well in advance of the performance. Telephone 633-2667 until 5 p.m. daily, and 634-2045 daily until 10 p.m.

DISCUSS CHRISTMAS PLAY — Arthur Sharp, left, producer and director of "The Littlest Wiseman" and Harold Ingersoll, sound engineer, discuss high points in the colorful nativity scene in the pulpit of the Chapel of Our Saviour in Broadmoor for three performances Dec. 16, 17, and 18 at 8 p.m.

More Hearings Into Chicago Riots Planned

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of a House subcommittee probing disorders at the Democratic National Convention sees a need for further hearings which he says so far have shown Communists took part in the bloody August rioting in Chicago.

Missouri Democrat Richard Ichord said Friday his special House subcommittee on Un-American Activities plans to examine the transcript of hearings held this week and in October.

"I feel there will be need for further hearings," he told newsmen after winding up sessions, best described as sedate compared to the October sessions.

Although one witness wore Santa Claus suit and several used obscenities from the stand, there were none of the walkouts and demonstrations that disrupted the earlier hearings.

Several witnesses made no secret of their contempt for the committee, calling it "cowardly" and "racist." But denials that they were Communist or that they had planned the disorders with help from Havana, Moscow and Hanoi were given unemotionally.

Ichord, at his news conference, said the record shows that leaders of the Chicago demonstrations "collaborated with the North Vietnamese and the Viet Cong." He said the hearings have shown that "Communists and various other revolutionaries participated in the demonstrations."

As the curtain fell on the current phase of the inquiry, the existence of a government bug which federal authorities said was used in "interests of national security" came to light.

Yippie leader Jerry Rubin, wearing a Santa Claus suit, told newsmen after a brief, closed appearance before the committee that the government had tapped his telephone.

Police Report Two House Burglaries

Two house burglaries were reported to police Friday.

One of the victims, Arthur Herman Langman, 2400 N. Wood Ave., said the thieves entered his house, apparently through an unlocked door, while he and his wife were gone for slightly less than two hours.

Missing were two watches, a gold ring, a cigaret lighter and between $25 and $30 in cash.

Dorothy May Avery reported that someone broke down the rear door at a residence at 622 N. Nevada Ave. She said a watch, electric razor and some other jewelry was missing.

Mrs. Avery said she was the caretaker of the property in the absence of the owner, Elva E. Camden, and would have to check with Mrs. Camden before an accurate list of the missing items could be made.

That boy JESSE JAMES MORLAN is Maverick's kind of neighbor and I've been worrying about him since October 24 when he was shot aiding officers stop a couple of burglars. After checking with the Police Department some time ago Ol' Maverick knew that his faith in Colorado Springs was not misplaced for the officers there were also concerned and were making plans to help Jesse. They told us that they were going to talk to the fine folks at Sertoma and Quota Clubs and outlined their plan for "CATLE" (Citizen's Aid to Law Enforcement Fund) a perpetual fund which is private — and which will aid citizen's who are injured while helping law enforcement.

I knew that NONE of the folks I knew could stand by and watch a crime or watch somebody being killed like those people in New York did a few years ago. Out here we don't operate that way.

A separate deal from the CATLE but which I did not want to publicize until after the Police Department had their say is the Gazette Telegraph's "Maverick Award Plaque" of which Jesse James Morlan will be the first recipient. We'll keep all you readers posted on how the fund progresses. If each one that reads this would send just a little we'd have more than enough!

Dear Maverick:

Enjoy reading your comments in the Gazette Telegraph and would like for you to clarify the following:

According to the new sales tax law that was passed the unedible products in a grocery store are billed at 4 per cent sales tax and the edible products are billed at 3 per cent sales tax. What the situation is the tab is run up at the grocery store with the unedible products listed first, then 4 per cent sales tax and then the groceries and then the subtotal, and then the 3 per cent tax on he unedible products, the 4 per cent charge for sales tax and the groceries, as per tab enclosed.

Why should a person be taxed for the unedible products at 4 per cent, and then taxed 3 per cent again on the unedible products plus the charge for the 4 per cent sales tax?

The difference is only 1 cent on this tab, but could be consid-

FIRST 'MAVERICK' AWARD — Jesse James Morlan, second from right, accepts the first 'Maverick' award as Dr. Harold Will of the Pikes Peak Sertoma Club, far left, and Police Chief Oren Boling look on. The award was made in ceremonies at the police department by Steve Williams, GT city editor, on behalf of 'Maverick.' The Special Recognition Award was made for "outstanding bravery" on the part of Morlan, who attempted to capture a suspected burglar and was shot in the stomach Oct. 14. The Pikes Peak Sertoma Club and the Police Department have set up a special fund to help Morlan pay off some of the medical bills incurred because of the shooting, and local residents can send contributions to CATLE, P.O. Whitney Young Urges More Executive Jobs

DENVER (AP)—Whitney M. Young Jr., executive director of the National Urban League, encouraged delegates to the American Hotel & Motel Association's national convention Friday to open executive jobs to Negroes.

"Very few are found at the desk or in management," Young said. Negroes have traditionally held only menial jobs, he said, and as a result "we've seen Americans at their best—and at their vulgar worst."

As a young man in Louisville, Ky., Young operated a hotel elevator by day and washed dishes at night.

YOUTHFUL REPRESENTATIVES — Through the Youth and Government Program sponsored by the YMCA, teen-agers can go to the seat of their government and learn at first hand what the democratic process is all about.

Student Citizenship Training Program Sponsored by YMCA on Local Level

High school students in the Colorado Springs area may be interested to know that they can go to Denver and be a senator for a day. According to Phil Brown, YMCA program director, the Youth and Government Program was established by the YMCA in 1936. He says, "Today 39 states are deeply involved in this citizenship training program while several others are taking steps to begin it."

The 15-18 year old members are those who show the greatest participaiton. Usually, clubs select delegates to the youth legislature in October and these delegates receive materials and briefings arranged by their area, state or local YMCA once a team of several teen-agers has surveyed their community and determined a social need which can be met by new state level legislation they begin consulting with local professional people and doing research on the problem. After this preparation they are able to write a bill and in February or March, most states conduct pre-legislative conferences where young legislators can test their bills.

The Youth Legislature is held in the legislative chambers of the state capitol building. Those teen-agers not working as legislators may act as press reporters who write stories on the enactments and send them to towns throughout the state. A youth governor and his cabinet consider bills passed by the youth legislature and can either veto them or pass them.

The participants in the legislature are divided into groups which work in the committees and groups which work in the legislative halls. Some of the youth act as lobbyists.

Potential lawyers can practice in the Youth Model Supreme Courts. The main learning process here involves judicial review.

Youth legislatures have offered original legal ideas and unique solutions to social problems which have sometimes been taken up by the bona fide legislature.

The climax of the Youth and Government Program is the convening of the teen-age governors from each state in Washington, D C. where they study this country's political system at first hand in a five-day workshop. They have the opportunity to speak with officials in key offces and enjoy a visit with the President.

The purpose of the Youth and Government Program is to teach young people what the democratic process really is, and in many cases these teen-agers later become political office holders themselves.

Any local youth interested in participating in the program should contact Phil Brown, YMCA program director.

Colorado Medical Society Notes

Everyone knows about the so-called "whiplash" injury. Ask your friends and neighbors, or the man at the service station. They'll diagnose it for you.

The term is used so frequently in courts and insurance claims that it sometimes is a bit difficult to know whether it describes a medical condition or a legal cause for action.

Two questions can be asked about "whiplash":

Is there such an injury, medically. Yes, there is.

Are such injuries frequently blown up out of proportion by legal and emotional overlays? Undoubtedly.

It's really not surprising that neck injuries of this kind are a focus of attention in these days of crowded streets and freeways when the heavy, fast traffic leads to many rear-end collisions. Anyone bumped from the rear can sufer a head snap leading to neck pain or headaches which may persist for a few days or several months; on the other hand, not every rear-end collision produces such an injury automatically.

The human head weighs about ten pounds. The vertebral structure and masculature of the neck which support this ten pounds are thin for the job they do. The important muscles in this connection are at the back of the neck. They are anti-gravity muscles, holding the head up. The muscles in the front of the neck have other functions. Swallowing, as an example.

When an automobile is hit from the rear, the vehicle moves forward suddenly and unexpectedly. The motorist's body, supported by the seat only from hip to shoulder (except in newer cars with headrests), moves forward with the car. But his unsupported head and neck snap backward. As the body moves forward and the head backward, physical forces create a compression backward and downward in the neck.

The the reverse force takes over, throwing the head and neck forward. There is thus a sudden forceful extension of the neck backward, followed by a forward flexion. In the course of this rapid aft-and-fore movement, the muscles and ligaments of the neck can suffer strains.

Since the functions of the neck vertebrae and muscles are to support the head and permit it an extremely wide range of forward, backward and pivoting movements, the strain of the "whiplash" may be accommodated without injury. In other cases, the muscles may be over-strained.

Often there are no immediate symptoms. Eight to ten hours or a day later, stiffness, aching and soreness may develop in the muscles of the head and neck, usually in the anti-gravity muscles at the back of the neck. The pain may last for a few days or several months, usually improving as time passes.

The muscles at the back of the neck have to work all day holding the head up, and the discomfort may become worse late in the day and may extend to the shoulders. There may be a headache radiating upward from the back of the neck, and this, too, may get worse as the day progresses.

Since it is difficult for a physician to determine precisely the extent of the muscle and ligament injury—X-rays do not show injuries to soft tissues well—it is almot impossible to ascertain objectively the extent of any pain or temporary disability or to say how long the discomfort will last. This uncertainty obviously leaves the way open to malingering and fraudulent legal claims.

Old Doc Experience advises:

—High headrests in automobiles will do much to minimize "whiplash" injuries, since the sudden backward movement of the head will be limited. Such headrests will be required on all new cars after January 1.

—Whiplash injuries are really not serious in terms of life or limb, and the symptoms disappear as the muscles and ligaments heal and return to full strength.

—Treatment includes muscle-relaxant medicines to counteract the spasms which occur with muscle pain, mild pain relievers, and local heat. It is usually a good idea for the patient to rest lying down for an hour or two every day to take the weight of his head off his neck.

erably more depending on the unedible products purchased.

M.H.

They shouldn't! I couldn't believe my eyes when I first read your letter and then checked the tape. Then I started checking myself at every store where I was charged separately. I was SHOCKED at the discrepancies I noted.

One thing which was different on most of the tabs I checked. I was charged 1 per cent tax on the unedible products and in most cases this 1 per cent was added on to the total on which I was then charged 3 per cent tax. So I paid tax on a tax too!

Shoppers, I think maybe you should check your tickets — add them up and complain if you're being charged twice on this tax.

Dear Maverick:

Vumore Video Corp. of Colo. (more commonly known as Cablevision) dug up the parkway on our street last winter to install their cable and black boxes. We were told that the parkway was to be restored by seeding since sodding cannot be done during the winter months. This statement was made to the local press on numerous occasions by Cablevision and the Colorado Springs Public Works Dept. We are still waiting for the promised event. Perhaps they have decided that seeding won't work either.

During installation of the cable they dug up stones, chunks of concrete, old boards, etc. These were left on top of the ground along with pieces of insulation from their cable. The City Manager gave property owners an August 5 deadline for an "Obedience to Ordnance" to clean up the mess or they (the city) would do it and charge us for doing it — plus a 5 per cent charge for inspection and incidentals.

When will Cablevision be given a date by when they will restore the parkway or do City Officials expect the property owner to again improve the parkway at our own expense so that they can mutilate it at will at some future date since the city does own the parkway.

Disgruntled Property Owner

Podnah, if they haven't come back and restored your property by now then get on the phone and give them a call. They have posted a very large bond which is to insure that they will restore each property.

There have been very few complaints about this so someone apparently slipped up in your case.

Dear Maverick:

I read your column every evening and sure do enjoy it. Now my big gripe is all the dust out in our Nob Hill area and I thought when the city took us in (annexed) that we might get some roads paved but so far no paving. You ought to be out here especially in the late afternoons and evenings. You can't see anything but a cloud of dust. Would appreciate any word you could give us on this problem.

J.S.

You and your neighbors can send a letter into the Department of Public Works at City Hall. Tell them you want your street paved and that you want it to be included in the next improvement district. They will then send out letters to all the folks on your street to see if the majority of them want the street paved. (If the majority of the people DO then the Director of Public Works will present the petition to the City Council and they will decide whether to include you or not.) This paving, curbs and gutters will cost you money. But if it is any great amount you will not have to pay it in one year — it will be prorated over several years.

You may find to your surprise that the reason you don't have paving is because that your neighbors don't want to pay for the improvement. (If they'd done it years ago — it would have cost a lot less.)

Dear Maverick:

I have been curious about this matter for several months — in fact, since the day I paid a $25 fine for speeding. A friend of mine had to pay the same amount last week and is also wondering about this. Just how is the amount of each fine determined? I have always felt the amount of the fine was too stiff. True, I was guilty, but not THAT guilty! I have read of individuals being fined lesser amounts for being drunk and disorderly, among other things. I was so determined not to ever speed again that I stayed within that stupid 20 mile an hour limit in certain blocks of East Costilla Street even though I was given dirty looks and the horn many, many times. That 20 mph limit has since been raised to 30. Where were the patrolmen while the 5:00 traffic was moving down that street?

While we are on this subject, just where does this money collected go and how is it used? Suggestion: There are many holes in many well-traveled streets that could be filled — sure would help on tire and wheel alignment costs. Thank you for your answer.

D.M.H.

Podnah, the judge is the one who decides what to fine you. He can give either the minimum or the maximum or anything in between. He is governed by your record and the circumstances of the ticket, etc. (I don't suppose we'd be too far out of line if we said he might be governed by how he happens to feel at the time too.) He might have been presiding at a case where some youngster was killed by a speeder and might have a "thing" about it.

It won't hurt you to slow down a little bit. I think it's just your pride (and I'm glad that's all!).

As for those fines — they go into the "general fund" to be used for the city's expenses.

Dear Maverick:

First I want to compliment you on your good ol' horse sense. That is the best compliment I could give anyone in these days when idiocy is running rampant.

I have wondered for a long time why an otherwise wholesome (for the times at least) city allows a bunch of degenerates to hang around right down town.

The last time I walked past this place a couple of seedy looking characters were sitting on the sidewalk eating sunflower seeds and spitting the hulks on the street while several other hippies were milling around yelling.

Doesn't Colorado Springs have an ordinance against loitering or littering? I'm sure you won't be influenced by "they have their rights" nor the communistic definition of the word "discrimination." (We must be discriminating to have a wholesome city. Right?)

V.P.

Yep, there's laws against loitering and laws against littering and laws against practiaclly anything that comes to mind. I don't think you should judge a whole group of folks or even one person by just what they look like. I've seen a lot of pretty grubby cowhands and they were the straightest bunch I've ever been around and I've met a lot of crooks with clean hands. Don't think spitting sunflower seeds on the street will have much of an effect on the outcome of history.

Seems to me that Colorado Springs ought to be big enough to have room for "hippies" and for folks like you and me and STILL be a wholesome place — don you really think so?

If you have a problem send it to The Maverick, P.O. Box 1779, in care of The Gazette Telegraph, Colorado Springs, Colorado 80901 and if it is of general interest to others we will try to answer it. Be sure to include your name, address and telephone number. The Maverick will keep you anonymous but he must know who you are.

Three Ent Men Earn Decorations

Three members of the 4th Weather Wing (MAC) were recently awarded the Air Force Commendation Medal (AFCM) by Col. John C. Scales, Wing Vice Commander.

Receiving decorations were Maj. Thomas D. Damon, Maj. Joseph K. Lambert and Staff Sgt. Serapio Munoz, all assigned to the Ent AFB Complex.

Maj. Damon, Field Operations Officer for the Solar Forecast Facility, was awarded for meritorious service while assigned to Hqrs. Air Weather Service as a member of the Directorate of Aerospace Requirements and Special Projects from 1 Aug. 1966 to 15 Feb., 1968.

Maj. Lambert, Officer in Charge of the Solar Forecast Center, Cheyenne Mountain, was awarded the First Oak Leaf Cluster, (AFCM) for his work as Officer in Charge of the Manila Observatory from 6 Aug. 1966 to 21 Aug., 1968.

Sgt. Munoz was decorated for his accomplishments while serving as NCOIC of the Airmen Assignments Unit, Consolidated Base Personnel Office, Orlando AFB, Fla. from 30 May 1965 to 1 May, 1968. Sgt. Munoz works in the 4 Wea Wg CBPO.

All three men are recent assignees to the Colorado Springs area.

Capt. G. G. Dennis Logs Final Mission

Capt. Guy St. G. Dennis, son of Mrs. Peggie Dennis, 1007 N. Weber St., recently logged his 404th and final combat mission in A-37 aircraft over Vietnam.

The fighter pilot, who has served with the 604th Special Operations Squadron at Bien Hoa Air Base, is scheduled for reassignment at England AFB, La., as an A-37 instructor for the Tactical Air command.

During his combat tour, Captain Dennis earned the Distinguished Flying Corss (DFC), and 19 Air Medals for his achievements in the attack version of the Cessna T-37 Trainer. He also was awarded the Vietnamese Cross of Gallantry for his support of Vietnamese troops during a ground operation early this year.

He is an Air Force Academy graduate.

Memorial Hospital to Honor 69 Employees

Center Prof To Speak at LA Seminar

Dr. Charles Hinkle, associate professor of business administration at the Colorado Springs Center of the University of Colorado, will be one of five speakers at an orientation seminar offered by American Management Association, Inc., Dec. 16-18 at the Ambassador Hotel in Los Angeles.

Hinkle will speak three times at the seminar on "Effective Use of Simulation as a Management Tool." He will discuss "History and Development of Simulation as a Management Tool," "Developing the Problem Statement" and "Analyzing and Interpreting Results."

Simulation is used today in business to solve complex problems to which correct solutions were almost impossible to reach previously because of variables.

Other speakers at the seminar will be J. Walter Lautenberger Jr., a San Francisco consultant; Philiv Kiviat of Rand Corp., Santa Monica, Calif.; Dr. John E. Gessford, manager of industrial operations research at Stanford Research Institute, Menlo Park, Calif., and R. L. Hennessey, staff supervisor of systems analysis and industrial engineering with the Southern California Co., Los Angeles.

A high school graduate earns an average of 15 per cent more than a school dropout, the Labor Department Bureau of Employment Security says.

HOW TO TELL—"If you grab a branch and say 'ouch' it's a spruce," according to Dr. John W. Marr, University of Colorado biologist. Marr is shown examining the needles of this small blue spruce tree. He says the spruce has a good shape for a Christmas tree, but dries out rapidly and loses its needles. He says the sub-alpine or "true" fir and the Douglas fir are best for Christmas trees.

CU Biologist Describes Ideal Christmas Tree

A University of Colorado biologist who has spent much of his life in the timberlands of the state has some definite views about the kind of tree to bring home at ths Christmas.

Dr. John W. Marr of CU's Institute of Arctic and Alpine Research says the sub-alpine or "true" fir is the best evergreen for Chrstmas trees, but he adds the tree is not common in the areas where Christmas trees are usually cut.

Marr's second choice for a Christmas tree is the Douglas fir, a tree commonly found in the areas where the U. S. Forest Servce allows the public to cut its own trees.

The Douglas fir can be distinguished from the true fir by its buds. Douglas fir buds are brown and sharp pointed; the buds on a true fir are blunt and waxy gray.

he sub-alpine fir has a pleasant odor, soft green needles that dry out slowly, and a good shape. he Douglas fir has a good shape, usually with a broad base and tapering to a point at the top. It also lasts about as well as the sub-alpine fir.

Two types of pine trees—the lodgepole and the ponderosa—are common at lower elevations where many of Colorado's yule trees are cut.

Marr says the main characteristic of these trees is they have needles from two to four inches long—too long, he says, to make them ideal Christmas trees. Furthermore, according to the CU biologist, the ponderosa does not have a good shape for a Christmas tree. He adds, "I have seen some lodgepole pines that have good shapes. Those are the ones that have grown in the open, away from other trees."

Marr says both pines retain their needles well.

He believes the best shaped Christmas tree is the spruce, but he finds the spruce wanting as a holday ornament because the tree dries out very rapidly. Marr says the spruce is easy to identify because, "If you grab a branch and you say 'ouch' because of the prickly sensation, it's a spruce."

Sub-alpne and Douglas firs are best for wreaths, says Mars, for the same reasons they are best for Christmas trees. He recommends mixing in a few pine branches for an attractive variety of texture. Marr says, "Limber pine branches are quite graceful and, as their name suggests, easy to work with. The needles of the limber pine occur in clusters of five, rather than clusters of two or three in ponderosa and lodgepole pines."

Whether you select a fir, pine or spruce for your Christmas tree, Marr says the biggest thing to keep in mind is the fire hazard. Evergreen trees, he warns have certain chemicals in their needles that burn very easily.

To reduce the fire hazard in the family Christmas tree, Marr suggests that its trunk should be put in a bucket of water and kept in a cool place until its decorated. After the tree is decorated, it should be kept with its base in water or sprinkled lightly with water.

Marr also notes, "Some people suggest that if you make a fresh cut before you put the tree in water, there wll be better conduction of water into the trunk." This, says Marr, is the same principle used for cut flowers to make them last longer.

Marr adds that someone in the famly should look over the tree every day and if the needles around a bulb have turned brown, the lights should be moved to a greener area. The brown needles mean the tree is becoming dangerously dry.

Marr suggests kinnikinnick for Christmas greenery around the room. This is a creeping evergreen shrub with a rich green color and bright red berries common to the Colorado mountains. One drawback to the kinniknnick is that the berres drop off easily.

Evergreen cones also play a role in Chrstmas decoations. Marr favors ponderosa pine cones for wreaths and other decoratons because they are abundant in the foothills and, when fresh, the cones have a pleasing shape and glossy brown color.

Other cones good for decorations are the Douglas fir cones, whch have little tongue-like projections between the scales, and the Colorado blue spruce cones, which are 3 to 4 inches long and have an attractive light tan color when fresh. Marr says limber pine cones are decorative, but they have one serious drawback — resin deposits on the tips of the cones make them sticky.

Chamber Ensemble to Perform at CC Tuesday

The Chamber Ensembles of Colorado College, under the direction of Dr Albert Seay, will be in concert at Armstrong Auditorium at 8 p. m. Tuesday. The program is open to the community without charge.

Three compositions will be performed by the ensembles, which are made up of both students and members of the music department faculty at the college.

The "Serenata" by Casella will be played by the Ensemble Quintet. Members of this group include Dr. Earl A. Juhas, associate professor of music, on the clarinet and students Craig Beeson of Belvedere, Calif., bassoon; Lisa Arnest, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Arnest of Colorado Springs, trumpet; Daniel Irwin of Freeport, Ill., violin; and Patricia Anderson, Los Alamos, N. M., cello.

Performing the "Konzert" by Webern will be an ensemble made up of Dr. Juhas, Miss Arnest, Daniel Irwin and students Martha Freeman, sophomore from Beloit, Wisconsin on flute; Maxine Fischer, junior from Brighton, oboe; Ben Shaw, son of Mr. and Mrs. Van B. Shaw of Colorado Springs on the french horn; Donna Coffman of Limon, trombone; and Alan Pearce, junior from Rockville, Maryland on viola. They will be accompanied on piano by Carlton Gamer, associate professor of music at Colorado College.

The trio ensemble will play Mozart's "Trio in E Flat Major" and include Mrs. William E. Albright, Rt. 3, Colorado Springs, pianist; John Muth, junior from Tyrone, New Mexico on clarinet and Mrs. Drik Baay, 614 Park Terrace, Colorado Springs on viola.

Judge Revokes Man's Probation

Check offender Joseph B. P. Orndoff had his probation revoked Friday by District Court Judge G. Russell Miller and his orignal sentence of two to five years in the state penitentiary re-imposed.

Onrdoff, 19, 524 E. Cheyenne Rd. was given probation Oct. 25. Later he violated it by forging a $25 check with his mother's signature.

On Friday Eric A. Finstrom of the Ramada Inn Service Station, 507 Garden of the Gods Road told the court that on Nov. 7 he had accepted a check from the defendant bearing the signature "Phyllis Orndoff" on it.

Mrs. Orndoff also took the stand and said that the check had been removed from her check book and that the signature was not hers. She then started quietly weeping.

Orndoff told Judge Miller that he "did not remember doing it" and that "he was sorry."

After the young man was sentenced his mother broke down completely and was comforted and led from the room by a friend.

Deborah Walley, TV Actress, Marries

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actress Deborah Walley, 25, and drummer Chet McCracken, 25, are honeymooning today aboard his 40-foot sloop. They were married Friday in Tijuana, Mexico.

Miss Walley plays the married daughter in the "Mothers-in-law" television series. She and McCracken met while she portrayed a girl drummer in an Elvis Presley film. It was his first marriage. She previously was wed to actor John Ashley.

Thure E. Sall Died In Florida Monday

Thure E. Sall, 1316 E. Buena Ventura St., died Monday in Fort Myers, Fla. Last rites were held in Holdrege, Neb., with burial in Prairie Home Cemetery there.

Mr. Sall was born Feb. 28, 1894 in Phelps County, Neb. He was a farmer in Kearney County, Neb., before moving here in 1947. He was a member of First United Methodist Church.

Mr. Sall is survived by his widow, Mrs. Evelyn Sall; two daughters, Mrs. Mary Watson and Mrs. Wilma Dethloff, both of Colorado Springs; two brothers, Peter Sall of Holdrege and William Sall of Gothenburg, Neb.; eight grandchildren, and several nieces and nephews.

Lt. Col. J. L. Olszewski Retires From Army

Lt. Col. Joseph L. Olszewski recently received his retirement papers from Maj. Gen. Raymond L. Shoemaker, deputy commanding general, (ARADCOM). Col. Olszewski wears the Legion of Merit he received upon his retirement after more than 25 years of service. His last assignment was as chief, Program Analysis Division, and special assistant to the director of Materiel Readiness.

Through Col. Olszewski's "extensive and comprehensive professional knowledge, forceful leadership, and practical approach to problems, high levels of efficiency were established and maintained in Missile System performance," the Legion of Merit citation explained.

The colonel also earned the Army Commendation Medal in 1961 for duty with the 56th Air Defense Brigade, Fort Banks, Mass.

Col. Olszewski, his wife and their three children, will remain in Colorado Springs. He will be employed with a local claims adjustment organization.

Contraceptives Approved for British Catholics

LONDON (UPI) — Cardinal John Carmel Heenan, head of the Roman Catholic church in Britain, Friday approved the use of contraceptives by Catholic couples if they are following their "conscience."

Appearing on a nationwide evening television program, Heenan said that if a Catholic couple was using contraceptives and following their consciences then their priest must say to them "God bless you."

The couple also could continue to receive the sacraments, he said.

Asked by host-interviewer David Frost if the church would interfere with the decision of a Catholic couple on "serious grounds of conscience to use a contraceptive" the cardinal replied:

"A man is bound to follow his conscience. The teaching of the church is that a man must do this even if his conscience is in error."

He added:

"It could happen easily, particularly after such a long period of dispute and doubt, that a couple might say conscientiously, "I am quite sure that this is the right thing for me to do.' Then they must follow their conscience."

The cardinal also forecast that within five or six years doctors and scientists would discover a simple way of deciding whether there was any danger of pregnancy so that a woman and her husband would know that apart from five days when abstinence would be called for, intercourse could take place without the likelihood of conception.

He Fell Asleep on Top of All Money

WASHINGTON (AP) — If Keith Sebelius, newly elected to Congress, ever falls asleep while being paid to watch the taxpayers' money, it won't be the first time.

Sebelius, a Kansas Republican, worked nights at the Bureau of Engraving and Printing 32 years ago while he was attending law school at George Washington University.

"One night I lay down on a few million dollars worth of $2 bills stacked up in bales," he said in recalling the incident during an interview. "The next thing I knew I was asleep on top of all this money."

"They put me on report for violating the rules," he added. "I didn't want to lose that $1,072-a-year job—big money for a student—so I told them I was just resting my eyes."

Young Says Whites Must Hurt to Know Race Agony

Whites have to be hurt before they truly realize how degrading it is to be regarded as socially inferior, a topflight civil rights leader said here Friday night.

"True social equality in the world will only come," National Urban League executive director Whitney M. Young, Jr., said Friday night, "when those who are not injured by the brutalities of bigotry are as indignant as those who are injured."

Young said he borrowed "this paraphrase from the great writings of (Frenchman) Anatole France to describe the massive socio-economic revolution that is taking place not only in America, but throughout the world "in the battle for true equality among the classes of the world that must realize these minorities must have a say in the direction of the future."

Speaking before a crowd of about 450 at the second annual meeting of the Urban League of the Pikes Peak Region in the Palmer High School Auditorium, Young mixed wry humor and straight talk in pleading for social equality.

"It is too bad," he observed at the outset, "that blacks and whites, rich and poor, people of all faiths and political beliefs can only meet here at this type of meeting and not more often during the year."

The nation, he declared, "is in deep trouble, and I don't have to tell you that. All you have to do is read the papers and watch television. There are obvious conflicts between the young and the old, management and labor. The have-nots on the economic scale are more aware now than at any other time in our history that their plight is man-made and that they are victims of a society that is historically callous."

The young are leading the vanguard seeking social change, Young observed, "but young people are so totally preoccupied with injustice that at best they are cynical and at worst they are contemptuous of the establishment."

Eighty per cent of those youths, however he said, "are not going to be duped by the establishment. They are not like their brothers of another era, the goldfish swallowers and the stuffers of telephone booths. They are more cerebral and will get that change they are seeking."

Presidential aspirant George Wallace, Young said, inadvertently aided the cause of seeking social equality "because of the fact that he is the epitome of bigotry, but he held the mirror of this injustice up for the whole country to see—and it must learn from Wallace."

White racisim, he asserted, "is a subtle, day-to-day thing, it doesn't hit you over the head for its effectiveness. I recall the Turner Commission appointed to track the root-causes of poverty in large cities. They visited the squalor of a ghetto, black and stench-ridden.

"They held their noses, but they wrote a report and traced it all to white racism—white racism that has held the black man down for centuries and forced him to live with his own in ghettoes merely to cling together and exist, to ward off the white world. No other race upon the face of the earth, despite all this, has remained as faithful and as loyal to their country as the blacks have to America."

Though there is much wrong with Colorado Springs, Young observed on the local level, he said that he had "a dream about this town. A dream that it can serve as a model city." But he said that many steps would have to be taken, such as gathering minority groups within the fold of the city's policy-making decisions.

There are not, he said as an example, a single black or Mexican on the city council, planning commission or county commissioners board.

"You can make this city a model one, but you have got to make these changes. And don't think because you haven't had race riots here that you are perfect. Don't delude yourselves and compare your social-equality status here with, for example, Johannesburg, Africa, or Selma, Alabama."

Above all, he said, "adopt within yourselves the inability to generalize. Don't allow yourself to think that the whole black race should be condemned because of the Black Panthers or a handful of militants. You, the whites, have taught us more about rebellion than any one else on the face of the globe. We, too, if equality is to mean anything have a right to make mistakes, but we also have the right to make our own decisions."

He Objects to Bulk Mail; Loses His Job

ITHACA, N.Y. (AP) — Postman John P. Stark's resentment of bulk mail delivery has cost him his job.

Stark said he "just got fed up" and refused to deliver bulk mail on the ground that it is unfair to the taxpayer.

Acting Postmaster James R. Graves of Ithaca said Friday Stark had been notified he would be discharged, effective Dec. 18. The postman is 40 and the father of five.

Stark said bulk rates provide commercial enterprises with a "whale of a sales boost" while the government and the taxpayer suffer "a whale of a loss."

Demands Probe Of Japanese Wheat Policies

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON

WASHINGTON (AP) — Refusal of Japanese importers to buy American wheat should be investigated by the Department of Agriculture, a congressman from a wheat-producing state said Friday.

Rep. Thomas S. Kleppe, R-N.D., told Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman in a letter that the boycott has had "an extremely adverse effect upon domestic wheat prices...coming as it does at a time when our own wheat exports are running sharply below those of a year ago."

The suspensions of wheat purchases came last month after Japanese flour millers complained that moisture-damaged grain had been found in cargoes shipped from Portland, Ore.

Kleppe said Japan is now expected to buy about 70,000 tons of wheat from Australia.

"The fact that Japan is our major dollar customer for wheat means that determination of its purchases from the United States worsens our already serious balance of payments position and also has an extremely adverse effect upon domestic wheat prices," Kleppe said.

He asked Freeman if inspection standards for U.S. grain exports—already tightened by the 90th Congress in the U.S. Grain Standards Act—should not be further strengthened.

"I understand it is the contention of some exporters that the approximately 5 million bushels involved in the disputed sales to Japan had 'incipient damage' which could not be detected by ordinary inspection tests and became evident only after the wheat was milled, Kleppe said.

"Because of excessive moisture at harvest time this year in several major wheat producing areas, including North Dakota, there is the possibility of further problems of this nature," he said.

"This would seem to indicate the need for more extensive tests than are being conducted under present procedures."

Pony Express Exhibit Prepared for Museum

A Pony Express exhibit, prepared by Miss Catherine Jungk, assistant curator, has been put on display at the Pioneers Museum in Colorado Springs, according to Miss Dorthy Smith, curator.

The exhibit follows the guide lines set up by William C. Henderson in his pripe-winning exhibit of Zeublon Pike medals now on display at the American Numismatic Association.

Henderson is a member of the board of directors of the Pianoeers Museum.

Miss Smith said the exhibit was completed after the museum had received a set of Pony Express medals from the personal collection of Waddeell F. Smith, director of the Pony Express History and Art Gallery at San Rafeal, Calif.

The set includes a large silver Pony Express Founders Medal, bronze Pony Express Official Centennial medal, silver Pony Express official Centennial Medal, large silver Pony Express Termination Medal, bronze Pony Express Termination Medal and a silver Pony Express Termination Medal.

Also included in the exhibit is a worn bible marked "Given by Russell, Majors and Waddell to their drivers," she said.

A vow was taken by the freighters not to mistreat their horses and not to swear or drink. This bible was given to the museum by C. W. Price in 1958 and is one of 14 known to be in existence today.

Russell, Majors and Waddell in 1854 formed the Central Overland California and Pikes Peak Company and freighted from St. Joseph, Mo., to Sacramento, Calif. The length of the route was less than 2,000 miles and followed approximately the route used by those taking part in the 1849 and 1859 gold rushes.

In the "Smoke Signal," Waddell Smith says in part "Russell, Majors and Waddell had a contract to carry mail on stage lines daily to Salt Lake City and semi-monthly to Sacramento.

"The Pony Express which continued to operate twice weekly from St. Joseph to Sacramento carrying news dispatches and war news was an inspiration to the country at large. The steadfastness of the little ponies and valiant riders endeared them to all of America."

The dispaly is on the mail floor of the museum and Miss Smith invites all residents of the region to inspect it at their leisure.

Inducing Suicide Is Lesser Charge

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) —A judge ordered Friday an examination of a man who pleaded guilty to the seldom invoked charge of inducing another person to commit suicide.

Superior Court Judge Joseph Karesh sent Bracton Irwin, 28, to the state medical facility at Vacaville. Sentence was withheld until the 90-day examination is completed.

Irwin was accused of inducing Leanne Gay Manick, 22, a cocktail waitress, to kill herself with a gun last July after he had pretended to shoot himself.

Irwin originally was charged with first-degree murder. Later he was permitted to plead guilty to a penal code section on aiding and abetting a human being to commit suicide, a charge carrying sentence of four months to six years.

Patient Leopard May Get New Owner

DENVER (AP) — Pasha, the patient leopard, has a new owner, maybe.

The 5-year-old, 85-pound cat first attracted public attention Nov. 15 when the two persons she was accompanying from Pleasant Point, N.J., were arrested on suspicion of bank robbery.

Pasha since has spent time in a motel room, the Denver City Zoo, a pet shop and several private homes. A meeting in the U.S. Marshal's office Friday was to solve the matter.

All the interested parties were there, and all knew each other through Pasha. That is all except a slight-framed New Jersey woman. The woman, Mrs. Dolores Duncan of Pleasant Point, presented a certificate of Mrs. Duncan said the leopard was a gift from John Marzoloff to Deborah Ponton. Both Miss Ponton and Marzoloff are in jail in connection with the bank robbery.

Mrs. Duncan said at the time the leopard was given to Miss Ponton the girl was not of age. Therefore, Marzoloff transferred ownership to Mrs. Duncan.

Radar Man Killed In Airplane Crash

OTIS AIR FORCE BASE, Mass. (AP) — A radar operator was killed but the pilot survived Thursday when their Air Force F-11B Voodoo fighter plane crashed in Cape Cod Bay.

Capt. John J. Veth Jr., 26, of Astoria, N.Y., was reported in good condition at Otis Air Force Base Hospital Thursday night.

A Coast Guard helicopter rescued him from the water two hours after the crash.

The body of the radar operator, Capt. Joseph Rossomono, 32, was found 12 miles off shore by a Coast Guard patrol boat.

The plane, an all-weather interceptor capable of speeds up to 1,000 miles per hour, was returning from a training flight.

Your Freedom Newspaper
Ever Striving for the Pikes Peak Region to be an even better place in which to live

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is self-control. No more. No less. It must be consistent with the truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Coveting Commandment, the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

Zoning: Concept vs. Act

Of all the functions governments have undertaken in the name of those catch-all phrases, the "general welfare" and the "common good," the act of zoning privately owned property is perhaps the most deceptive, dishonest, wasteful and harmful, generally, to the individual and community alike.

Even if zoning accomplished all that is claimed of it by its advocates, the protection of property values and the best possible uses of property, which it doesn't, it would still be morally wrong in that, by transferring the control of property from its rightful owner, the individual, to the bureaucracy, it indulges in the commission of theft.

But primary moral consideration aside, the list of ills and harmful effects of zoning is long and conclusive. That list includes but is not limited to the following:

1. Zoning is socialistic for the same reason it is theft. By violating the property rights of the individual owner, it subtracts from the private domain and adds to the domain of the political establishment. If continued, together with property expropriation via the expedient of "eminent domain" and property lost to individual ownership as a result of tax exactions, the result can only be total ownership by government of the entire surface of the earth and utter destruction of the concept of private property. That could only mean slavery.

2. It is corruptive of private individuals and government officials alike, in that it encourages and makes possible sub rosa, even illegal, deals and payoffs with those enjoying political favor benefitting at the expense of those not enjoying or refusing to accept preferential treatment.

3. It is wasteful of the time and energies of both officials and property owners. With respect to the former, it is estimated that approximately 50 percent of the Colorado Springs city council's time is expended on zoning actions and hearings on variances, changes and exceptions. As for the latter, any property owner who has been put through the zoning wringer can attest to the time, energy and money wasted in making applications, contesting unfavorable decisions and on paper work involved.

4. Zoning is an ever growing consumer of taxes in the salaries of the ever increasing hordes of bureaucrats required to enforce zoning decrees and process growing mountains of paper which go hand-in-glove with all political actions.

5. It is a waster of manpower in that, for every person added to the tax-eating bureaucratic payrolls, one person is subtracted from the labor force available to productive private enterprise.

6. Zoning is a further waster of the ever more scarce natural resource of land for the simple reason that no bureaucrat, regardless of how sincere and dedicated to his chores, is ever in a position to know the best economic use to which that land can be put; only the individual owner is in a position to make that decision.

7. And, possibly most harmful of all, zoning breeds ill-will and strife in a community in that, as with all government owned or controlled property, it blurs out property lines and puts the destructive idea in people's heads that they, in some manner, have a right to interfere with an owner's use of his property.

8. But lastly, on top of all the foregoing, zoning does not even do what it promises; that is, restrict a given zoned area to specified uses. For proof of this assertion one need but go back and review the literally thousands of zone changes, variances, exceptions and "spot zoning" decrees that have occurred since zoning came to Colorado Springs; each one of which is printed and published proof that the concept of zoning is an utter failure.

What we have had to say here in the limited space commonly associated with an editorial is merely a skimming of the surface, a hitting of the high spots, of the concept and its many ills. On the opposite page, under the heading "Zoning — A Case Study," we have reproduced the report of a trained reporter, John J. Roberts, who practically lived with the concept of zoning, and its results, in Emporia, Kansas and wrote down what he learned. It is suggested that you study his detailed and comprehensive analysis and decide for yourself whether zoning is a boon or an oppressive and wasteful burden to Colorado Springs.

Nation's Press

Read and Write Poorly

Tulsa (Okla.) Tribune

A nation-wide, four-year study by experts has confirmed the worst fears of most parents: There are severe shortcomings in the teaching of English in the nation's high schools. The National Council of Teachers of English and the University of Illinois made intensive studies of 158 representative high schools in 45 states and discovered that the two areas of greatest weakness are reading and writing.

Some highlights from the study of 1,600 classrooms:

There is little direct instruction in writing despite the fact that 16 percent of class time is devoted to composition.

Only 13 percent of student papers examined by observers showed signs of any thorough rewriting and only 17 percent showed any evidence that teachers help students with organization of ideas, critical thinking, and clear communication.

Reading programs are inadequate, uncoordinated, and almost nonexistent. Most programs seemed lacking in purpose, organization, and impact. The nonacademic, non-college, slow-learning student is neglected.

Few teachers show themselves capable of effectively leading class discussion. Barely a fifth of the time is used in discussion and questioning. The emphasis is on recitation and rote response.

Language is the least well taught of all elements of the English curriculum. A majority of schools concentrate on mechanical drill and error-based instruction with elective communication being subordinated to grammatical accuracy in classroom presentation.

Those who made the survey stressed the need for quality leadership from the principal and chairman of each English department and the need for a small cadre of "master teachers" in each school, employed on a merit pay system. English teachers nationally average 150 students each—50 more than the recommended maximum of 100.

When we cheat boys and girls of the ability to read and write well, we limit their ability to communicate effectively and to reach their potential.

Doesn't Anyone Have a Compass?

The Local Scene

Enigma Solved

BY RUFUS L. PORTER

In response to GT reader George W. Shaiffer's letter in OP under the heading, "Easter Island Buff," I wish to state that I read both of the famous Norwegian explorer's books on the subject. Heyrhdahl was not content just to prove this theory (see his book Kon Ti Ki) that it was possible for a crude balsa-wood raft to drift across the Pacific from South America to Easter Island. He returned to the island later to try to solve the mystery of the great carved heads that had bothered men ever since the Island's discovery. And, with the willing help of the natives, he solved the riddle of how the heads were carved, transported and set upright, but not why. Nor did he solve the petroglyph carvings, a so far indecipherable form of ancient writing.

If I remember rightly, the present natives claimed the great stone heads are not nearly as old as anthrophologists once believed. Anyway, there were once two tribes of people on the island. One tribe was called, by the surviving tribe, "The Big Noses." They were also bigger people and very belligerent. For a long time, probably centuries, they tried to kill off the surviving tribe and have the island to themselves. But the smaller statured tribe were more numerous and more prolific breeders.

But, many of the men were forced into slavery by the Big Noses and worked at helping them carve, transport and erect the huge stone heads. They not only showed Heyrhdahl how the heads were carved and transported on many wooden rollers pushed by many men, they even set a head upright that had been lying down for centuries. The heads weigh tons apiece, but the stone is a sort of pitted lava and not too hard to carve with primitive instruments, although one head would be years in being completed. But there were generally several heads being carved at the same time. The heads resemble the Big-Noses, according to the surviving tribe.

The heads were erected by the simple process of prys and cribbing. Many men situated in the back and on the sides of the head, prying with wooden poles and others placing the cribbing, inch by inch, finally had the head upright, as it had stood centuries before. Then ropes of some kind were used as guy wires to keep the head from falling back as the cribbing was painstakingly removed.

The great heads had been transported from the quarry to spots all over the island. After centuries of trying to take total possession of the Island, the Big Noses started dwindling in numbers. Finally, they were all killed in one last battle with the smaller people. These people showed Heyrhdahl the ravine in which the Big Noses had been surprised, surrounded and killed to the last man, woman and child.

According to the surviving natives, if my memory of the book is right, that occurred in about the 13th Century, by our reckoning of time. These same natives are proud of their own once higher culture. They took the Norwegian into underground caverns and showed him fabulous artifacts belonging to their distant past. It seems they were on the island when the Big Noses showed up—and they remained there when the Big Noses were all gone. They wouldn't let Heyrhdahl beg or buy a single one of their treasures of the past.

This is the first book I ever reviewed several years after reading it. I could be off in several places. I believe I read it in a condensed version in "The Reader's Digest."

At least, we now know how the mysterious Heads of Easter Island came into being. If their petroglyphs are ever deciphered, we may know why.

By the way, I almost forgot to mention that there are still partly carved heads in the quarry. It seems that they were carved face up and then cut loose from the living rock from underneath, or the backside. For all I know, Heyrhdahl was the first outsider ever to see the quarry or to learn anything about the puzzle of the great stone heads.

These Days

The Young Must Keep the Pressure on

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

The young, so I deduce from the mail, are going to give Richard Nixon his chance as President. But they are going to watch him closely. Says one of them, "Do you really believe that Nixon will abolish the draft? I doubt that he will do anything except respond to pressure."

Actually, in the young man's doubt there is all the hope in the world. For the pressure will be there, and it will be good to have a man in the White House who is willing to consider the forces that are quarreling for possession of the mind and heart of the nation. If the young want to get rid of the draft once the Vietnamese War is under control, it is up to them to make Nixon redeem his promise to them.

The anti-draft movement suffers from the misguided behavior of the likes of the Reverend William Sloane Coffin and Dr. Benjamin Spock, who think they can persuade people to change the law by pushing protest into extra-legal channels. Nevertheless, in spite of the fact that the anti-draft movement has a bad name in patrotic circles simply because of the draft card burnings, it has a most impressive non-partisan or bipartisan support. If the Students for a Democratic Society on the Left want to get rid of the draft, so do the Young Americans for Freedom on the Right. Ronald Reagan and Barry Goldwater are poles apart from Adlai Stevenson and J. Kenneth Galbraith on most philosophic matters, yet they all agree in opposing the draft.

Says Barry Goldwater: "The most fundamental right of man is the right to his life. The use of force against that right—as in the draft law—is clearly wrong. It would also be wrong to assume that free men have to be forced to fight for their country."

Said the late Adlai Stevenson: "Every young man knows the money that could be saved, the new efficiency that could result from a volunteer system which calls on young men not to endure two years in service because they have to, but to choose it for a longer period because it offers advantages that seem to them appealing."

The actual financial cost of the draft is largely hidden from public view because it is borne silently by the draftees themselves. But it should be apparent to anybody on reflection that the male members of a whole generation, both the young men who are impressed into the army and the ones who because of uncertain status are unable to get congenial jobs before their mid - twenties, are compelled to sacrifice the difference between basic military pay and the higher sums they might earn in steady civilian careers.

To dramatize the wastefulness caused by the draft, the Young Americans for Freedom point out that if Cassius Clay had been able to continue his pugilistic career, his annual income tax would be enough to train and equip an entire company. The cost of maintaining four thousand draft boards is terrific. And there is a vast wastefulness in the use of conscripts to do the sort of military jobs, estimated as eighty percent of our military effort, that could be filled by civilians who would not have to be replaced every two years.

The late Senator Robert Taft, as good a conservative as you could find, was against the draft; he called it "far more typical of totalitarian nations than of democratic nations." His wife, Martha, who always came to the point without quibbling, said the draft was unconstitutional, an infringement of the amendment that abolished "involuntary servitude." Nobody could possibly confuse the Tafts with hippies.

With Barry Goldwater back in the Senate, the young may be sure that pressure will be kept on Richard Nixon to fulfill his promise about turning to a voluntary army. The draft will not be abolished before the South Vietnamese have taken over the defense of their own country. But its days are numbered provided the young of the U.S. remain sufficiently aware of their needs to keep prodding the new Adminstration.

WHY NOT PAY FARMERS?

To the Editor:

I was talked into going pheasant hunting on the weekend of November 16-17. We went to the north and east of Burlington. The weather was putrid and the birds were scarce.

According to newspaper reports, the birds were plentiful. This information was furnished by our State Game and Fish and Parks Department. This department could not control the weather and they will never again be trusted by me when they say the birds are plentiful.

Here's a point that is difficult to understand. The State has no control over the pheasants. They lay their eggs and hatch them at no expense to the State; yet, it costs $4.00 for a license. The pheasants are fed by and actually belong to the farmers. So why not let the farmers charge hunters to hunt on their property instead of paying the $4 to the state bureaucrats. If the farmers had the authority, the hunters would get accurate information on the abundance or scarcity of birds, whichever the case might be, and one could bet their last penny that the information would be correct.

It is doubtful that the State Game, Fish and Parks Department had a man in the vicinity of Burlington since the last pheasant season closed. I just don't trust any State of Colorado Department.

The $4.00 for a pheasant license was the first license of any type, except car tags, I have bought since 1950. No more!

I just cannot understand why we should be forced to purchase a license to hunt pheasants on any farmer's land when the land belongs to the farmer and in common sense thinking the pheasants also belong to the farmer; not the dictatorial bureaucrats who are on the taxpayer's payroll already.

Of course, the ideas expressed sound too much like going back to a private enterprise system, which our state dictators would never agree to.

NO APOLOGY DUE

To the Editor:

I would like to comment on a letter to the editor published Monday, November 25, written by Mr. Guy T. Creveling, who admits to sanctioning evil, lesser or otherwise. Mr. Creveling, in his letter, attacks Dr. George Boardman in a very snotty and prejudiced manner.

Dr. Boardman's writings are primarily for the benefit of those who are capable of self-education in spite of whatever mental degradation the tax-supported system forced upon them during childhood.

Dr. Boardman will never owe an apology to thieves no matter what may be their Robbing Hoodwinking affiliations.

PARADE SUGGESTED

To the Editor:

Merry Christmas! Eveybody's happy — Everybody's gay — another Holiday is on the way. I am a former Colorado Public School teacher and coach recently returned from the "Ozarks" of Southern Missouri.

My chief hobby is playing "Santa Claus" to schools, churches, kindergartens, hospitals and various other places where "small fry" gather in large numbers at Christmas time. During the past ten years I have entertained about 50,000 children free of charge. I am one of the vanishing breed, a guy who spends most of his time in December bringing a little joy to others.

Now, to the point. Why not a Christmas Parade for the people of the Pikes Peak Area? I am in favor of it! An ideal day would be Friday, December 13 at 5 p.m.

All that would be necessary is cooperation of City Hall, the Chamber of Commerce, Churches, Schools, and the News Media. Kids love to parade. I am very sure that the wonderful staff at your newspaper would jump at the chance to help promote and act as a clearing house for a Christmas Parade. Come on in, the water's fine!

PATRIOTIC ACCENT

To the Editor:

The other morning while listening to an early KOA Denver program, I enjoyed a nice American folk song with patriotic flavor in it. After the song, the Commentator added that the patriotic song was an answer to a listener's suggestion to put some patriotic accent in Radio broadcasting programs! KOA did so, and I liked it!

How about Colorado Springs radio broadcasting systems and daily T.V. programs? It seems to me that there is plenty of room for a patriotic accent in our daily lives here. Let us suggest it!

EQUAL FREEDOM

To the Editor:

Perhaps I can help the man who was confused by the statement "All men are created equal."

The statement derived from the fact that all men have an equal chance to make their peace with God.

At one time when I was working at Christian Evangelistic work, I led a complete idiot to our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ by explaining the simplicity of the Gospel to him. By the same token, I failed to lead an eight-year college intellectual to the Lord. But they both were given an equal chance to make their peace with God; one did, one didn't.

In our modern day and age the political machine has taken this statement and tried to justify their stealing from one man to give to another. This is the worst misconstruction of this statement that could possibly be made. But the politicians will resort to any tactics to attain their goal.

I hope this will help him to understand this statement better.

Wit and Whimsy

Bill—The stingiest man I know, is the guy who told his little boy that the gas meter was a bank so that the kid put all his quarters in it.

Phil—I know a stingier one than that. He gave his little girl a nickel not to eat any supper, sneaked the nickel away from her while she was asleep, and then wouldn't give her any breakfast because she'd lost it.

A speaker, asked to say a few more words in addition to his excellent talk replied with this story:

Mr. Smith—A baby cabbage once asked its mother, "I'm worried. As I sit and grow in this row of cabbage, how will I know when to stop growing?" The mama cabbage replied, 'The rule to follow is to quit when you are a (head).'

And the speaker sat down.

Quod Erat Demonstrandum

A number of persons have spoken to me about the grotesque posturing of various kinds of demonstrators. Today everyone seems to want to agitate for or against something. And the folks who have brought up the subject with me say that this isn't the way people ought to behave. They want an orderly, peaceful life and a social arrangement not given to riot and disorder.

I can surely sympathize with them. But public demonstration and a constant turmoil of agitation is normal in any democracy. When you operate a government which, at least in theory, is supposed to reflect the popular view, then it follows that you must have everyone willing and able to try to alter the popular view. And that's what all this publicity seeking and glorious rioting is about. The whole procedure is the very core of democracy. You can't have a democracy without riots.

In prior years, because Americans really weren't familiar with the various forms riots can take, except perhaps at a Saturday night barn dance, we tended to conduct our demonstrations according to a rather sedate set of rules.

These rules were set down in the various procedures of conducting elections, which, after all, are nothing more than sedate riots. The whole purpose of elections is to prevent bloodshed. They provide a relatively peaceful method for disposing of an unpopular politician.

And while I'm on that subject it might be worthwhile to point out that popular elections were introduced, not to permit the people to rule, but to provide a sanitary way of eliminating a man who otherwise might have to be killed to get him out of office. Elections never have and never will permit "the people" to rule. That is pure window dressing. The people, who always have it in their power to topple any regime, are merely cajoled into going along with the majority selection, by conditioning. They are led to believe that so long as they vote they are participating in ruling; whereas, in fact, they are participating in their own enslavement.

But the point I am making relates to the orderly process as opposed to the more democratic disorderly process. And so long as we followed the sedate rules of electioneering, we convinced ourselves that we really were pretty high class specimens, and a credit to the species.

But we've been getting more and more democratic by the minute. And that means that every ragamuffin and crackpot has a right to get on his respective soapbox and agitate for whatever scheme he has in mind. This is the cornerstone of popular opinion making. It is indispensible to democratic procedures.

So when my friends talk to me about the unsightliness of the various rabble rousers and, in the same breath, extol the virtues of democracy, they've got to be kidding someone. Perhaps they are merely practicing self-deception. It's the most popular form.

What is so hard for most people to grasp is that government and the political process are invariably at cross purposes. We say we want a government so that we can maintain law and order. Actually we want law and order, and government is one of the least effective tools for providing it. It's like trying to repair a television set with a sledgehammer. Law is provided by nature, and order is the desirable product. Governments don't provide law; they furnish legislation in endless streams. And the legislation doesn't lead to order; it leads to disorder, and to the hope which springs eternal that each of us can make laws which we can inflict on others to our own benefit. How that process can be anything but a disorderly one defies comprehension.

Now that America has come of age politically, we are going to have to accustom ourselves to living with riots. This is a way of life that is implicit in democratic and demagogic processes. If you try to suppress riots, that will lead to infringement of free speech and a free press. And we can't have that.

ZONING—A CASE STUDY

By JOHN J. ROBERTS
(The Freeman)

Zoning has spread itself across the nation since first tried in New York City in 1916. This study of its growth and effect in one community may help to reveal its general nature. The author is a reporter for The Emporia Gazette in Kansas, and the affairs of the zoning board have been on his "beat."

The nature of government bears a strong resemblance, it has been said, to that of Topsy: it just grows and grows. This should be no mystery: when government expands beyond its legitimate areas of protection of life and property rights, it cannot fulfill these additional functions as efficiently as can the free market; when the inevitable problems then arise, the same mentality which urged government intervention in the first place can conceive of no cure but more of the same medicine. More government is called for to cure the ravages caused by misdirected government in the first place. A vicious cycle is started, the closest thing to perpetual motion yet devised by man.

This malignant growth is clearly visible in the history of Emporia's zoning experience. The town's first zoning ordinance was passed in 1927. That ordinance provided for three zoning classifications—one-family residential, apartment residential, and commercial — and for a three-man board to administer the ordinance. The zoning board now has nine members, not three, administering a complex set of zoning ordinances with nineteen different classifications, not three; and since 1953 zoning has applied to the county area around Emporia as well as to the town itself.

Another index to the Topsy nature of government zoning in Emporia is revealed in its history of comprehensive planning. The acceptance of zoning led naturally to the further approval of comprehensive planning, with zoning as only one phase of the total picture. The first master plan for Emporia was approved in 1941, fourteen years after the introduction of zoning.

That plan was soon declared obsolete and, at least in part, impractical. As a result, those who had pushed for zoning and a comprehensive plan now urged — of course — another master plan. A major fight developed over which city-planning firm should get the lucrative contract, however, and the new master plan was not presented to the City until 1966. Its cost was more than twice that of the first plan, and the book containing the new plan comprised 220 pages, 27 maps, 11 figures and 37 tables. Not bad, for a town of only 20,000 inhabitants!

DECISION-MAKING TRANSFERRED

This gradual but thorough transfer of owner decision-making to a political planning board was not accomplished without incidents, and some of these provide explicit illustrations of further theoretical fallacies in zoning.

The most recent classification to be added to the zoning regulations was passed earlier this year, and immediately exploded into a petty but bitter squabble whether package liquor stores should be included among the some 120 different businesses explicitly allowed under the new classification.

Such arguments are nothing new under the sun. Almost immediately after the first zoning ordinance in Emporia was passed, a large corner lot owned by the local sheriff touched off a veritable comedy of errors.

Property owners in the neighborhood held that the lot should be zoned one-family residence while the mayor and his associates at City Hall said the proper zoning was commercial. The spat came to a head one fine morning when the irate property owners marched on City Hall for a heated confrontation with the mayor. While this was transpiring, however, the sheriff was over at the court house filing papers which clearly placed his property in the third classification, apartment district.

A favorite justification for zoning is the claim that it provides stability. Beyond its legitimate functions, however the state brings anything but stability.

One of the manifestations of such instability comes in the form of spot-zoning. Edward M. Bassett wrote in 1936 that the pioneer New York zoning ordinance (1916) never could have been passed without requirement in the enabling act for uniform application of the restrictions within a district. This rule of uniform treatment soon fell by the wayside in New York; in Emporia, spot-zoning by the planning board and by the appeals board began almost immediately after the local ordinance was approved.

INSTABILITY BY COMPULSION

The nonadherence to uniform standards obviously introduces an element of instability. Other contributing factors also are involved. Emporia is a two-college town, and until a few years ago was drastically short of student housing. The zoning board decided to help relieve the problem by using its powers to encourage property owners to provide students apartments. But in December of 1966, the zoning board and the district court jointly began cracking down on zoning violations involving too many student roomers in houses. The same property owners who earlier had cooperated with the zoning board now were penalized for having cooperated.

This example of capricious government illustrates an even more important maxim: The essence of government is coercion. The SINE QUA NON for coercion, of course, is power; and nearly everyone is familiar with Lord Acton's dictum on the tendency of power to corrupt. Behind-the-scenes political jockeying is a major cause of zoning instability, if for no other reason than its sweeping pervasiveness.

Home owners who believe that they are protected by zoning frequently are stunned to find classifications changed, apparently to accommodate those who know the "right" people in the "right" places.

This coercion can be merely irritating. One Emporia man could not get clear title for several months to a house he had purchased, because a legal survey found that the building extended a couple of inches into a six-foot buffer area stipulated by zoning law between the house and the property line.

STAR CHAMBER TACTICS

The more dangerous aspects of power misdirected were bared in 1961 when the zoning board in Emporia adopted Star Chamber tactics. The planners began holding closed sessions, which they justified publicly as an effort to avoid offending property owners in areas under consideration. The next step, which followed soon after, was refusal to divulge how individual board members voted. When the City Commission then asked the zoning board to report "some indication" of the votes cast, the planners approved a resolution calling the City Commission "out of order."

Lord Acton could hardly have wanted more clear-cut confirmation of his thesis. Unfortunately, the history of zoning in Emporia bears yet further witness.

A proposal for a zoning change to allow construction of a new professional building, for instance, stirred up nearly unanimous neighborhood opposition in 1964. The chairman of the zoning board vigorously supported the proposed rezoning, however. For two years the argument dragged on. Every time the matter was placed on the zoning board agenda, large groups of protesters trooped to the hearing; finally, the matter was brought up one evening without earlier notice, and under the whip of the zoning board chairman was approved. No one seemed very surprised when the construction firm owned by the chairman received the contract for constructing the new building.

Nor was that an isolated case. Later that same year, seventy-six Emporia property owners presented a petition to the City Commission charging that the planning board had shown favoritism to another local construction company on no less than seven different apartment projects. The mayor rejected the petition but admitted that the ordinances had been interpreted "in different ways to meet specific needs."

THE NEW SHOPPING CENTER

The most blatant example of misuse of zoning authority in Emporia concerned a major shopping center development on the edge of town. The plans were announced in early 1966 by an outside firm. The developers went to the planning board for a zoning change, and were refused, partly on grounds that the town was not large enough for a shopping center. Obviously, this would have been one of the first concerns of the developers, and they had determined that the demand was sufficient to bring them a profit with their shopping center. Competition was the real objection, of course.

The battlefields included the City Commission, and the district court, as well as the planning board, and finally split the entire town. One key issue in the next election was whether to allow the shopping center; the people elected new city and county commissions, which in turn appointed a new planning board, more favorably disposed toward the shopping center.

During the prolonged struggle, however, the old planning board had been approving several rezoning requests to allow neighborhood shopping centers by local developers. The upshot of this maneuvering is that although the original shopping center developers finally have obtained their green light, the smaller centers constructed in the meantime probably have destroyed the current feasibility of the large project.

THE PLANNER'S INFLEXIBILITY

Even when the power of the planning board is used for benevolent purposes, the results often are mischievous. When framing the original zoning ordinance for Emporia in 1927, the planners thought they were being considerate in restricting the business district along the main thoroughfare to protect residential property. Immediately after publication of the zoning, however, a dozen irate property owners informed the planners that they did not want such protection — they preferred being in the "business" district.

Zoning ordinances prescribe monotonous uniformity to large districts of land, each lot of which is unique. When planners admit this fact of uniqueness, they face a new quandary: how to inject flexibility without utterly shattering the facade of uniform rules. When the planners attempt to encourage the necessary diversity, through such techniques as spot-zoning, they are in effect admitting the failure of zoning itself.

Moreover, they open an additional Pandora's box, for the artificial flexibility and imitation diversity of a collective planning board decree will never match the productive fruits and natural responses to market conditions provided by thousands of continuing individual land-use decisions by all of the individual property owners.

In determining the use of each piece of land in an entire community, planners are further unqualified by their limited liability. Sole responsibility for an individual's decisions leads to careful consideration of the probable consequences involved. If the decision is economically wise, the profits will go to that individual; on the other hand, if the decision is wrong, he alone will suffer for his error. These two factors lead to the most responsible kind of decisions. Responsibility breeds wise economic judgments; irresponsibility begets haphazard decisions.

Planners are not bound by such responsibility; as appointees, they are not even directly answerable to the electorate. Too often, their judgment is clouded by adherence to such fictional will-o'-the-wisps as "the greatest good" or "the best use for the community as a whole." If their decision is wise, they do not profit directly; and if their conclusion is unwise, the entire community suffers for their mistake, although the blame usually falls upon the owners and managers rather than upon the planners.

Even the decisions made by the property owners themselves are hamstrung by government interference in the form of zoning regulations. This intervention reduces them to the status of property owners with only partial ownership rights because their range of choice is limited to that allowed by government.

This points up another crucial fact about zoning: it becomes effective ONLY when it prevents the owner from implementing a decision which he has reached after the full exploration of consequences that responsibility entails. If his analysis of market conditions indicates a given land-use, and that land-use is allowed by the zoning regulations, the regulations are of no effect. It is when that particular land-use is prohibited by the zoning regulations that they become effective. Zoning thus thwarts economic use and insures waste of scarce resources.

THE IMMORALITY OF ZONING

The fundamental objection to zoning, however, is moral. Theft may be defined as a reduction, without the owner's consent, of an owner's right to his property. Zoning, by definition, is an interference with the right of ownership. If the majority of the people accept theft, that may make theft democratically "respectable," but it does not make it morally just, nor does it cancel the effects of immorality.

One of the effects of making a little theft "respectable" is that the line cannot be held there. When zoning first came to Emporia, it would have been unthinkable for one person to attempt to restrict his neighbor's right to his own property without going beyond the pale of the law.

Now, whenever a zoning change is contemplated, a public hearing is scheduled, letters are mailed to those persons living in and adjacent to the affected property, and these neighbors then may legally testify in favor of or in opposition to the proposed land-use. It is appalling how many people take this opportunity to help determine how their neighbors' property is to be used.

The most common wail at such hearings is, "We were assured when we bought that the zoning would remain the same." This is an indictment, first, of the speaker: He placed his trust in zoning — government intervention — because he did not want to have to keep up with the changing market conditions. When faith is put in false gods, the believer need not be surprised to find himself elsewhere than in heaven.

But that wail also is an indictment of government intervention. Zoning encourages men to think of their decisions as "safe." Apart from the unnatural intervention, this false sense of security has other stultifying effects: It leads the property owner to ignore the significance of those changing economic conditions which enhance his investment; and conversely it leads him to ignore those circumstances which damage his investment. In either case, the result must be a certain mismanagement or partial waste of his resources; and the loss extends beyond him, although he is hit hardest.

All men are subject to influences beyond individual control: sound economic management seeks to keep abreast of such changes and to mold them to the individual's benefit. No government can protect a person against his own negligence or poor management — regardless of the promises made.

Zoning, then, encourages the individual to relax his vigilance in following changing market conditions, through a false sense of security. The zoning philosophy further encourages the individual to clamor for more government intervention to shore up his artificial "protection" and to prevent the exercise of the entrepreneur's ownership rights.

PRELUDE TO URBAN RENEWAL

Finally, there is no doubt that zoning helps prepare the way for that greater evil, Federal urban renewal. Three years ago, urban renewal nearly came to Emporia. The attempt failed only because copies of the preliminary plans were obtained and published by the press, with the result that an AD HOC organization of property owners carried petitions to force an election in which urban renewal was shut out of Emporia for a ten-year period.

Urban renewal never would have been considered in Emporia if zoning had not already worn down the resistance to such legalized theft. The zoning philosophy, with its subtle undermining of private ownership and its encouragement of government suzerainty, erodes the safeguards against more pervasive central planning schemes such as Federal urban renewal. The temptations to corruption and the possibilities for misuse of government power are infinitely greater under urban renewal than with zoning, of course.

Zoning, consistently adhered to, leads not only to Federal urban renewal but ultimately to centralized world government. If the use of one lot of land may be determined by government fiat, why should planning be restricted to one district or to one community? Indeed, why should coercive planning be limited to massive urban renewal projects? Why not government planning for the entire nation? The world?

The constitutionality of zoning was upheld by the United States Supreme Court in the Euclid, Ohio, Case in 1926, although the court admitted that zoning regulations "a century ago, or even half a century ago, probably would have been rejected as arbitrary and oppressive." The decision came on an appeal from the village of Euclid, a suburb of Cleveland, where the district court had, upon complaint of a real estate company, thrown out the entire zoning ordinance of Euclid as taking property without due process of law.

The high court's justification of its decision —three justices dissented, by the way—is quite interesting.

"Until recent years urban life was comparatively simple," the opinion stated, "but with the great increase and concentration of property, problems have developed and constantly are developing, which require, and will continue to require, additional restrictions in respect of the use and occupation of private lands in urban communities."

This is simply the cliche' that an increasingly complex society requires increasingly complex government. Actually, if society is becoming more complex that is sufficient reason in itself for less government, not more. Men can govern only in proportion as they can fully and responsibly comprehend that which they govern; and the more complex that which they govern becomes, the less fully can they comprehend it and the less responsible they are in their government of it.

The Supreme Court justified zoning with the utopian promise that such planning "will increase the safety and security of home life, greatly tend to prevent street accidents, especially to children, by reducing the traffic and resulting confusion in residential sections, decrease noise and other conditions which produce or intensify nervous disorders, preserve a more favorable environment in which to rear children, etc."

In the four decades since that decision, the arguments mustered in favor of zoning have grown somewhat more sophisticated, but basically remain just as emotional, ill-considered, and indefensible. The free market stands as the only alternative.

Some Vassar Girls Agree With Princeton Judgment

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The editors of Princeton University's student newspaper, in a guide to girls' colleges, says Vassar coeds "run the spectrum from the prude to the promiscuous." Some Vassar girls agree.

Marylee Hardenbergh, a 20-year-old junior, laughed and said, "It's probably accurate. You can find that anywhere. That's a pretty safe description."

Then she added, "It would be Princeton that would come up with that remark. It sounds like a weekend-oriented type mind."

But a description of Wellesley coeds in the book titled "Who the Girls Are" drew a negative response.

It said most Wellesley girls "have tried both grass (marijuana) and sex once. They didn't like either one."

"I don't think that's true," snapped a Wellesley student who asked that her name not be used.

The 112-page book is devoted primarily to giving brief biographies and snapshots of 1,500 coeds at eight women's colleges.

Peter G. Brown, a junior from Erie, Pa., who edited the volume, said, "This little book does no less than spell the demise, the defeat, the absolute abolition of that atrocious anachronism, the blind date."

"Wow!" said Louise Harris, whose picture is in the book. "I never thought they'd pick me in a 100 years." Louise is a Skidmore freshman from Upper Montclair, N.J.

Lisa Vandermade of Montclair, N.J., a Smith freshman who does "quite a bit of blind dating," said she hoped having her picture in the book would help her in that line.

Chemical Control of Aging Is Predicted

By PATRICIA MCCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI)—Sexual urges are behind the frenetic search for the fountain of youth—in case you didn't know.

Patrick McGrady Jr., author of "The Youth Doctors" (Coward-McCann), put it this way in an interview:

"About 90 per cent of the rejuvenation wish is sexual. Men go to enhance sexual behavior. Women go to improve secondary characteristics such as thighs, breasts and skin."

The men want to attract younger women and the women—younger men.

"It is supreme flattery for a woman going on 70 to have a fellow 25 fall in love with her," McGrady said.

The writer, 36, and with flecks of silver in his black hair, travelled some 20,000 miles across North America and Europe tracking down the people who cater to males and females who want to turn back the hands of time.

He encountered Cora Galenti, purveyor of the "$3,000 bargain bottled baby face;" the famous octogenarian Swsis cell therapist Paul Niehans who uses sheep ovary cell injections to forestall the menopause; a score of silicone-happy Hollywood and New York plastic surgeons.

The latter specialize in breast, face, nose, chin, derriere and hair rejuvenation.

McGrady said many celebrities have benefitted from the youth doctor's ministrations.

His report on how the youth doctors operate is laced with names of the famous who have sought help. Somerset Maugham, the late English writer, attributed his near-miraculous revitalization in his eighties to Niehans' sheep embryo cells, McGrady says.

The writer, Yale graduate and former Moscow bureau chief for "Newsweek", said the prices range from reasonable to impossible. A treatment in Switzerland can run from $1,500 to $7,500.

A "youth doctor" in California charges $25,000 to rejuvenate males.

The cell therapy involves a series of 10 to 15 injections over three days. Results are supposed to occur within three months. It sounds simple. But in unknowing hands the treatment can be fatal.

McGrady said the Rand Corp., that super think tank, predicts that chemical control of aging would lead to a life span of several hundred or more years. People would die of boredom or accidents.

For the not wealthy person right now there are plenty of inexpensive rejuvenation treatments—or therapies supposedly able to retard the aging process.

One of the most natural ways to help retard against process is jogging, according to McGrady.

"Proper nutrition, work and sex help, too," McGrady said when asked to cite some more rejuvenation treatments that aren't expensive.

The Russians have taken the prospect of dramatic life-prolongation far more seriously than Americans.

McGrady said a Soviet gerontologist recently pointed out that "every billion dollars used in war and not allocated to realizing the means of artifically prolonging human life deprives all people everywhere of scores of years."

McGrady sees the day when we shall enjoy the services of a family rejuvenator.

"Until then," he said, "the youth doctors shall remain a luxury of the rich, the famous and the beautiful people."

Douglas Refuses To Delay Troop Movement

WASHINGTIN (UPI) — Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas Friday refused to delay the transfer to the Vietnam war zone of 386 National Guardsmen but agreed they raised an important question about "a war which has not been declared by Congress."

"There should not be the slightest doubt but that whenever the chief executive of the country takes any citizen by the neck and either puts him in prison or subjects him to some ordeal or sends him overseas to fight in a war, the question is a justifiable one," Douglas said.

Douglas said in view of the Supreme Court's refusal in the past to block overseas shipment of protesting soldiers he could do nothing but refuse the request of the new group of guardsmen.

The men, now at Ft. Lewis, Wash., are members of the 1st Squadron of the 18th Armored Cavalry, based in California. They were scheduled to depart soon for the war zone.

"There is a question of great importance as to whether these men can be sent abroad to fight in a war which has not been declared by Congress," the justice said in a two-page opinion signed Thursday night and made public Friday.

Stops Tormenting Rectal Itch

Exclusive Formula Promptly Stops Itching, Burning and Relieves Pain of Piles In Most Cases

New York, N.Y. (Special): The embarrassing itch caused by hemorrhoids is most torturous. But science has found a special formula with the ability, in most cases—to promptly stop the burning itch, relieve pain and actually shrink hemorrhoids. And all without narcotics or stinging astringents of any kind.

The secret is Preparation H®. There is no other hemorrhoid formula like it. Preparation H also lubricates, soothes irritated tissues and helps prevent further infection. In ointment or suppository form.

Judge Noland Dies In Durango Hospital

DURANGO (UPI) — Dist. Judge James Noland, 68, of Durango, known as a respected jurist across Colorado, died Friday at Durango's Mercy Hospital.

Noland's physician said the judge died "basically of a stroke with complicating heart disease.

Noland, who recently announced his retirment, underwent open heart surgery recently in Denver and suffered a stroke earlier this week in Durango.

Death came at 3 p.m.

16-Year-Old Academy High Student Holds Brown Belt

Kim Soper is 16 years old, weighs 139 pounds when the scale is in a generous mood, and tosses 100-pound opponents with ease.

The young man holds the brown belt as a judo expert. This belt is a step below the black belt, highest rating for judo accomplishment. Kim is so good at his hobby that he works with Air Force Academy experts who coach the Cadet Judo Club. He also works out daily with cadets learning judo. His participation with the club and cadets is on a voluntary basis.

Soper is the son of Maj. and Mrs. Rex Soper. Maj. Soper recently was named director of administration at the Academy. He came to the Academy from Vietnam and holds the Distinguished Flying Cross, and the Bronze Star with "V" for valor.

Kim started learning judo only four years ago, and has progressed at a rapid clip through white, green, and purple belt status to his present next-to-the-top ranking.

His sister, 13-year-old Becky, holds green belt rank after only two years in judo. The brother and sister recently participated in demonstration bouts with Professor Ito (black belt 9th degree, top rating in the world) and Professor Sato (black belt 6th degree) when these Japanese experts appeared at the Academy.

Judoist Kim has won some enviable awards. In 1966 he placed third in his class (by weight) in the Rocky Mountain Regional Tournament, and in 1967 he placed fifth in the U.S. Air Force Nationals.

Gazette Telegraph Missing? Dial 632-4641 before 8 p.m. weekdays, 2 p.m. week-ends.

Chess Club Championship Winner Named

The Colorado Springs Chess Club Championships was completed last week, with Richard Jourdan capturing first place with a perfect score of seven points.

Tied for second were Walter Novak, and Francis Mason with five and a half points apiece, and Byron Olson finished third with four points.

As the new champion, Jourdan will receive a traveling chess trophy with his name engraved on it, which he will keep until next year's tournament.

Last Monday, Mason, the club's president, began this year's lecture series on chess, with a demonstration of King and Pawn endgames, which form the basis for all other, more complicated endings.

For the next several weeks lectures on other phases of the "Royal Game" will be presented by Mason and Novak, publicity chairman.

Jourdan has agreed to supplement the lectures with a demonstration and analysis of games.

The club meets each Monday at 7:30 p. m. in Room 15 of the Civil Defense Emergency Operations Center, 230 E. Kiowa St.

ACTIVE DUTY

PARIS (AP) — Gen. George Catroux retired in 1939 but came back early in World War II as Free French commander in the Middle East and later led troops in the liberation of France from the Nazis. The government now has asked the National Assembly to call Catroux out of retirement once more and place him on the army active list as a reward for distinguished service. He is 92.

ALTERING EMOTIONAL PATTERN

Brain research is fascinating. Thru it we will increase our knowledge on how to make the organ work more effectively for man. Ways may be found to improve memory and arrest the loss of human intelligence that comes with aging. At present, scientists are testing a compound that may enhance memory.

The limbic lobe of the brain is the seat of the emotions. In this center are harbored basic feelings of fear, anger, sadness, pleasure, joy, and sexuality.

The limbic brain has been explored extensively in animals. Electrical stimulation of the nerve tissues has changed a ferocious bull into a contented Ferdinand. Stimulating the emotional brain of a monkey may enrage him, yet moments later the animal becomes docile and affectionate.

Neurosurgeons use electrical probes in the treatment of epilepsy, cerebral palsy,and parkinsonism. The instruments locate troublesome nerve tissue, which is then carefully removed. Impulsive, sporadic attacks of uncontrolable rage are believed to originate in the limbic lobe. Electrode investigation of epileptics who have periodic outbursts of rage reveals that abnormal brain waves originate in scarred nerve tissue. So long as the waves within the limbic area are on a rampage, fury continues.

These damaged areas can be located and destroyed, but it brings up many ethical features. The limbic brain also harbors a wide range of feelings and motivations. In focal epilepsy, a variety of emotional feelings occur, such as terror, sadness, strangeness, ecstasy, and tranquility, as well as uncontroled fury.

As a prediction, it may be possible to install an electronic pacemaker that stimulates peaceful, rather than violent, reactions. Time will tell.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions no medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.

ERASING A MEMORY

A reader writes: For several years I have been trying to wipe out an unpleasant experience from my mind. So far, I've been unsuccessful. Is there any means known to medical science that will eradicate this memory?

REPLY

To my knowledge, not even hypnosis will do this. Most individuals with such problems solve them via rationalization or adjustment. The alternative is to confide in your physician or religious advisor. You may find that the unpleasant experience was not so bad as you think, and forgivable.

TRANQUILIZERS

A reader writes: Are tranquilizers the same as barbiturates?

REPLY

Some of the original tranquilizers contained this chemical but the newer preparations are composed of different types of sedatives and mood changers.

REST OR EXERCISE?

A reader writes: If a person is troubled with backache does he need rest or exercise?

REPLY

This depends on the origin of the symptom. Our leaflet on the various causes of backache may be obtained by sending a self-addressed envelope with request

LIVER AND MONO

M. O. writes: What is the future expectation for a liver that is affected by infectious mononucleosis?

REPLY

Good. Involvement is temporary and complete recovery is the rule.

ONE GRAY HAIR

A reader writes: If you pull one gray hair, do two grow in its place?

REPLY

No—just another gray one.

Looking for a Better Job?

Men and women, ages 18 and over, are wanted to prepare for U.S. Civil Service job openings during the next 12 months.

Government positions pay high starting salaries. They provide much greater security than private employment and excellent opportunity for advancement. Many positions require little or no specialized education or experience.

But to get one of these jobs, you must pass a test. The competition is keen and in some cases only one out of five pass.

Lincoln Service has helped thousands prepare for these tests every year since 1948. It is one of the largest and oldest privately owned schools of its kind and is not connected with the Government.

To acquaint the readers of this newspaper with the splendid opportunities in Government positions full details have been printed in a new booklet: "U. S. Civil Service Positions and Salaries" which will be mailed free to anyone who requests it. No obligation. Simply send your request to Lincoln Service, Inc., 2211 Broadway, Dept. 12-C Pekin, Illinois. A postcard will do.

Colorado Gets Half Million For Urban Work

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Colorado Friday received a $425,000 federal grant for statewide urban planning under a new procedure which the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) claimed would cut red tape by 60 per cent or more.

The grant, to be shared by about 50 Colorado counties and municipalities, was announced at a news conference by Charles M. Haar, assistant HUD secretary.

Haar dramatized the expected reduction in paper work by displaying a stack of documents nearly two feet high which had been required to process Colorado's grant applications in the past.

Beside the stack, he put down a slim file folder containing the papers needed for the new grant.

"The single grant award, on a carefully tailored annual work program and budget, will not only cut paper work by 60 per cent or more," he said, "but will provide the state with more flexibility and latitude in the administration of their overall planning efforts."

Asked whether the new procedure simply involved the transfer of paper work to the state, Haar conceded the "inevitability of red tape" but said it would be reduced to where it "will at least be light pink."

Among those present at the conference were Rep. Frank Evans, D-Colo., and aides to other Colorado members of Congress. Evans expressed gratification that Colorado had been selected as the first to receive a grant under the new procedure.

"I hope it will work the way you hope it will work," Evans told Haar.

The HUD official said other states in line for grants under the new "innocative approach"

Colorado's combined planning included Minnesota, Massachusetts, New jersey and New York

Colorado's combined planning program was estimated at $687,500, with $262,500 to come from state and local funds.

Already slated to receive a part of the federal funds were Las Animas - Bent County, $3,710; Garfield County, $5,000; Prowers County, $13,000; Ault, $500; Cortez, $4,134; Durango, $6,668; Fountain, $1,334; Greeley Evans, $19,328; Greenwood Village, $5,200; Thornton, $3,000; Vail, $10,000; Windsor, $10,000, and Wray, $1,040.

There are about 16,300,000 Americans who have had less than an 8th grade education.

FOR MERITORIOUS SERVICE — Col. Milton Frank is presented the Legion of Merit by Gen. Raymond J. Reeves, commander in chief of the North American Air Defense Command, during his retirement ceremony held recently at Ent Air Force Base. Col. Frank was awarded the Air Force's fifth highest decoration for performance of outstanding service to the U.S. as Director of Public Affairs at NORAD. The colonel has spent 26 years in the Air Force.

Onassis, Jacqueline To Go Back to Island

ATHENS (AP(— Aristotle Onassis, his wife Jacqueline and her two children, Caroline and John Jr. will spend Christmas on Onassis' private island of Scorpios, a spokesman for Olympic Airways said today.

The airline is one of the Greek shipping magnate's many enterprises.

A report in the Athens newspaper Eleftheros Cosmos said the couple would fly directly to Athens from New York on a chartered airliner Dec. 17, accompanied by Jacqueline's parents and about 10 close relatives and friends.

The Olympic spokesman said the party would arrive in Athens shortly before Christmas, but he did not specify when.

Eleftheros Cosmos said preparations are under way for a big New Year's Eve party aboard Onassis' palatial yacht Christina which will be attended by many Greek and foreign celebrities.

Duane Pope Gets Life Term

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI) — Duane Earl Pope, a college football hero once condemned to die for massacring three persons in a bank holdup, Friday was sentenced in a federal court to life imprisonment.

Pope, 25, learned a few hours later he would be retried—and face a possible death penalty again—in a state court in the county where the crime was committed.

Pope was sentenced to the electric chair in 1965 after a federal court jury trial in which he was convicted of shooting three persons to death during the $1,500 stickup of the Farmers State Bank in the western Nebraska village of Big Springs.

Pope had graduated from McPherson (Kan.) College, where he starred as an end on the football team, just a few days before the 1965 robbery. After eluding a nationwide manhunt, he gave himself up at Kansas City, Mo.

Deuel County Atty. Roberts Richards announced he will prosecute Pope on the state charge because "After going over the sentence the judge handed down and checking the statutes it seems likely he (Pope) could be out in 11 or 12 years.

"I think I'd be derelict in my duty to have him walking the streets free in 11 or 12 years."

Pennsylvania is one of the top three states in the U. S. in Christmas tree production.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Back in the Twenties, when "Fighting Bob" La Follette was a power in American politics, some of his political enemies tried to get on the ballot under the name "La Follette State Party."

La Follette himself hastened into court to complain. And the judge forbade any such use of his name without permission.

Names on the ballot are the subject of rules and regulations that vary considerably across the country. But generally the law seeks to prevent a candidate from getting a free ride on someone else's reputation. No doubt a candidate who changed his name to "Lyndon Bobby Nixon," just before this year's election, would have small chance of being listed that way.

Nor may a candidate, while retaining his own name, embellish it in a way that would give him an unfair advantage over his opponents.

For instance, most states won't allow the tacking on of a title. Thus a doctor failed in his efforts to be listed on the ballot with an "M.D." after his name — when that was not a qualification for the office he was seeking.

There are also various fair-play techniques as to the order in which the candidates' names are listed. The order may be determined alphabetically, or by lot, or by some sort of rotation system.

Even the printing of names may be prescribed by local statute. But ordinarily an election will not be nullified merely because of some minor printing error.

In one case the law specified that all names should be printed in capital letters. After an election, a defeated candidate named DeForest challenged the outcome on the ground that he had been listed as "DeForest—with a small "e."

But the court let the election results stand, saying the mistake was just not weighty enough to frustrate the obvious will of the electorate.

What if the name of a write-in candidate is misspelled by the voter? In most states the ballot will be accepted if the voter's intention is reasonably clear.

But tolerance has its limits. When a voter wrote in "McMagr," the court decided this could not be tallied as a vote for a write-in candidate named McCreery. The court said it could not assume that the voter really did mean McCreery, when the only part he had right was the "Mc."

Two Men Charged With Hijacking Conspiracy

NEW YORK (AP) — The FBI has arrested two Puerto Rican-born men on charges of conspiring with four others in the Nov. 24 hijacking an airliner to Cuba.

It was the first known arrest of persons allegedly involved in commercial airliners being commandeered to Cuba.

Seized Thursday night were Alejandro Figueroa, 37, and David Gonzalez, 34.

The FBI in New York said Figueroa is a leader in the Puerto Rican Liberation Movement, which it described as a New York-based proindependence group which advocates the use of violence to achieve independence for Puerto Rico. The organization "claims to base its political and revolutionary goals on Marxist-Leninist principles," the FBI said.

The four other alleged conspirators, who presumably remained in Cuba, were identified as Jose Rafael Rios Cruz, 27; his wife, Wilma, 21; Luis Armando Pena Soltren, 25, and Miguel Castro, about 40.

The plane, with 96 passengers aboard, took off from Kennedy Airport headed for Miami and San Juan, P.R. Three armed men, accompanied by a woman and a small child, seized it in flight.

FIRE

ROME (AP) — Some disgruntled Romans set fire to the car of Traffic Commissioner Antonio Pala early Saturday.

Police said a night watchman saw two men lighting the fire and fled when they fired some shots in his direction.

Pala made a lot of enemies this summer when he introduced a strict no-parking ban in the center of Rome during rush hours. Hundreds of shopkeepers complained their business was suffering.

Falcons Coast to Victory

BY MORRIS FRASER
Gazette Telegraph
Sports Editor

With a 2-1 record marking a recovery from a losing start, Air Force seeks to improve its basketball record Monday against Arkansas State in the Cadet Field House, scene of its last two triumphs.

The Falcons went above .500 for the first time since the first three games of the 1966-67 season Saturday with an 89-67 victory over Abilene Christian College before 782 hard-to-please fans in the Field House.

Air Force can assure itself of a winning season prior to finals and the Christmas holidays with a win Monday. The Cadets host Stanford in the pre-holiday wrap-up Dec. 14.

Abilene led only once, for a few seconds early in the match after Air Force had blown a 6-0 lead and trailed, 7-6. Seven straight points by the Falcons helped recover their equilibrium and Abilene never came closer than four points again.

Marion Lewis sneaked in 21 points for the Wildcats, 12 in the second half against an amalgamation of Falcon reserves and starters. His total led all comers, with Air Force's Jim Cooper slipping in 15.

The Falcons evaded a halfhearted fullcourt press with ease in the first half and relied on a thieving interior defense to snatch Wildcat passes and chop off ACC's playmaking. Still it was only two five-point splurges, one at the end of the first half, that gave the Falcons a 14-point bulge, 46-32, at intermission.

Air Force came out in a fast break offense the second half and rolled up a 52-32 edge, barely giving the Wildcats a chance to shoot. Coach Bob Spear began to substitute freely when the count reached 60-40 and the reserves played it a bit more evenly.

Fouls caused starting center Keith Johnston and reserve postman Jeff Kimble out of action and Lewis, a 6-5 forward, was the closest thing the Wildcats had to a rebounder after that. Lewis finished with ten recoveries.

Turnovers decimated Abilene's chances, as the Falcons took advantage of 29 miscues. But Air Force gave away the ball 18 times.

The fans warmed to the Falcons only early in the first half, when the team spurted out and completely outplayed the Wildcats. Cliff Parsons and Cooper dominated the boards and didn't let up until the Falcons held a substantial lead.

For the rest, it was quiet scene over the Field House as Air Force was content with holding a 20-point margin.

SITTING DOWN ON JOB — Abilene Christian's Ronnie Nicholas (31) became thoroughly acquainted with Air Force's new Tartan basketball court Saturday afternoon after fouling Falcon Mike Klindt early in the first half. Klindt sank a free throw, tying the score, 7-7, and Air Force went on a seven-point scoring binge that the Wildcats never could match. Surrounding the play are ACC's Keith Johnston (33) and Harry Cannon (21). Air Force players in background are Pete Halvonik (behind Johnston) and Jim Cooper. Air Force won, 89-67. CC Cagers Lose Third Straight

By CHUCK HLAVA
Gazette Telegraph
Sports Writer

Colorado College's Tigers took it on the chin again Saturday afternoon by losing their third straight of the season, 104-95 to visiting Great Falls College of Montana at Cossitt Gymnasium.

But the fall wasn't as hard as the first two as the Tigers displayed some fine scrambling against the Argonauts and fine early second half shooting.

Unfortunately for CC, they had 11 turnovers which cost them baskets in the second half.

The Tigers began the game as they had the two previous tilts, both of which they lost by 20 points or more, by falling behind 22-13 and another Great Falls rout seemed in order. The Argonauts had taken the opener from the Tigers with a 118-84 rout Friday night.

With the Argonauts leading 22-13 the Tigers went into a sparkling display of speed and shooting, led by Ken Anderson and Gary Bell, to reel off ten straight points and go into a 23-22 lead at the midway point in the first half.

The winners then came back on a hook shot by Tom Doney to take a 28-25 lead, but Joe Rillos' two free throws closed the gap to 28-27 and then Mike Smith's 20 foot jump shot gave the Tigers the lead again, 29-28.

The lead went back and forth several times in the first half before Great Falls' fastbreak coupled with Colorado turnovers gave the Argonauts a 50-46 halftime edge.

Sam Watts led his team with six rebounds and 18 points as the Argonauts moved smoothly in the first half. Watts wound up with 31 points to tie for game honors with the Tigers' Gary Bell, Phoenix, Ariz. Bell picked of eight rebounds in the losing cause.

Colorado College came out after the intermission and played a hustling ball game. Mike Smith, only 5-10, was all over the court pressing the Argonauts and scoring 12 points.

With Bell and Smith doing most of the scoring the Tigers swept to a surprising eight-point lead, 60-52 with 15 minutes left in the game.

Randy Morrison then scored two quick baskets, one stemming from another CC error and Watts contribute contributed another as the Argonauts stormed to within two, 60-58.

The Tigers then swept to another six point lead, 69-63, but Rich Moore, with 15 points, fouled out with less than 12 minutes remaining and Colorado was in trouble.

The Argonauts tied the knot at 72-all and the lead see-sawed back and forth until Watts' 30-foot jumper tied the game again at 85-all and, thanks to two missed CC passes, the Argonauts opened a lead which they didn't lose the rest of the game.

Joe Rillos also fouled out for the Tigers. Losing Moore and Rillos was a blow to the CC lineup.

With Joe Spoja grabbing most of the rebounds and Watts and Jack O'Conner hitting from under the basket the Argonauts led 97-90 with less than four minutes remaining.

Watts went out via the foul route, followed by Morrison, but the winners were in control by then as the Tigers could not come within less than seven points.

Colts Sting Packers, 16-3

By BOB GREENE
Associated Press Sports Writer

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Lou Michaels kicked three field goals to power the Baltimore Colts to a 16-3 victory over Green Bay Saturday afternoon, virtually eliminating the Packers from a chance for a fourth consecutive National Football League championship.

Green Bay fell one full game behind the Central Division coleaders, Minnesota and Chicago. A victory Sunday by either one would end the Packers' domination of the NFL.

Baltimore, now 12-1, still must face the Los Angeles Rams in next week's season finale before the Colts can claim the Coastal Division crown, unless the Rams lose to Chicago on Sunday.

With starting quarterback Bart Starr sidelined with an injury, the Packers were led by Zeke Bratkowski. But the 36-year-old veteran, hobbled with poor ball-handling and numerous fumbles, failed to get the Green Bay offense in gear.

Baltimore got on the scoreboard first as quarterback Earl Morrall found his flanker, Willie Richardson, in a corner of the end zone. The 26-yard pass came two plays after defensive back Bob Boyd recovered Donny Anderson's fumble on the Green Bay 28.

Mike Mercer's 45-yard field goal for Green Bay was matched by Michaels with a 37-yard effort and Baltimore led 10-7 midway in the second quarter.

Another Packer fumble led to Baltimore's final score of the first half. That came on Michaels' 15-yard placement.

Taking advantage of the wind in the third period, Michaels attempted a 47-yarder, but it sailed wide to the right and Green Bay took over on its own 20.

Anderson's second fumble of the game after a nine-yard gain, turned the ball back over to the Colts, leading to another 15-yard three-pointer by Michaels.

The Green Bay fans, stilled by the powerful Baltimore team, came alive at the start of the fourth quarter when Willie Davis hit Morrall, forcing a fumble. The other Packer defensive end, Lionel Aldridge, picked up the loose ball and ran 12 yards to his own 39.

Then a strange series began.

On first down, Bratkowski, fading to pass, watched as the ball jumped out of his hand. He recovered his own bobble, the third he made during the day, and threaded his way upfield to a four-yard gain.

When a Bratkowski pass was partially blocked by an onrushing lineman, the wobbling pigskin was grabbed by Claudis James, who turned it into a 24-yard gain to Baltimore's 22.

The threat died as Bratkowski failed to connect on three straight passes from the seven.

The Colts' strong defensive line, spearheaded by Bubba Smith and Ordell Braase, held the Packers to only 66 yards rushing and 97 yards through the air. They also forced the usually sure-handed Green Bay team into five fumbles. Baltimore recovered four.

Baltimore, on the other hand, rushed for 138 yards and threw for an additional 104.

Morrall went to three different receivers as he completed 10 of 20. John Mackey, a 6-foot-2, 224-pound tight end, latched on to six passes for 47 yards and Ray Perkins caught three for 55. Richardson's only reception was his touchdown.

For Green Bay, Bratkowki's 13 completions in 24 attempts was spread among seven Packers.

Terry Cole of Baltimore led all ball carriers, picking up 83 yards on 21 tries. Green Bay's top ground-gainer was Anderson with 48 yards on 11 carries.

Falcon Grapplers Get First Win in New Field House

BY GARY COLEMAN

Air Force opened its 1968-69 mat season, as well as its career in its sparkling new Air Force Field House, with a convincing 24-9 victory over the Kansas State Wildcats Saturday afternoon.

The Falcons overcame a slim 6-3 Wildcat lead after the first three matches by taking five of the remaining six encounters, two of them by falls.

Scott Weaver gave Air Force a 3-0 lead by decisioning Marv Landers at 123 pounds but Charles Howard and Jim McDougal picked up victories for the Wildcats at 130 and 137, respectively, to put the Falcons on the short end of a 6-3 score.

Howard edged out a 4-3 decision over Academy's Felix Sanchez on two points riding time while McDougal needed a takedown with only one second left in the match to upend Mike Grenard, 8-7.

McDougal's decision was the last K-State victory until Dave Wieland added another three points to the Wildcat total with a 9-7 decision over Jim Scrabeck at 167.

Wieland was trailing 3-1 after the first two periods but added six points in the final three minutes, including a match-deciding takedown with 45 seconds left for the victory.

Pat Gooden began a three-weight victory string for the Falcons at 145 when he threw Jim Barrett at 3:46. Gooden and Barrett had been knotted at 2-2 after the first period before Gooden's five-point performance.

Scott Bowen picked up a 9-3 score 11-6 in favor of the Falcons and Don Horton added three more with a 4-3 victory at 160.

K-State's Wieland then momentarily halted the Falcon victory string when he decisioned Scrabeck in the 167 weight pound class.

177 pounder Bob Gemignani then added another five points for the Academy, making it 19-9, when Ron Tacha was forced to default the match. Gemignani was leading 5-3 in the second period when Gemignani and Tacha collided skulls on an attempted takedown by the K-State grappler.

Both grapplers required attention and bandaging, but Gemignani came out on the healthier end as Tacha was unable to continue.

Heavyweight Jack Thrasher ended the afternoon's activities by throwing Tom Keller at 4:09. Thrasher was trailing Keller, 2-0, at the time of the fall but turned the K-State over to provide a 24-9 final margin of victory.

Results of Air Force-Kansas State Wrestling meet:
123—Weaver (AF) dec. Landers, 12-6.
130—Howard (KS) dec. Sanchez, 4-3 (riding time).
137—McDougal dec. Grenaud, 8-7.
145—Gooden (AF) pinned Barrett, 3:46.
152—Bowen (AF) dec. Thomas, 9-3.
160—Harton (AF) dec. Richards, 4-3.
167—Wieland (AF) dec. Scrabeck, 9-7.
177—Gemignani (AF) win over Tacha by default.
Heavyweight — Thrasher (AF) pinned Keller, 4:09.

Astros Release Schedule

HOUSTON (AP) — The Los Angeles Dodgers will provide the opposition Friday night, April 11, when the Houston Astros open their 1969 National League home baseball schedule in the Astrodome.

The Astros' home schedule, announced Saturday by General Manager H. B. Richardson, includes 81 regular season games. The Astros will play nine against each of the other five clubs in the National League's Western Division and six against each of the six teams in the Eastern Division.

The Astros' first home stand will last a week with the Atlanta Braves following Los Angeles into the Astrodome.

The Braves will be in the Astrodome for Houston's final home series, Sept. 22-24.

The Astros schedule shows 16 day games and 65 night games for 1969. A twi-night doubleheader is scheduled against San Diegi June 20.

In addition to regular season play, the Astros also will play six pre-season games in the Astrodome, hosting the Dodgers April 1-2 and the Boston Red Sox April 3-6.

Houston opens the 1969 season on the road, meeting San Diego in San Diego for three games April 8-10 before returning to the Astrodome to meet the Dodgers.

Last Commissioner?

The resignation Friday of Gen. William Eckert as commissioner of baseball came as a surprise to most people. After all, how many people turn down a seven-year contract at $65,000 per, with four years left to run?

It was neither a pleasant or unpleasant surprise. Eckert performed his duties capably for one who didn't understand the backstage antics of organized baseball. But, as he said, the job requires a man with baseball knowledge.

The commissioner's post was established in 1920 when baseball's owners were on the verge of losing the sport entirely due to the Black Sox scandal. The owners, in a self-policing move since erased from their collective minds, hired Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis to act as overlord of the sport and brighten its tarnished image.

Then followed Happy Chandler, Ford Frick and Eckert. Each time a new man was appointed, his powers decreased. After all, who needs to control the owners so completely when they have policed themselves into control of the national pastimey

At one time, when baseball was fairly young, many teams struggling financially and organizationally, someone in complete control of the sport was needed.

Now the sport is a business (trustbusters, close your eyes) and the owners have large sums at stake, sums which they don't wish jeopardized by someone who doesn't have their own interests at heart.

So the owners—the board of directors, so to speak—make the big decisions. They delegate only such power as keeps them in firm control of their purse strings. Even that may be recalled at their whim.

It is obvious a commissioner with the powers of Judge Landis never again will be selected.

Man in Control Needed

The 24 major leaue owners have appointed a committee, certainly the logical thing to do in times of stress which will start work Monday on finding a way to re-organize the commissioner's office and merge it with the major and minor leagues' offices.

Baseball needs a man—one man—to run the business end. Pete Rozelle controls, utterly, professional football today, and will control it even more utterly in 1970, when the two big leagues merge. Rozelle is the modern-day answer to Landis—someone who can keep the sport from going under as far as the fans are concerned.

But baseball doesn't need that kind of man. Its 24 teams (pardon, 20 of its 24 teams) are well-established, even with all the rumors of site relocations. Most of the established clubs are making money and none are losing enough to make it feasible to move.

Baseball needs an organization man, someone who knows the sport inside out and can handle the intricacies of the sport on all levels. Someone like Lee MacPhail, perhaps, or Jim Burris.

Burris, currently general manager of the Denver Bears, was a superb president of the Texas League before moving up here, and he has done wonders with a hit-and-miss AAA farm club.

The major league owners are concerned about the minors, both as teams to develop baseball interest and as a afrm system to develop players. A man who knows the minor league structure and who is familiar with major league requirements could give baseball a much-needed boost.

Let the Owners Rule

It has been so long since the commissioner has done anything constructive for baseball that it is obvious the real power in the sport rests with the owners. Since they make the decisions, there's no use hiding the fact: let the owners, or perhaps a portion of them, act as the board of control for the teams and let the commissioner concern himself with the business of running the two major leagues as well as the minors.

The longer the committee meets, the more proposals you will hear concerning the modernization of baseball. But don't kid yourself; no matter how worthwhile the suggestion, it's difficult to move those owners at a pace faster than an arthritic snail.

The lower pitchers mound? That's the type of radicalism the owners endorse. Get around to faster play, colorful uniforms, permanent pinch-hitters, and the ideas fall flat.

But now is the time for someone to start pushing these ideas in earnest, far more in earnest than heretofore. Speedup rules may be tried in the American League next year, similar to those formerly used by college and semipro teams. That is a giant step forward—just the fact that the new rules are considered is a carck in the dam of stodginess.

Who knows? Maybe some day the owners will become so progressive they will allow mustaches. Or would that be simply a reversion to the olden days?

Broncos Look for Upset

OAKLAND, Calif.—The Denver Broncos, working on the second-best season in their history, enter Oakland Coliseum today cast as the spoilers, as the Chargers try for a second season win over the Denver squad.

For Rich Jackson, Dave Costa and Rex Mirich, the event will be a sort of homecoming. It'll be the first time this season that the three ex-Raiders play in the Coliseum.

But for the rest of the squad, it may be an opportunity to avenge a humiliation suffered at the hands of Oakland in Denver earlier. In the first encounter, the Raiders, headed by reserve quarterback George Blanda, eased to a 43-7 triumph over Denver.

While Denver appeared to be composed of a group of standins, Blanda ripped off four aerial passes for touchdowns. Oakland is currently tied with Kansas City for the first berth in the American Football League's Western Division. The two teams enter the season finale with 10-2 records.

The Broncos, 5-7 in the league, are in control of the Western Division's fourth berth. The club's best season, a 7-7 mark, was set in 1962 under Jack Faulkner's leadership. Denver fell, 47-23 to San Diego last week.

"We have to stop making crucial mistakes if we are going to have a chance against Oakland," Coach Lou Saban said. "And, our over-all defense must improve. You can't give up 40 points and expect to win a football game."

In the San Diego game, Denver gave up 31 points in the first half, and then rallied to within eight points of the Chargers in the early portion of the second.

The Broncos gave the Chargers their first tally in the first minutes of play after Gus Holoman fumbled the opening kickoff on the Denver 15. From then on, San Diego scored on each one of its first-quarter drives.

"Despite the score," Saban said, "you have to give our young people credit. They were down, 31-3, and still got back in the football game. Oakland will be tough. We know that, but we'll give it everything we have.

The Raiders retain a definite advantage going into the game, with the club leading Denver in several AFL statistical departments.

Hewritt Dixon, fullback for the Raiders, is the second leading rusher in the league, compiling 806 yards in 183 carries. Denver's Floyd Little is the league's eighth rusher with 520 yards in 142 carries.

In addition, Oakland has two men, George Blanda and Warren Wells, included in the AFL's 13 leading scorers. The Broncos failed to place a man on the list.

Probably the biggest threat to Denver's success is the Raiders' passing attack. Daryle Lamonica has completed 166 passes out of 335 attempts to total 2,616 aerial yards.

Oakland also is blessed with two of the league's leading receivers. Fred Biletnikoff has taken 51 passes for 889 yards, while Wells has controlled 39 for 861.

Denver's Marlin Briscoe is the league's sixth leading passer with 68 completions out of 152 attempts. The rookie quarterback, who took over the starting position after Steve Tensi injured his shoulder, has racked up 1,136 aerial yards.

Briscoe will rely heavily on the hands of Al Denson, who has received 26 passes for 411 yards, and Eric Crabtree, who leads the team's receiving department with 588 yards. Crabtree has taken 34 passes this season.

Oakland enters the game with 4,883 offensive yards, while Denver has totaled 3,455 yards in its 12 starts.

A Bronco official claimed the club's success in Oakland will depend upon how well Briscoe and the defensive unit perform.

In his three opening assignments as a Bronco quarterback, Briscoe has been unable to drive Denver to a first period score that could mean a decisive lead.

The Broncos round out their season Dec. 14, when they play host to Kansas City in Bear Stadium. Kickoff for the final game is scheduled for 2:30 p.m.

Chance of Tie Hangs Over 3 West Division Hopefuls

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The chance of a tie playoff hangs over the three contenders in the Western Division of the American Football League with Kansas City, Oakland and San Diego still in the race with two games to go.

Kansas City (10-2) can knock San Diego (9-3) out of the battle in their Sunday game at San Diego. A defeat would eliminate the Chargers who must beat both the Chiefs and the Oakland Raiders in their last two games.

Oakland (10-2) will be at home to Denver (5-7), a team it manhandled 43-7 a month ago. Denver also is a key team because it plays Oakland this Sunday and Kansas City Saturday, Dec. 14.

The New York Jets (9-3) with nothing to do but stay healthy while awaiting a Western champ to emerge will be at home at Shea Stadium to the Cincinnati Bengals (3-10). Boston (4-8) will be at Miami (4-7-1). Buffalo finished its season Saturday at Houston.

Kansas City shaded San Diego 27-20 when they first met Oct. 27, intercepting four passes and winning on Mike Garrett's touchdown run and a clinching field goal by Jan Stenerud. The Chiefs whipped Houston Thanksgiving Day 24-10 and should be well rested. San Diego bombed Denver last Sunday 47-23 when John Hadl threw five touchdown passes—three to Lance Alworth.

Oakland had to struggle to down Buffalo 13-10, probably a reflection of the schedule that sent the Raiders into two games in a five-day span. The Raiders have had time to get ready for the Broncs who were stung by four touchdown passes by sub George Blanda in their previous meeting Nov. 10.

Weeb Ewbank may decide to rest some of his Jets now that they have clinched the Eastern Division title. Joe Namath played only one half last week and may see only part time duty against Cincinnati. It will be the first meeting between the two clubs in regular season. Cincinnati wno an August exhibition 13-9. Paul Brown's Bengals need one more victory to break the record for an expansion club and running back Paul Robinson needs only 10 yards to make the 1,000-yard mark. This will be Cincinnati's last game of the year.

Boston couldn't handle Miami in Boston two weeks ago when the Dolphins ran up a 34-10 margin with the help of three touchdown passes by Bob Griese. The Patriots broke a five-game losing streak last Sunday against Cincinnati. The Dolphins are coming off a 35-17 loss to the Jets.

If that Western race winds up in a tie there are several possible combinations. In a two-way tie it would be Kansas City at Oakland, San Diego at Oakland or San Diego at Kansas City, on the weekend of Dec. 22. In a three way tie, Oakland would be at Kansas City with the winner at San Diego, Dec. 29. The championship game, now set for Dec. 29 at New York, then would have to be set to Jan. 5.

Browns Look for Crown, Eighth Straight Victory

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

Cleveland seeks its eighth straight and the Century Division title Sunday at Washington as the National Football League goes into the next-to-last Sunday with three division crowns still up for grabs.

The Browns (9-3) can wrap it up at Washington (4-8) if they win or if St. Louis (7-4-1) loses at New York (7-5).

After calculating the effect of Saturday's Baltimore at Green Bay contest, both the Chicago Bears (6-6) and the Los Angeles Rams (10-1-1) will have all the incentive they need at the Los Angeles Coliseum. The Bears still are tied for the lead in the Central Division and the Rams still are geared for the Dec. 15 showdown with Baltimore for the Coastal crown.

Minnesota (6-6), bouncing from one tough game to another while being attacked by the flu bug at the same time, face sanother must situation at San Francisco (6-5-1). As the Vikings wind up next week in Philadelphia, they have a fine opportunity to take a step toward the central title at Kezar Stadium.

Dallas (10-2) having already clinched the Capitol Division title, will have an eye on the scoreboard while playing hosts to the Pittsburgh Steelers (2-9-1). If Cleveland wins the Century, it will be Dallas at Cleveland, Dec. 21 for the Eastern Conference crown.

New Orleans (3-8-1) will be at Philadelphia (1-11) where the anti-Joe Kuharich fans are conducting a boycott the Eagles Day. Detroit (3-7-2) will be at Atlanta (2-10) in the other NFL game.

Cleveland has beaten Washington nine times in a row since 1962 and hopes to wrap up a rematch with Dallas for the Eastern crown by knocking off the Redskins again. Sonny Jurgensen, who missed the Thanksgiving Day game in Dallas with the flu, is due back but the Skins will have to contend with Leroy Kelly and Co. who bombed New York 45-10 last Sunday.

The Cardinals are in a desperate position, needing both a win over the Giants and a loss by Cleveland to fan their faint hopes. They need a combination to have the Dec. 14 Cleveland at to have the Dec. 1 4Cleveland at St. Louis game have real meaning in the Century race. The Giants, elimmated in Cleveland, against St. Louis and Dallas.

The Bears managed their first victory since losing Gale Sayers when they beat off New Orleans last week while the Rams were clobbering Minnesota. The way they are hunched in the Central Division, it may go down to Dec. 15 and the final Bear-Packer game while the Vikings are in Philadelphia.

Minnesota must start scoring touchdowns or get a bushel basket full of field goals because San Francisco has scored 92 points in the last three weeks. The Vikings have not scored a touchdown in two weeks.

Dallas had little more to do than tune up for later action in their final games with Pittsburgh and New York. The Cowboys may start Craig Morton and allow Don Meredith time to rest his sore left knee.

Although the Eagles finally broke that losing streak in Detroit and come into the game with a 1-11 record, they still face a boycott at Franklin Field by some ticket holders. New Orleans will be there hoping to bounce back from its loss to Chicago. The Saints need two wins to achieve the best record for a second-year expansion team.

Detroit hopes to find some offense to halt a winless streak of seven games (including two ties). Bill Munson is expected back after missng the Philadelphia game, and probably will start at Atlanta. Randy Johnson may open for the Falcons after seeing part time duty last week.

Sellers' Spectacular Finish Nets Top Receiver Honors

NEW YORK (AP) — All-American Ron Sellers, finishing his college career in spectacular fashion, won the major college pass receiving championship while Al Worley and Mike Adamle seet records in other categories.

Sellers of Florida State, No. 2 pass receiver in history, jumped from ninth place to the top with 14 catches in each of his last two games. He finished with 86 catches for 1,496 yards and 12 touchdowns. Jerry Levias of Southern Methodist and Tom Rossley of Cincinnati each caught 80 passes, according to National Collegiate sports service statistics released Sunday.

Sellers has 212 catches in three seasons, second only to Howard Twilley's 261, and Sellers already holds the yardage record with 3,598.

Worley, an All-American from Washington, intercepted a record 14 passes, returning them 130 yards for one score.

Adamle returned kickoffs a record 732 yards for a 21.5 average, while Altie Taylor of Utah State averaged a record 28.6 yards for his 37 kickoff returns in three seasons.

Dicky Lyons of Kentucky set a career mark of 2.253 yards for kickoff and punt returns.

Roger Wehrli, All-American from Missouri, led in punt returns with 478 yards for an 11.7 average.

Indians Eke Out Win in Overtime

FORT MORGAN—Don Gatza's two free throws in the second overtime period gave Cheyenne Mountain's Indians a 50-48 victory over Fort Morgan's Mustangs at the losers' gym.

Coach Don O'Hare's Indians had a narrow 22-21 halftime lead, but couldn't pull away from the Mustangs until Gatza's clutch tosses in sudden death salvaged the win.

Tom Baungarter topped all scorers, leading the Indians with 15 points and teammate Gordie Riegal chipped in with 10 before fouling out.

Rick Zurbriger tallied 12 points for the Mustangs, but he was beset by foul trouble also, and left the game in its crucial moments.

Cowboys Tip Cats In Canon

CANON CITY—Gary Rhoades pumped in 18 points Saturday night to lead Denver West to a 79-54 victory over Lake County in the championship game of the W. Fred Jones basketball tournament.

The Cowboys took a 37-23 halftime edge and held it easily in the final half. Mike Stapleton scored 13 for the Panthers.

Canon City Abbey defeated host Canon City, 34-32, in a low-shooting game for third place. Darryl Sabatka scored 13 points for the victorious bears, while Gary Speakes hit ten points for Canon City.

Rangers Decision Manitou To Take Cage Tournament

BY JOHN SUNDVOR
Gazette Telegraph
Sports Writer

Lewis-Palmer relied heavily on trips to the free throw line Saturday night to defend its title in the Woodland Park Invitational Basketball Tournament.

The Rangers, who met the Manitou Springs Mustangs in the championship playoff, exploded for 19 points in the final quarter to claw their way past the Mustangs, 61-58.

The Fountain Trojans squeaked out a 58-57 decision over the Woodland Park Panthers for a third-place finish in the tournament.

In the first game, the Rangers fell behind early in the second quarter and trailed the Mustangs until the fourth, when a rash of penalties killed Manitou's attack.

The Mustangs, who trailed by as much as seven points early in the first period, put on a heavy attack for 3½ periods behind Ken Boyd's strong outside shooting.

Manitou was never able to push its lead past 10 points, but it wasn't until 6:36 in the finale that the Rangers took control of the boards.

It was Boyd's eight field goals in the third quarter that protected the Mustangs slight lead. He hit three consecutive shots from the top of the key in his 16-point period.

But when big men, Darrell Singmaster, Jack Hickey and Bob Decker, left the game with foul trouble in the fourth, the Rangers gradually took control of the boards, and moved on to the win. The three ranged in height from 6-0 to 6-2 and were key men in the Mustangs rebounding attack.

In the first game, Woodland Park staged two strong periods, but slowed in the third, giving Fountain its third berth.

The Panthers piled up 17 points in the first quarter, and another 16 in the second to take a 33-26 halftime lead over Fountain.

The Trojans came back in the third quarter with 13 points, while the Panthers cooled to nine. Woodland Park increased its potency to 15 in the final period, but Fountain was burning with 19.

The Panthers' Steve Howard took the shooting honors in the game with 17 points. Manitou's Boyd took the tournament honors with 32 points Saturday night He also tallied 21 points Friday night against the Panthers.

MONTROSE—Montrose came back in two of the light weights Saturday night to claim a 25-19 wrestling victory over Harrison.

Clarence Barilla decisioned Ben Casados of Harrison, 12-4, after Casados led with riding time into the final period of their 120-pound match. At 127, Tuffy DiCamillo pinned Juan Collazo late in the second period with Collazo ahead on points.

Now 0-2, Harrison will host Palmer Tuesday.

CC Tigers Sweep AF Hockey Series

By GARY COLEMN

The Colorado College JV's completed a sweep of their weekend series with Air Force by taking an 8-7 overtime verdict from the Falcons Saturday night at the AFA Fieldhouse. The Tigers won Friday night's game 8-4.

The second game was somewhat of a replay of the first, with CC holding a large advantage in total shots, 81-44, but the verdict was more in doubt.

The Tigers were holding on to a commanding 6-3 at the end of the second period but the Falcons starting flying high in the final stanza to force the contest into a sudden-death overtime when Bob Ross knotted the score at 7-7 with just 38-seconds left in the game.

CC goalie Steve Theringer had just come up with a save but was unable to control the rebound and Ross scored the tieing goal from five feet in front of the cage.

The overtime period din't keep anyone in the Fieldhouse any longer than nesessary as the Tigers scored the winning goal wit just 39-seconds gone.

Colorado College started the overtime a man short but Jerry O'Connor and Wayne Horb engineered a two-on-one break. O'Connor carried the puck up the right side and shot from fifteen feet out.

Falcon goalie Kim Newman made a save on O'Connor's shot but the rebound bounded out in front and to the left of the Air Force net where Horb lifted it into the right corner to provide the winning margin.

The Colorado College goal-tending crew, the Tigers used a new netminder each prioed, was credited with 33 saves, while Newman, a standout in the two game series, stopped 41 Tiger shots.

Kadets Fall To Arvada In 1st Half

ARVADA—Air Academy's basketball Kadets were the victims of a cold first half here Saturday night and fell to Arvada, 80-56.

Dave Black and Bob Kerr led the Arvada scoreres with 14 points apiece. The remainder of the Arvada scoring was spread evenly.

Air Academy's Frank Amelio led all scorers with 27 points, but was the only Kadet to score over ten points.

The Kadets scored only 16 points in the first two quarters and were on the wrong end of a 44-16 halftime score.

Bruins Down Pesky Irish

By JERRY LISKA
Associated Press Sports Writer

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Lew Alcindor scored 29 points as top-ranked UCLA wore down Notre Dame for a 88-75 basketball victory, ruining the Irish dedication of their multi-million-dollar sports arena.

Alcindor hit on a remarkable 14 of 18 field shots to lead the Bruins to their third straight victory over a Midwest major foe.

A capacity crowd of 12,000 jammed the huge, domed arena and sensed an upset when the Irish surged to an eight-point lead twice at 19-11 and 21-13.

However, UCLA moved ahead 41-40 on Don Saffer's layup with two minutes left in the half.

The Bruins led all the way from then on, holding a 49-44 halftime margin and then surging 14 points ahead with the second half only four minutes old.

The fifth-ranked Irish faded when Bob Whitmore cooled off in the second half after popping in nine first-half baskets and outscoring Alcindor in the early stages of the game. Whitmore finished as the top Irish scorer with 27 points, closely followed by sophomore Austin Carr with 26.

Notre Dame tried to handle Alcindor with a 6-foot-8 sophomore, Sid Catlett. However, Catlett was merely a jumping jack around the dead-eye Alcindor, although he had the rare distinction of being charged with goal tending on an Alcindor shot which gave UCLA a 71-56 lead midway in the second half.

Air Academy Tops Fliers in Hockey

By CHUCK HLAVA
Gazette Telegraph
Sports Writer

Surprising Air Academy (2-0) stayed undefeated in the City Hockey League by dumping Mitchell 4-1 Saturday night in the World Arena.

The Fliers (0-2) looked as though they might make last year's cellar team prime candidates again when they scored a goal with only 1:43 gone in the opening period when Craig Beeman took the puck in the neutral zone, out-skated two defenders and dumped it in past goalie Terry Finnegan for a 1-0 lead.

But that was all for the Marauders as the Kadets forced Mitchell into playing their game and outskated the losers. After the opening goal, Finnigan didn't have to make a single stop in the period as the Kadets brought their continuous attack in front of the Flier goal.

Kirk Padgett tied the match only 30 seconds later on a short shot from Fred Prindle. It was the first of three goals by Padgett, the last two unassisted.

A minute and a half later Kim Hartman put the Kadets into the lead to stay with a short, lazy roller from Pete Rogers.

Both temas missed numerous setups in the second period, especially Air Academy which muffed several golden opportunities but could only capitalize on one by Padgett. He took the puck from the blue line and the only defender in his way fell down and Padgett calmly outfaked the goalie to make it 3-1 with 5:08 left in the second stanza.

Padgett, who was the best man on skates, put a lid on his hat trick with a 10-footer that went through one defender and the goalie with 39 seconds remaining in the game.

Penn State Dumps Syracuse, 30-12 For First 10-0 Season Ever

By LARRY MARGASAK

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (AP) — Bob Campbell gained 239 yards and scored two touchdowns to lead third-ranked Penn State to a 30-12 victory over Syracuse Saturday and a 10-0 football season.

It was the first time Penn State ever won 10 games in a season.

Campbell broke away for touchdown runs of 87 and 19 yards and also had runs of 40 and 25 yards.

The Orange Bowl bound Nittany Lions took a 6-0 lead the first time they got the ball on a 75-yard, eight-play drive. The score came on a 26-yard pass from quarterback Chuck Burkhart to end Leon Angevine. The kick attempt for the extra point was blocked.

The margin increased to 14-0 later in the first quarter as halfback Charlie Pittman ran 27 yards on the fifth play of an 85-yard march. Campbell's 40-yard run was the big gainer. Burkhart passed to Angevine for the two-point conversion.

Campbell's 87-yard run gave the winners a 21-0 lead at 4:52 of the second period and Bob Garthwaite's 25-yard field goal with one second left in the half gave the Lions a 24-0 halftime lead.

Penn State's final score at 5:27 of the fourth period came on Campbell's 19-yard run.

Syracuse halfback Lee Castner put the Orangemen on the scoreboard with a 21-yard run in the final period.

Syracuse also scored on quarterback Rich Panczszyn's 3-yard run.

Campbell, a senior halfback, carried the ball 24 times and came close to Penn State's all-time single game rushing record of 250 yards set by E. E. "Shorty" Miller in 1912.

Pittman had a good day as he scored his 14th touchdown of the season, also a Penn State record. He eclipsed the record of 13 held by Lenny Moore and several others.

Syracuse didn't get inside Penn State's 45 until the final quarter when the Orangemen finally scored. Penn State's defense held Syracuse to 151 yards rushing and 117 passing, most of it in the last quarter.

Syracuse gained no yards by passing and 59 yards rushing in the first half.

Syracuse finished the season 6-4, as Penn State took the series lead 21-20-5, and goes onto Miami for the Orange Bowl Jan. 1 against Kansas.

This was Penn State's third unbeaten untied season.

Two Top Ends Head South Line For Senior Bowl

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — Two ends with contrasting abilities head the Senior Bowl's South squad announced Saturday for the 20th annual all-star football game Jan. 11.

They are two All-American greats—Ron Sellers, Florida State's amazing offensive end, and Ted Hendricks, the defensive giant of the Miami Hurricanes.

The 28-man South team lists 11 members of the Associated Press All-American squad and two AP Little All-Americans. Coupled with 14 All-American players on the North team announced Friday, the Senior Bowl will have 25 so honored.

Sellers has gained more yards catching passes than any player in major college history. Hendricks, th 6-foot-8 "Mad Stork" of the Hurricanes, has harassed opposing quarterbacks for three seasons.

Other All-American selections who will appear for the Rebels are offensive interior linemen Jim Barnes of Arkansas and Charley Rosenfelder of Tennessee, and defensive tackles Bill Stanfill of Georgia and Joe Greene of North Texas State.

Jerry Levias of Southern Methodist, who ranked second only to Sellers in national receiving statistics, is another standout. So is Houston's tremendous runner, Paul Gipson, and Alabama's defensive terrors, end Mike Ford and linebacker Mike Hall.

Quarterbacks for the South will be Loran Carter of Auburn and Ed Hargett of Texas A. & M., whose combined passing yardage of 1968 totaled almost 4,000 yards.

Hargett completed 169 passes for 2,321 yards and 16 touchdowns. Carter hit on 112 for 1,487 yards and 12 touchdowns.

North quarterbacks will be Cincinnati's Greg Cook, who led the nation's major colleges in total offense, and Bobby Douglass of Kansas, who paced the Jayhawks to their finest season since 1908.

Sellers caught 86 passes for 1,496 yards and 12 touchdowns in 1968 and his three-year total of 3,598 yards easily smashed the national career reception yardage mark of 3,343 set by Howard Twilley of Tulsa, who played in the 1966 Senior Bowl and won the game's outstanding player award.

Gipson, who rushed for 1,550 yards in 1968, will share the running back chores with a pair of bruisers, Frank Quayle of Virginia and Warren Bankston of Tulane.

Senior Bowl players turn pro in the game with winners receiving $1,000 each and losers $750 each.

Coaches for the 1969 game will be from teams in the National Football League.

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — The South squad announced Saturday night for the Senior Bowl football game Jan. 11:

Ends and wide receivers—Tim Christian, Auburn; Bob hamlett, LSU; Jerry Levias, SMU; and Ron Sellers, Florida State.

Offensive guards and tackles—Jim Barnes, Arkansas; Guy Dennis, Florida; Rolf Krueger, Texas A&M, and Charles Rosenfelder, Tennessee.

Quarterbacks—Loran Carter, Auburn, and Edd Hargett, Texas A&M.

Linebackers — Bill Bergey, Arkansas State; Mike Hall, Alabama, and Chip Healy, Vanderbilt.

Defensive backs—James Marsalis, Tennessee A&I; Tommy Maxwell, Texas A&M; Johnny Peacock, Houston, and Donnie Sutton, Alabama.

Kicking specialist—Kenny Vinyard, Texas Tech.

No Kick Coming

ST. LOUIS (UPI)—St. Louis Cardinals' placekicker Jim Bakken set two National Football League records against Pittsburgh, Sept. 24, 1968. Bakken attempted nine field goals and made seven of them. Both totals were new NFL standards.

SOUTHERN CAL'S O. J. SIMPSON
Admiring His Heisman Trophy

Stanford Linebacker Gives Good Picture Of USC's Simpson

By BOB MYERS
Associated Press Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It was a Stanford Football player who gave as telling a word picture as anyone could want of O. J. Simpson, the University of Southern California Heisman Trophy winner.

Stanford had won its first three games going into the Southern Cal contest at Stanford last October. The Indians had not beaten the Trojans in 11 frustaating years and there never has been any love lost between the two.

But Southern Cal had rallied in the closing moments to win again, 27-24. And O.J. had cut, slashed and carried the ball 47 times, gained 220 yards and scored three touchdowns.

The Stanford locker room was quiet. A rather hesitant writer approached Stanford linebacker Don Parish, who had done an outstanding job even in defeat.

"I don't even want to talk about his football ability," said Parish, referring to Simpson. "We contained him for a half but then we got tired and he just got stronger.

"What I want to talk about," Parish continued, "is this. You might think that a player that's as great as he is would be conceited and arrogant.

"But not him. He even complimented me when I'd hit him. Re'd say things like, 'nice stop, Donny.'

"Maybe he was trying to psyche me out, I don't know, but he did it."

Intimates of O. J. can testify O. J. is more likely to knock out rather than psyche out a defense.

Identification by initials only is generally reserved for dignitaries of state such as the late JFK, or LBJ. But to the sports fan, there is no need to elaborate beyond O. J.

Which brings up a new development. Simpson was christened Orenthal J. His mother, a hospital attendant in San Francisco, says an aunt gave him the Orenthal tag but the J. was just an initial, such as the "S" in Harry S. Truman.

Somewhere the J. expanded to James, and O. J. himself has said:

"I didn't know my name was Orenthal James until I was in the third of fourth grade. One of the teachers happened to say 'Orenthal James Simpson' instead of O. J., and I guessed it was me."

Today, however, O. J. has further confused the issue and his autograph seekers. He signs 'em "O. Jay Simpson."

It may be another funny quirk in O. J.'s sense of humor, of which he is bountifully, deliciously if quietly blessed.

At the jammed press conference at USC when his Heisman Award was announced, Simpson was asked if he was born with his talents as a football player.

Glancing toward his coach, John McKay, O. J. with a straight face replied, "As Coach McKay likes to say, I was taught it all."

O. J. met his wife, Marguerite, at halftime of a high school football game in San Francisco, when both were in prep school.

Nothing happened for a spell. It seems Marguerite was dating a friend of O. J.'s, Al Cowlings, at the time. The dating game ended for some reason and the story goes that Cowlings asked O. J. to intercede.

In any event, O. J. and the pretty Marguerite began dating. They were married in June, 1967, and Marguerite recently gave birth to a baby girl. And first child momentarily. And Cowlings? He followed O. J. to Southern Cal and was a standout defensive tackle all year.

Simpson was born July 9, 1947 in the Stanford hospital. He grew up in the rough Potrero Hill section of San Francisco. He had problems as a juvenile and says himself his life could habe been steered into real trouble zones.

"It was close," he has said. "It could have gone either way."

Football entered his life, thanks to the help of several coaches in the Bay area such as Jack McBride and Larry McInerney of Galileo High and Dutch Elston of San Francisco City College.

He starred in high school and junior College and received several scholarship offers.

"I'm glad I chose SC." said Simpson. "When I looked things over it seemed like every player I met was all-something or other.

"I wouldn't have won the Heisman Trophy anywhere else. It was a case of being at the right place at the right time."

Simpson, 6-foot-2, 207 pounds, has tremendous speed—9.4 for 100 yards—and great power. It has been said he is another Gale Sayers of the Chicago Bears—except he is bigger and faster.

O.J. is a close friend of former Trojan All-American, Mike Garrett, the 1965 Heisman winner and now starring for the Kansas City Chiefs of the American Football League.

Simpson replaced Garrett as the leading rusher in USC history but the two are different type runners. Garrett, shorter and slower, running with a unique duck-like stride, is the shiftier and more of a scrambler.

Simpson is quicker hitting the holes and harder to contain. He is primarily a short-yard man but given a chance he can break tackles and go for daylight.

It was Notre Dame's strategy to pin him inside, not let him run outside. "That's where he kills you once he turns the corner," said Irish Coach Ara Parseghsian.

Southern Cal and Simpson still have the Rose Bowl date New Year's Day with Ohio State. But his sensational two regular seasons are behind.

O.J. in 21 games, counting the Rose Bowl victory over Indiana, last year, leaves quite a set of statistics. He carried the ball 646 times. He gained more yards—3,252—than any other college player in two years. And his 1968 yardage total of 1,709 is a national collegiate single season rushing record. And he scored 35 touchdowns.

And in the span of 21 games, Southern Cal lost but once—to Oregon State, 3-0, last year, and then there was the 21-21 tie last week with Notre Dame, the long blot on an otherwise perfect season.

"Yes," said O. J. "I had hoped to have an undefeated season. I've never had one. But that won't mean we won't be up and ready for Ohio state."

Naturally, O. J wants to play professionally and would prefer a California team in the National Football League, either Los Angeles or San Francisco.

How long a pro career? O. J. with a grin answered, "Five years—isn't that when the pension begins?"

More seriously, he added, "After that Ill play as long as I enjoy it."

Fullmer Prediction: KO Of Benvenuti in Title Tilt

By PATRICK O'KEEFE

SAN REMO, Italy (AP) — Don Fullmer, the tough slugger from West Jordan, Utah, predicts he will kayo Italy's Nino Benvenuti and capture the world middleweight boxing title in their 15-round bout here next Saturday.

The Italian, who never has been kayoed in 80 fights, shrugs off this Yankee confidence with a thought of his own:

"I think the fight will go the limit, and I will win it," he said.

Benvenuti said he expected to win so conclusively that there will be no excuses as in the last meeting of the two in February, 1966, in Rome's Palazzo Dello Sport.

That fight ended in a controversial 12-round decision for Benvenuti before a screaming, fruit-throwing crowd of 18,000.

The Italian referee and sole judge agreed with Nino that the tough Utah Mormon was butting with his head. Frequently the referee stopped the fight to warn Fullmer about head work. The warnings weighed heavily in the point tally.

Fullmer and his manager, Angelo Curley, contend Fullmer was not taking unfair advantage with his head and that every time the referee halted the match, he made Don out as the villian. This brought on volleys of fruit and a chorus of boos.

In San Remo the referee will be another Italian—Piero Brambilla of Milan—but Rino Tommasi, the promoter, call him the best there is in Italy. This time two judges will contribute to the point count.

Moreover, the bout is scheduled to be televised throughout Italy and relayed via telstar to the United States.

"We will let the American people be the judge," Curley said. "They will know whether the Italian people are sportsmanlike."

Tickets for the bout were going at $80 apiece, and many were scooped up by jet-setters and film stars. A San Remo shop has already rented out 50 white tie and tail suits.

The match will be Fullmer's first pro outing of 15 rounds but he says he feels good enough to go 20 with Benvenuti.

Of his battle plan, Fullmer said: "Benvenuti has made the same mistake in all of his last three fights. If he makes it against me, I'll be ready to take advantage." Fullmer was expected to concentrate on body attacks while waiting for a knockout opening.

SAN REMO, Italy (AP) — Tale of the tape for the bout between Middleweight Champion Nino Benvenuti and Don Fullmer Saturday, Dec. 14. (ABC-TV; 5-6:30 p.m., EST).

Frazier Set for Defense

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
Associated Press Sports Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Joe Frazier makes the second defense of his five-state heavyweight title Tuesday in a scheduled 15-round bout against Oscar Bonavena, the knockout specialist from Argentina.

Unbeaten in 21 fights, with 19 knockouts, the champion from Philadelphia risks his crown against one of only two fighters to go the distance with him. Frazier beat Bonavena Sept. 21, 1966, gaining a 10-round split decision after twice being decked by the Argentine.

Bonavena still insists he won the fight at Madison Square Garden and adds that he was the victim of low blows throughout the contest. He has asked the Pennsylvania State Athletic Commission to instruct the referee to watch for punches below the belt and penalize for it.

Yancy (Yank) Durham, manager-trainer of Frazier, counters the low punch claim by saying Frazier never hit Bonavena low intentionally.

"He (Frazier) throws a lot of punches to the body before he's ready to let go with the left hook to the head. The referee never took any rounds away from Joe. so he must have known any low punches were not intentional," Durham said.

Durham, ignoring the fact that Frazier was warned for hitting below the belt in the seventh round of the 1966 Bonavena fight, claims Bonavena is "no angel in the ring when it comes to rough house tactics. They tell me he once bit a fighter in South America. He used his elbows, laces and even his head against George Chuvalo when he beat him."

Durham concludes by saying Frazier has a message for Bonavena, which the Argentine will get about the fifth round — a solid left hook. Bonavena laughs at the message and predicts he will floor Frazier again, only this time the Philadelphian won't get up.

The fight won't do much to unravel the muddled heavyweight division. The title picture still has three champions, and will regardless of who wins this one.

Frazier is the champion in New York, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Illinois and Maine. Jimmy Ellis holds the World Boxing Association version, which claims the rest of the universe. In some quarters, notably Ring Magazine's ratings, Cassius Clay is still the champion despite his draft problems.

Frazier, the 1964 heavyweight Olympic Gold Medal winner, won the five-state title last March by knocking out previously unbeaten Buster Mathis in the 11th round of a scheduled 15-rounder at Madison Square Garden. He defended last June 24 with a second round TKO over Manuel Ramos of Mexico, also at the Garden.

Frazier confidently predicts a victory over the curly haired South American.

"Oscar is talking about putting me down and keeping me down," he notes. "I'm not worrying about that, I'm pretty sure he's an improved fighter since I beat him two years ago . . . I've made some improvements too, don't you think?

"This much I learned since our last fight — to get under punches, block them, cover up, counter and execute my own stuff. I see things I didn't use to see, like moves my opponent makes as soon as he starts them."

The 26-year-old Bonavena has won 36 of 40 fights with 27 kayos. Rated the No. 2 contender behind Frazier in the latest Ring Magazine ratings, Bonavena has defeated several ranked fighters, including Chuvalo and Leotis Martin. His most recent victory was a one-round KO of Jimmy Fletcher of Los Angeles before 20,000 fans in Buenos Aires Nov. 9.

Bonavena said after wrapping up his heavy training: "I'll have a big surprise for Frazier. I am much stronger and in the best physical condition of my life. The title will go back to South America with me. That's for sure."

The challenger said he doesn't expect the fight to go the distance.

Promoter Lou Lucchese is expecting a crowd of at least 12,000 at the Spectrum. The fight, feature of a closed circuit and home television doubleheader, is slated to start at approximately 10:30 p.m. EST. Sonny Liston meets Amos Lincoln in Baltimore in the first half of the television show.

The Frazier-Bonavena fight will be blacked out for a radius of 90 miles, including Philadelphia and New York.

Wrigley Says Top Exec. Must Be From Baseball

LAKE GENEVA, Wis. (AP) — Phil Wrigley, owner of the Chicago Cubs, said Saturday that baseball must have a commissioner and he must be a baseball man.

Wrigley — along with Jerold Hoffberger, owner of the Baltimore Orioles, and Richard Meyer, executive vice president of the St. Louis Cardinals — form a committee on long range planning.

There was some talk that baseball may operate without the structure of a commissioner when William D. Eckert was dismissed by owners in San Francisco Friday.

time in Chicago Monday.

Commenting on the ouster, Wrigley told the Chicago Tribune "I don' t think he (Eckert) knew much about baseball."

"Baseball decidely needs a commissioner," he said. "It is as necessary as a jury or a board of directors. When the National and American leagues are at loggerheads, he is the man who must make the big decision, just like the vice president runs the Senate and votes in event of a tie."

Wrigley was a great admirer of Judge Kenesaw Landis who pioneered the commissionership in 1921.

"We will have another commissioner but we never can have another Landis," said Wrigley. "Times have changed too much for that. When Landis took charge, housemaids could be hired for $10 a week and there were only 10,000 automobiles in the country.

"But still the commissioner has to take control and make decisions. There were quite a few decisions he (Eckert) could have made but didn't."

Wrigley said he did not want to propose any candidates for commissioner, adding that "basically, I think the commissioner should be a stable and patient man."

He said he was all for Ford Frick when he was appointed commissioner because "he was a baseball man who was familiar with our problems—you don't go outside for a leader if you run a candy business or a steel mill."

Wrigley, Meyer and Hoffberger—assigned to draw up a master plan for restructuring the game—will meet for the first time in Chicago Monday.

Hoffberger said "we are a long-range study committee and we have no deadline . . . We may be working at it for six months, a year or even two years. Our first report will be to a February meeting of the owners."

T-Birds Top Lambkins On Late Pin

FT. COLLINS—Heavyweight Mike Bennett scored a first-period pin Saturday night to clinch a 26-20 wrestling victory over Ft. Collins.

The Thunderbirds had won all but three matches, and drawn two, to hold a 21-20 lead into the final bout. Bennett nailed Doug Harsha in 1:13 to assure the win.

Dan McClure pinned Steve Bates in 1:58 for the other Wasson five-pointer. Ft. Collins gained one pin and added five points on a forfeit.

Wasson (2-0) travels to Cheyenne Mountain Thursday.

In the decade between 1950 and 1960, the number of professional female mathematicians more than doubled.

Yank Skiers Top French for Cup

By BURL OSBORNE
Associated Press Sports Writer

ASPEN, Colo. (AP) — The U.S. ski team withstood a brilliant rally by the French men's slalom racers to win the first French-American Challenge Cup Saturday.

Rick Chaffee, 24, of Rutland, Vt., scored the decisive point when France's Patrick Russel lost a bind as the two charged neck-and-neck down the slalom course on Aspen Mountain.

It was a gratifying victory for the Americans, who had little luck against the French in the 1968 Winter Olympics.

With scoring of one point to each nation for each individual victory in the slalom and giant slamom competition, the United States finished with an 11-9 victory.

The unusual race, with skiers racing against each other rather than the clock, may become an annual fixture, said U.S. officials, who originated the idea as a gesture of fun and friendship in addition to preseason training.

"I can't believe it," said Chaffee, who won the national Alpine giant slalom championship last year.

"Patrick was right even with me," said Chaffee when Russel went wide with less than a dozen gates remaining.

Chaffee said he "tried to be a little more cautious after that," but added, "There was no way to tell how much time he lost."

Russel, after his loss in the third of a best-of-three series with Chaffee, just pointed to the toe binding on his right ski. The boot simply came out, he said.

When Russel and Chaffee started their decisive run, the French had pulled to within two points of the Americans after a disastrous showing in the women's slalom.

The United States, leading 6-4 after Friday's giant slalom, won four of five women's slalom races and had a 10-5 advantage when the men took the course.

The first men's run Chaffee was the only American winner. On the second run, Guy Perillat won his second straight heat over Jere Elliot of Steamboat Springs, Colo., and gave the French their second point of the day.

Alain Penz, after breaking his pole at the start of the second heat, still edged Billy Kidd, 25, Stowe, Vt., by one-hundredth of a second and Jean-Noel Augert of France defeated Spider Sabich, 24, Kybruz, Calif., in two straight to close the gap to 10-8.

It was then that Chaffee and Russell began their third run.

Henri Duvillard of France later defeated Hank Kashiwa, 19, Old Forge, N.Y., in a third runoff heat, but the American victory was won.

About 400 persons turned out in clear, bright weather to watch the competition on a 40-gate course with a vertical drop of 375 feet.

Mich. State Gets Draw In Soccer

ATLANTA (AP) — Michigan State tied Maryland 2-2 in overtime Saturday and again claimed a share of the National Collegiate Athletic Association soccer title.

Michigan State, co-champion with St. Louis last year, was down 2-1 with less than 15 minutes left in regulation time when Frank Morant booted the tying goal on an assist from Tom Kreft.

Maryland, which earlier had knocked St. Louis out of contention, went ahead early in the match when Alvaro Bittencourt netted a rebound from Rocco Morelli.

Michigan State forward Tony Keyes knotted the score in the second half with a 10-yard shot on an assist from Ernie Tuchscherer.

Maryland, the top college team in the Southern division, went ahead again on a goal by Jaroslaw Chareczke.

Tarheels Top 'Cats With Height

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Second-ranked North Carolina used its height to advantage Saturday night and put down No. 3 Kentucky 87-77 in an intersectional basketball game.

The Tar Heels infiltrated the Kentucky zone for more than a half, building a 19-point lead and coasting home as Kentucky tried a man-to-man defense.

The Wildcats cut the margin to eight points in the final minutes.

North Carolina's Charlie Scott led the Tar Heel attack with 19 points and was aided by 17 points from Rusty Clark and 13 apiece from Lee Dedmon and Bill Bunting.

Football Wives Lead Rougher Lives Than Hubbies

FIOTBALL WIVES
By SHEILA MORAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Ulcers, sleepless nights, and that down feeling after a loss—Kitsie Lilly knows what it's like.

"This is what football has done to him," says the wife of defensive tackle Bob Lilly of the Dallas Cowboys. "And that's the hardest part for me about our marriage: watching those things happen."

Another drawback, says Kitsie, is the ever present threat of serious injury—what she regards as the "possibility of death every Sunday."

But for Kitsie, 26, and most pro football wives, Saturday, not Sunday, is the most difficult day of the week. And Monday can be almost as bad if the team loses the day before.

Bob takes his responsibility as team captain very seriously, says Kitsie.

"He's worked up like a couple of tanks before a game. And when they lose he takes it like it's all his fault and his feelings last forever—like five days. In the early days we used to run plays in the den. But now, there's not much I can do except be there to love him and take care of him."

Sally Otto says her husband, Jim, Oakland Raiders' center, takes a nap Saturday afternoon to calm down before a game, with the aid of sleeping pills, muscle relaxers or tranquilizers.

But, she says, Jim isn't a brooder and takes losses in stride.

"I get more excited and upset after a game than he does," Sally, 28, says. "But he hardly feels like a million dollars the day after because he's so tired, battered and bruised."

"When Don gets nervous I can sense it," says Marilyn Maynard, 31, wife of the New York Jets' flanker. "When this happens I keep the kids quiet and talk about anything but football."

Norwegian-born Jan Stenerud, an accomplished skiier who placekicks for the Kansas City Chiefs, starts worrying about Sunday games on the Wednesday before, according to his 22-year-old wife, Lani.

"The first year we were married I didn't think I'd make it," she says.

"Jan is moody and hard to live with during the season but I think all professional football players are. After three years I've learned that sometimes he has to be babied and sometimes it's be best to leave him alone," Lani added.

"Jan's ski-jumping never bothered me because he's been skiing since he was two," Lani says. "But when I see those big guys coming at him I get nervous."

But Sally Otto says she never worries about injuries—except once when Jim played when he had the flu and got up slowly.

"The toughest thing for me is Jim being away so much, especially at night," said the wife of the Oakland center.

Mrs. Fran Tarkenton compares marriage to the New York Giants quarterback to being married to an airline pilot in explaining why she doesn't worry about her husband being hurt.

"It would be a terrible life if I did," Elaine Tarkenton, 29, said. "I worry more about having to move twice a year and Fran doing a good job for the team. But his mother worries about injuries tremendously."

Tarkenton has escaped serious injury over the years, but fate caught up last month with another star, running back Gale Sayers of the Chicago Bears.

His wife, Lnida, 25, saw it all through her binoculars from directly across the field.

"I wasn't thinking about him being hurt when it happened," she says. "I was thinking about winning like I always do."

But she says the hardest part is yet to come: the rebuilding of the injured knee during the off-season.

Mrs. Frank Ryan has to cope with a sidelined husband too, but for a different reason. The Cleveland Browns think Bill Nelsen can do the job at quarterback better.

"As far as I'm concerned my husband is still first string quarterback," Joan Ryan, 32, says. He's at the peak of his performing ability and in top physical shape."

Mrs. Ryan says Frank is not a brooder.

"He has the ability to bounce back while I have the tendency to lie low," she says.

"Football is a series of lucky breaks and unlucky breaks. Frank is removed from the battle now and it's his turn to sit back and suffer. As for me, it's the first time in 11 years I haven't had to worry about injuries and look forward to surgery in the off season."

Then there's the matter of superstition.

"When the Raiders are at home I try and get to each game at the same time," says Sally Otto. "But Jim is much worse. Last year he bought a blue mohair suit and wore it to games all season. This year he bought a black and white check suit and wore it until they started losing. Now he's back to the blue mohair."

Otto also insists on his wife driving him to the motel where the Raiders stay the night before home games. Last year the motel was only 10 minutes away from their home, but this year, because the Ottos moved, the motel is 40 minutes away. Otto also calls his wife each night before the 11 p.m. curfew.

Don Maynard is superstitious too. His wife says he won't cut his sideburns until the Jets lose a game.

Elaine Tarkenton says Fran will try any omen until it's proven wrong—such as backing the car out of the driveway the same way before each game and keeping a gold key ring with crossed fingers on it in his pocket.

The women mention meeting people and team spirit when asked about the plus side of being a football wife. And as Elaine Tarkenton says: money.

"It's a good life moneywise, especially for a quarterback because the money comes early."

Mauch: New Rules Won't Help Hitters

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) —To hear Gene Mauch of the Montreal Expos and Johnny Murphy of the New York Mets tell it, the crack of bats in baseball ball parks during the 1969 season won't be any louder than before just because the strike zone has been reduced and the pitching mound lowered.

Baseball's top brass meeting all week long in San Francisco, moved to correct the seeming imbalance of pitching over hitting that reflected itself last year when only six players were able to bat .300 or over by changing the strike zone and the mound.

The strike zone was reduced from the area between the shoulders to an undefined portion of the knees to the area between the arm pits and the top of the knees. The height of the mound was reduced from 15 to 10 inches.

And neither Mauch, the manager of the new Expos, or Murphy, the general manager of the older Mets, thought that would materially affect the quality of hitting in the majors.

Both, as a matter of fact, have taken stances on the subject that are likely to find them labeled revolutionaries.

Mauch feels the strong pitching of such hurlers as Bob Gibson and Denny McLain created an atmosphere in which a built-in alibi was made for the hitters, and they immediately went along with it.

"Excuses were made for the hitters last year about how great the pitching was," Mauch explained. "The hitters sort of accepted it, with few exceptions. An alibi was made for them and they were willing to go along with it.

"But a guy like Pete Rose (Cincinnati's outfielder who led the National League with a .335 average) managed to hit. You have to apply yourself like Pete does.

"Pete fights for base hits. He doesn't get himself out. A lot of hitters get themselves out as often as the pitches does. No manager or hitting instructor can teach you how to apply yourself, the hitter himself has to do that.

"I never saw anyone who could teach pride and determination that thats a big part of hitting."

At the same time, Mauch implied that in this era of imposing pitching some players also have applied a broken yardstick in trying to equate current batting averages with existing salary scales.

"The great hitters in baseball," said Mauch, "have built their salaries to $75,000 or $80,000 by hitting .300, .310 or .320. But they may not have been as productive recently hitting something like .280 but still making $75,000 overlooking the fact that the great hitters hit over .300 while reaching that level.

"I think when the existing high salaried players pass out of existence there will be a change in that kind of attitude and we'll have guys striving to hit .320 again so that they can make the kind of money they want to."

While Mauch talks about pride, Murphy talks about the development of young players, and their inability to contend with certain conditions in the minor leagues that are destroying their talents before they reach the majors.

"I think 95 per cent of the strike zone and the height of the mound are not the solutions," said Murphy. "A good pitcher will win off any level ground; a bad one will lose pitching off a cliff.

"I think the problem is basically that we have been trying to develop young players under real poor conditions.

"You take a kid from high school who is used to playing two times a week in bright sunlight and send him to the minors games a week in bad lights and right away he gets bad hitting habits by trying to adjust to the poor lighting.

"We have kids who we've scouted who look great when we scout them while they're hitting in daylight, and a month-and-a-half later you can't recognize the kid because he's now taking a different swing at the ball."

The difference between trying to hit under night game conditions and in daylight, Murphy said, was pointed up even more by the fact that the Chicago Cubs, who have no lights in their ball park, had the highest home batting average in the majors last year.

Pistol Pete Says He'll Shoot Less

By BILL NEIKIRK
Associated Press Sports Writer

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Pistol Pete Maravich is stronger and is shooting better, but he harbors no ambitions to be the nation's leading scorer in collegiate basketball for the second consecutive year.

The 6-foot-5 Louisiana State All-American, returning for his junior year, said his principal aim is to help LSU win a berth in the National Invitational Tournament.

"I don't have any goal to win the scoring championship," he said. "That's all in the past now."

As a sophomore, the flop-haired youngster scored at a sensational clip, ending the season with a 43.7-point average and leading LSU to a 14-12 record, its first winning season in years.

His "game strategy," as he calls it, is to concentrate on rebounding, defense and feeding his teammates, instead of only firing at the basket. But don't expect him to hold back on his shooting.

"If I get 25 or 30 shots, I know good and well I'm going to take them if I can get them," said Maravich, whose father, Press, coaches the LSU squad. "Right now, "Ive increased my assists up to about 10 per game. This is an increase of about three or four from last year."

Young Maravich, the subject of some criticism a year ago because of his frequent shots, feels the criticism is unjustified.

"You've got to look at it first of all from the standpoint of our team last year. We didn't really have an individual who could go on a one-and-one situation, or take somebody in the pivot or anything like that," he said.

"It seems that I had this talent to do this, so my dad figured that unless I did shoot the ball quite a few times, we wouldn't have come out successfully.

"Besides that, I can also say there's a lot of difference in taking 35 or 40 shots and getting 35 or 40 shots. I know that it's pretty tough for me because of the different type defenses that were thrown up against me."

As for criticism, he said. "You're always going to get your criticism and you're always going to get, well, whatever you call it."

Around LSU fans, "whatever you call it" is hero worship. The father-son Maravich team has rekindled interest in LSU basketball.

The appeal of young Maravich, a natural showman with his fancy passing and shots, has sold out every LSU home game. His dirty gray "lucky" socks, which he wears at every game, enhances the charisma.

In three exhibition games this year, Pete is shooting at a 54 per cent clip, well above the 42 per cent he had last season.

The skinny youngster has also put on some weight, which he considers essential to play in the rugged Southeastern Conference. He was banged around last year.

"Right now, I weigh around 184 pounds. I usually played at about 72 last year. I'd like to play between 185 and 190, but I doubt if I will."

Maravich believes he will be able to shoot less this season because of a more experienced squad—and the presence of 6-foot-8 junior college transfer Danny Hester.

"Everyone is thinking in terms of the National Invitational Tournament," he said. "We all feel that if we can win at least 16 or 17 games, there's a great chance of winning a berth."

December Brightest Month For Penitentiary Inmates

The sight of sons embracing mothers, husbands holding hands with wives and fathers hugging children, commonplace elsewhere, is rare at the Colorado State Penitentiary.

One of the few times when these signs of affection, taken for granted outside the forbidding walls, can be seen at the prison is during the few weeks before Christmas.

This is the time when many of the self-help groups hold special Christmas meetings, inviting friends and relatives.

Christmas Season at the Penitentiary will open this Friday evening with the Christmas meeting of the LADS (Latin-American Development Society) and will continue through Dec. 23.

During that period hundreds of outsiders will arrive each week to spend a few hours with the prisoners. They will share some entertainment, a little conversation, cake and coffee and a very few moments of tenderness.

Including a Christmas Day movie, 12 special programs are planned for the month of December. They range from Christmas Tournaments, including outsiders, of the Chess and Bridge Clubs, through festive meetings of group like AA and the Jaycees, to a Christmas program presented by inmates for their fellow-prisoners.

Not all the visitors are friends and relatives. Many are just people who have become acquainted with programs at the prison, take part through the year, and come at Christmas with a measure of good cheer and kind wishes.

And there are those, like the members of a Pueblo bridge club, who take time from their own busy pre-holiday schedules to take part in the seasonal activities.

AA members will be joined by members of street-side chapters. Dale Carnegie Alumni, Jaycees and Holy Name Society members will have business and professional people as guests at their programs. A group composed of men doing life sentences and those in the Radio Broadcasting School will hold a joint program. They expect many of the newspeople and radio-television personalities in the state to join them.

Conikor, a group of former drug addicts, plans a special Christmas program and members from the Medium Security Division will come behind the walls to be present, a first at the prison. The B.C.D.S. (Black Culture Development Society) hopes to have some prominent state officials at their affair.

Inmate musicians, members of the prison's Band Department, will take a prominent part in the activities, providing entertainment for several of the functions. In addition, different musical groups will offer, suitable music in the inmates' dining room during one meal a day. An innovation this year, the musical meals will start next Monday and continue through New Year's Day.

On the evening of Dec. 23 a group of inmates will present a Christmas program for the entire population of the maximum security unit. Sponsored by the Band Department, the Chaplain's Office and an inmate group, the Alliance of Prisoners in Christ, this program will close the planned events, leaving only the Christmas day movie.

Staff and officials of the prison join in the effort to make the season at least a little bit jolly.

Warden Wayne K. Patterson will be in attendance at most of the affairs. Director of Institutions David A. Hamil and Chief of Corrections Harry C. Tinsley attend as many as their schedules permit. The three officials agree that these Christmas programs help to prevent complete isolation from society, friends and relatives.

Associate Warden for Treatment Alex Wilson is quick to point out that these meetings are only successful because of the cooperation of many of the Correctional Officers, who volunteer to attend on their off-duty hours.

During the month of December the bleak landscape at the Penitentiary will be relieved by brightly lit Christmas tree. Christmas candy and other treats can be purchased at the canteen. The mail room is flooded with cards and packages. Visitors come in greater numbers than at any other time of year.

But, the brief minutes of affectionate contact with loved ones are the eagerly awaited, and too-quickly past, high points of the season for the prisoners.

ALLEN-GOLDSMITH REPORT

John A. Goldsmith

Robert S. Allen

WASHINGTON — Wilfred Graham Burchett, notorious Australian-born Communist propagandist and mouthpiece, is getting a visa to enter the U.S.

That's the inside word from usually informed State Department sources.

Ostensible purpose of Burchett's impending visit is to cover United Nations activities as correspondent of the radical French magazine "L'Evenement." His real intent is to act as liaison between revolutionary leaders in North Vietnam, Red China and North Korea and black extremists in the U.S.

Foremost among the latter Burchett plans to meet are — H. Rap Brown, former head of SNCC, who is appealing a conviction on federal charges, and Stokely Carmichael, also a one-time SNCC head and now self-styled "prime minister" of the Black Panthers.

Burchett reportedly is traveling on a Cuban passport —although never known to have been in that country.

The passport was obtained through his Communist ties in North Vietnam and Red China. The Cuban passport was necessary to gain admittance to the U.S. because the United Nations does not recognize North Vietnam.

According to inside State Department sources, Burchett's visa will be for around 10 days. It will be issued by the U.S. Consul in Montreal on orders from Washington. Burchett flew from Paris to Montreal last week in anticipation of being issued the visa.

While the Communist stooge is in New York, it is possible that the Australian government may seek his extradition for prosecution on charges of violating its security laws. Burchett has not returned to his homeland for more than a decade because of fear of legal action. Since September 1962, he has traveled extensively in Communist countries, particularly in Southeast Asia, on a laissez passer given him in Macao by North Vietnam.

Long violently anti-U.S., Burchett is particularly notorious for his maliciously false charges against this country of waging bacterial warfare during the Korean conflict, and for his visiting prison camps in North Korea and attempting to brainwash Allied captives.

CAP Cadets Recipients Of $600 Scholarship

An annual scholarship of $600 has been established to provide flight training for Civil Air Patrol cadets from Colorado Springs. The fund was set up by S. Sgt. Lawrence L. Loos, who has been with the 4600th Air Base Wing for the past 15 months.

"Except for CPA's annual summer flying programs, open to several hundred cadets, not many others have an opportunity to learn to fly," said Sgt. Loos who will be going to Thailand in January.

He said that in his time with the Colorado Springs Composite CAP Squadron he had found only one cadet taking flying lessons. This cadet, learning to fly sailplanes at the Black Forest Glider Port, was using all the money he could earn to pay for the lessons.

Cadets who apply for assistance under the new scholarship will be selected by a board appointed by the local CAP commander. They must be 16 and a half by April of the year in which application is made or have reached that age by the time flight training begins. In addition they must have passed the Federal Aviation Administration's physical examination for private pilots and the FFA's ground school examination.

Girls who apply for flight training will also be considered, but on an alternate year basis. The 1969 scholarship recipient will be male.

The fund set up by Sgt. Loos may be augmented by other individuals or organizations. The fund is being maintained by the First National Bank of Colorado Springs and checks should be made out to the "CAP Scholarship Fund."

Sgt. Loos has been associated with the CAP for 15 years and holds the grade of first lieutenant in that organization. With the Colorado Springs Squadron he has been serving as education officer with the additional duty of information officer.

The Civil Air Patrol is an auxiliary to the U.S. Air Force and assumes the burden of much of the search and rescue work which occurs — in all 50 states.

Industrial Engineers To Tour Coors Plant

The Tuesday meeting of the Pikes Peak Chapter American Institute of Industrial Engineers will be a tour of the Coors Porcelain Container division in Golden. Members will assemble at the Academy South Gate at 5:30 p.m. and depart at 5:45 p.m.

A dinner meeting will be held at the Holland House Motor Court Restaurant, Washington Ave. and 13th St. in Golden at 7 p.m. after which the group will proceed to the Coors Plant. After the tour, conducted by Lew Moulder, super-vice president in charge of plant management, the group will depart in time to arrive back at Colorado Springs at 10:30 p.m.

John J. Lemm Attends Radar School

Radarman Seaman John J. Lemm, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Lemm of 1242 Osgood Road, is attending the 16-week basic Radarman School at the U.S. Naval Training Center, Great Lakes, Ill.

During the course of instruction he will study the procedures of Combat Information Center, and demonstrate his ability in the operatic and maintenance of radar equipment.

The Combat Information Center (CIC) is the operational "heart" of the ship. In CIC he will collect and evaluate information gathered by radar, sonar and underwater search equipment, and pass it on to person in a commond position.

Looking at Hollywood

BY FLORABEL MUIR

HOLLYWOOD—You'd never know it, but Dame Judith Anderson, now 70 and playing an Indian squaw in "A Man Called Horse" after a seven-year absence from pictures, has a psychological block as a movie actress. A fear, she confessed, of the camera!

"On the stage I can make all sorts of grimaces and never worry about them. But with that camera trained on me, I'm always thinking, 'Good heavens, what do I look like?' And I never go to the rushes to see; I couldn't bear that. I was never beautiful, you know. And I've always regretted it."

Speaking nothing but Sioux in "A Man Called Horse" (she is learning her lines with a tape recorder), the famed "medea" and "Lady Macbeth" of the theater is made up as a greasy and wrinkled crone, with three fingers of one hand taped down to represent stumps. But this she doesn't regret at all. "It's a marvelous part," she said. Which, to a real actress, is all that matters.

Richard Harris, in this one for Cinema Center Films, plays an English lord captured by her tribe and given to her as a slave. He later becomes her grandson-in-law and finally her adopted son.

Richard Crenna, who stars in Cinerama's "The Midas Run" with Fred Astaire and Anne Heywood, had a busy time of it when not before the cameras during the making of the picture in Italy. Crenna's parents were born in the northern lakes region of that country and naturally Crenna went visiting and discovered that he had a minimum of 76 living relatives over there.

Director Robert Altman, in an effort to attract sea gulls for authentic backgrounds in scenes for the Factor-Altman-Mirell production, "That Cold Day in the Park," ordered 20 pounds of herring spread daily around a downtown park and reported that only one gull flew by all day, while a pack of neighborhood dogs ate every fish in sight!

Hardy Kruger confessed to Anne Heywood on the set of "The Lady" in Rome that acting is a parttime hobby with him. He owns a guest farm in Tanzania, East Africa, on which he raises cattle, pigs, and poultry and which has a private game preserve and hotel on the premises.

Bob Stack jut got the good word: two of his six completed "The Name of the Game" episodes already have been sold for overseas features. The shows are "High on a Rainbow" and "Rampage." His Universal feature movie "Story of a Woman," with Bibi Anderson, premieres in February.

No one can ever call Lionel Hampton "The Novice," but that's the title of the picture in which he'll play a stranded musician in Mexico for producer Raymond Stross. Mrs. Stross (Anne Heywood) and Jim Brown topline.

Latest guest to drop in on the zany "Rowan and Martin's Laugh-In" is Peter Falk, who will be portraying an English aristocrat. An ENGLISH aristocrat???

Susannah York who began her screen career as Alec Guinness' daughter in "Tunes of Glory" and went on to play several more sweet young things in "Loss of Innocence," "Tom Jones," and "A Man for All Seasons," gives one of the most sensitive and startling performances of the year as a lesbian in Palomar's "The Killing of Sister George."

Dr. John, the night tripper, who is the underground discovery of the year, has been tagged by the Rolling Stones for their TV special which will tape Dec. 9, 10, and 11 in London for worldwide television release. The deal for the New Orleans Bayou folk-singer was made after Mick Jagger of the Stones heard "Gris-gris," the singer's first album release by Atco Records. The TV special will be independently produced by the Rolling Stones and directed by Michael Lindsay-Hogg. Ron Kass and Michael O'Connor of Apple, the Beatles' publishing firm, will be representing Dr. John throughout Europe. So it's only a question of time "with a little help from friends," the Beatles and the Rolling Stones, and Dr. John will be known by the masses as well as the underground.

Richard Crenna, who stars in Cinerama's "The Midas Run" with Fred Astaire and Anne Heywood, had a busy time of it when not before the cameras during the making of the picture in Italy. Crenna's parents were born in the northern lakes region of that country and naturally Crenna went visiting and discovered that he had a minimum of 76 living relatives over there.

Director Robert Altman, in an effort to attract sea gulls for authentic backgrounds in scenes for the Factor-Altman-Mirell production, "That Cold Day in the Park," ordered 20 pounds of herring spread daily around a downtown park and reported that only one gull flew by all day, while a pack of neighborhood dogs ate every fish in sight!

Hardy Kruger confessed to Anne Heywood on the set of "The Lady" in Rome that acting is a parttime hobby with him. He owns a guest farm in Tanzania, East Africa, on which he raises cattle, pigs, and poultry and which has a private game preserve and hotel on the premises.

Bob Stack jut got the good word: two of his six completed "The Name of the Game" episodes already have been sold for overseas features. The shows are "High on a Rainbow" and "Rampage." His Universal feature movie "Story of a Woman," with Bibi Anderson, premieres in February.

No one can ever call Lionel Hampton "The Novice," but that's the title of the picture in which he'll play a stranded musician in Mexico for producer Raymond Stross. Mrs. Stross (Anne Heywood) and Jim Brown topline.

Latest guest to drop in on the zany "Rowan and Martin's Laugh-In" is Peter Falk, who will be portraying an English aristocrat. An ENGLISH aristocrat???

Susannah York who began her screen career as Alec Guinness' daughter in "Tunes of Glory" and went on to play several more sweet young things in "Loss of Innocence," "Tom Jones," and "A Man for All Seasons," gives one of the most sensitive and startling performances of the year as a lesbian in Palomar's "The Killing of Sister George."

Dr. John, the night tripper, who is the underground discovery of the year, has been tagged by the Rolling Stones for their TV special which will tape Dec. 9, 10, and 11 in London for worldwide television release. The deal for the New Orleans Bayou folk-singer was made after Mick Jagger of the Stones heard "Gris-gris," the singer's first album release by Atco Records. The TV special will be independently produced by the Rolling Stones and directed by Michael Lindsay-Hogg. Ron Kass and Michael O'Connor of Apple, the Beatles' publishing firm, will be representing Dr. John throughout Europe. So it's only a question of time "with a little help from friends," the Beatles and the Rolling Stones, and Dr. John will be known by the masses as well as the underground.

OATS

EDMONTON, Alta. (AP) — The annual meeting of Social Credit party politicos greeted uproariously the introduction of a resolution for control of "the sowing of wild oats in Alberta." When reworded to say the government should investigate the cost of chemical control of wild oats, the resolution won approval. It emphasized wild oats constituted a province-wild problems.

The Greeks and The Persians By Hermann Bengtson Delacorte $10

The immediacy and "freshness" of this book (if one could term it that) is very staisfying, and one can read this book as entertainment.

This book deals with the Greeks from the sixth to the fourth centuries, and brings into separate chapters such things as Greek intellectual life and culture, or the Greek wars, the decline of Greek independence. It also has some very interesting chapters on the popularly less known subjects, such as Mesopotamia under Persian rule, Palestinian Judaism in the Persian period, Syria under the Persians, and an intriguing chapter on Arabia. In addition to the usual illustrations of Greek temples and art there is one of the latterly famous Temple of the Moon of Mariba, Arabia.

It is still inevitable that one would draw intellectual comparisons between the ancient and the modern world, though the author does not do it. It comes when he says something like this: "No serious effort was made on the Greek side to examine the sustaining forces of the Persian civilization that held the empire and its peoples together. To the Greeks, the Persians — or, as they usually called them, the Medes — were and remained barbarians. In the unquestiond authority of the Great King over his subjects, the Greeks saw the dreariest despotism; in the loyalty of Persian vassals to the hereditary ruling house they saw blind obedience. They felt no need for a deeper understanding of the life of the Persian subject himself. Despite manifold contacts (at least at first) in trade and in intellectual life (to a certain degree) Greeks and Persians lived next to each other without spiritual contact, and this for over two full centuries."

And the Greeks, who despised the Persians? They fought each other to a bloody dissolution of whatever implementation of Greek national freedom they could have conceived, despite their intellectual brilliance, making it, in essence possible for Alexander, and later the Romans, to succeed with the barbaric "materialism" of Rome.

It is somewhat interesting that the author seems to belong to the reaction against Toynbee, who suggested that it had been better if unity had been imposed on the Greeks by the Persians, after all. (The author does not believe that the Greek-Persian wars were merely border wars, he believes that the Persians used a great deal of effort and organization in their attempt to overthrow Athens, and that it was mainly due to the Persian help that the Spartans finally succeeded, only to dig their own grave.)

Bengtson says: "It is hard to understand how a historian of the stature of Arnold J. Toynbee could even consider the question of whether it would not perhaps have been better for the Greeks if unity and peace had been imposed upon them by the Persians in the fifth century B.C. Such a result (said Toynbee) would have spared the Greeks the four and a half centuries of misfortune they brought upon themselves, between the time of King Darius and Caesar Augustus."

In this, Bengtson allies himself with the traditional historians, as he declares "To make such a judgment is to forget that Western culture today, or essential parts thereof, is based directly upon what the Greeks achieved after they had turned back the Persian invasion in the fifth century." By that, undoubtedly, he means not only such phenomena as Plato and Aristotle, but the Greek beginnings in science, and most of all, the discoveries, or inventions, of the Greeks in the political and social fields.

(Bengtson perhaps, and historians in general, have not not enough material to connect the Greek civilization to that of Sumer, and Akkad though here and there archaeologists are finally getting a real glimpse into the origins of what we call today civilized ways of men in law, in politics, and even in science. Sumer and Akkad, already had developed to a certain extent, especially in the early ages, political democratic or republican concepts — not to be confused with later Babylonians autocracies or priestly rule —, and it seems to be the view of at least some archeologists and historians that the great contribution of the Greeks was to transform the Egyptian and Mesopotamian influences into the forms which they bequeathed to the world. Rome could be seen in this respect as having played the role of transmitting these ideas to the modern world, with the ideas taking fuller reality after the twilight of the Medieval Ages.

But Bengtson's argument for the Greeks — whom he does regard as originals in the development of political and cultural ideas — is actually not simply a rejection of Toynbee's propositions. Bengtson quotes Alexander Rustow, supporting him in a statement which actually is more on the Toynbeean side: Namely the matter of challenge and response. He quotes Rustw, as pointing out the real achievement of the Greeks — the struggle for freedom (that is, city freedom, against overwhelming odds): ". . . the victory of the Greeks in the Persian Wars was one of the great miracles of world history. That they dared, in a situation that was hopeless by any human calculation, to risk everything in waging this fight for freedom, and that — amazingly — they won, is an enormous achievement, an example of how the idea of freedom can shine not only in beautiful and lofty words, but also in deeds."

This kind of statement, including the one that "thousands and tens of thousands of men sacrificed their lives for the ideal of freedom" sounds almost like a Germanic, or Confederate attitude, especially in view of the fact that though the Greeks formulated their ideas of freedom, it was not a freedom for all. The majority of the inhabitants of Athens, and in Sparta particularly, were serfs no political rights.

The population of Athens in the age of Pericles, for instance, has been estimated at about 105,000 to 120,000 persons, of whom (however) only about 35,000 were citizens. For Sparta, scholars have arrived at a figure of more than 200,000, of which, however, only 4,000 to 5,000 were full citizens (that is, those who fought for "freedom.") Says Bengtson: "According to recent calculations, this tiny elite (in Sparta) dominated some 40,000 sugject peoples and no less than 150,000 Helot serfs." Which, once again, can be used to make modern comparisons, such as the situation in South Africa.

Bengtson, in describing the intrinsic issues between Persia and the "free" Greeks, follows the classical approach, by pointing out that "In the Greek world the individual was allowed to develop in the field of politics and intellectual life according to his inclination and abilities" and it is clear that he regards this as the main inheritance of the modern world. "But," he says, "of the Achaemenid Empire (Persia) beyond the names of the Greek Kings, we know only those of a few of their closest collaborators and friends — and even those come to us for the most part through Greek history or tradition." The inference, for a modern comparison, is of course, the difference between a civilization which permits the individual free play (though one has to make a distinction between myth and reality of indivudal freedom) and the monolithic state.

He says: "Though the Persian Empire, after Darius I, presented a concentration of political power such as had never existed before in the history of the ancient world, the fact cannot be overlooked that little Greece possessed an intellectual life of incomparably higher significance. . . In these centuries were laid the foundations of Western intellectual life, certainly not without non-Greek influences, but nonetheless in essence the product of the intellectual achievement of the (free) Greeks themselves."

Bengtson, thus, seems to be in somewhat of a quandary, because though he seems to be opposed to Toynbee, yet he seems to join those who applaud the Greeks of the response to the Persian challenge.

He says that "The world-historical perspective of the Greek victory over the Persians are almost incalculable. By overcoming the onslaught from the East, the Hellenes gave a goal and direction to the political and cultural development of the West. . . It was only through the Greeks' victorious struggle for freedom that Europe, as idea and reality, was born."

However, by Bengtson's own definition, this is stretching the point a bit far. For the idea of Europe was not really "born" until much later, not even with Alexander, who saw perhaps at the most a Greek-Asiatic combination. Yet, says Bengtson, "The objectives for which the Greeks risked their lives are still today the highest values in the life of Western man" though this perhaps should not be ascribed to the Greeks as such, but to the process of transformation in the Renaissance.

However, the entire book has a very valuable quality: In that it is an unusually clear exposition of what the Greek idea was all about, how the ideas arose in the Greek city-states, and what they offered to the world which followed. It is a book which is a pleasure to read. Just a word about the background for the book:

An international enterprise, it is part of a projected thirty-five volume World History, published in Germany, Great Britain, Italy, France and the United States, and will cover the history of mankind from earliest times to the present.

That there is hope for this series is seen in the statement by the publishers that "By taking a world-wide approach to history, the series avoids the parochial view that has so long regarded history as centered in Europe. The contributors have been selected from all over the world, and are all widely recognized as leading scholars in their respective fields."

The book is illustrated with maps (though perhaps not enough) and photographs, to give representative views of Greek and Persian artistic achievements.

Bengtson is aided in this volume by contributors: Edda Bresciani, Werner Caskel, Maurice Meuleau and Morton Smith, and the book was translated by John Conway (and a fine translation he did). Bengtson is professor of Ancient History at the University of Tubingen. Smith is professor of history at Columbia; Caskel is with the German Archaeological Institute; Bresciani and professor of Egyptology at the University of Pisa; and Meuleau is assistant professor at the University of Paris-Nanterre.

Previously published titles in the Delacorte World History are The Colonial Empires: A Comparative Survey Since the Eighteenth Century" and "The Near East: The Early Civilizations."

He Makes It A Habit to 'Get Involved'

Not "getting involved" may be the philosophy of many people these days, but Sfc Walter W. Cunningham of Army Air Defense Command (ARADCOM) Hqrs. makes a habit of getting involved.

Recently St. Cunningham was driving along Cucharras St. with his wife and three children. At the corner of Tejon St. the family witnessed a disturbance involving two women and a man. The man clasped his chest as one of the women, carrying a knife, fled the scene.

Sgt. Cunningham, jumping out of his car, overtook the fleeing woman and disarmed her while another witness called the police.

The sergeant then saw the victim, Sgt. John A. Loftus of Ft. Carson, on his knees in the street, bleeding from the chest. After inspecting the wound, St. Cunningham removed his own shirt and packed the wound with it until an ambulance arrived approximately 15 minutes later.

The sereant also "became involved" in a near-tragedy in 1959 while stationed in Korea. A Korean soldier attached to the U. S. Army attempted suicide by hurling himself into a lake. Cunningham dived in fully clothed, brought the already unconscious man from the water, and revived him by administering mouth-to-mouth resuscitation.

His service in Vietnam from September 1966 to August 1967 was another self-imposed involvement. He volunteered for that duty.

Sgt. Cunningham,'s knowledge of first aid, acquired in the military service, was put to the test there, too, when he and other survivors of a mortar attack administered to numerous casualties until the medics arrived.

Now St. Cunningham has done it again—volunteered for a second tour of duty in Vietnam. he'll be leaving for the Far East in January.

Ask Them Yourself

FOR WILLIAM MANCHESTER,

author of "Death of a President"

Is it true that Mrs. John F. Kennedy supplied most of the information for your book? If not, who did?—Linda Drost, Boise, Idaho

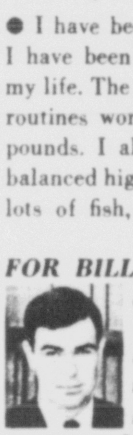
● Information for the book was acquired during a three-year private investigation, through reading diaries and notes kept by participants and from about 1,000 interviews. Mrs. Kennedy was among those interviewed and was, of course, the most important single source.

FOR CAROL LAWRENCE

I hear that you are a great Italian cook. How do you keep your figure and still eat your Italian specialties?—Mrs. Madeline Banks, Rockland, Mass.

● I have been dancing almost as long as I have been eating lasagne, which is all my life. The strenuous exercise and dance routines work off those potential surplus pounds. I also make sure that I have a balanced high-protein diet, which includes lots of fish, vegetables, and fruits.

FOR BILL SURFACE,



author of "Inside Internal Revenue"

How many people make money informing Internal Revenue on delinquent taxpayers?—L. Shade, Shelby, Ohio

● Each year, between 125,000 and 150,000—mostly disgruntled employees, jealous neighbors, bitter relatives or former spouses, and people in positions to know someone's financial status—write or call Internal Revenue to report on delinquent taxpayers. About 4,500 of these persons file applications seeking rewards of from 1 to 10 percent of any delinquent taxes collected. IRS, which has an annual budget of $500,000 for rewards, spreads this amount among 800 accepted informers.

FOR HENRY FOWLER,

Secretary of the Treasury

Why, on the U.S. $10 bill, is the American flag over the Treasury Building flown upside down?—Jim Pruss, Wenatchee, Wash.

● The position of the American flag in the currency design on the $10 bills only appears to be inverted. This is due to the shading used in the design to show a fold in the unfurled flag, thus creating an optical illusion. The flag is actually right-side up.

FOR LUCILLE BALL

Do you ever ad lib on your "Here's Lucy" television show?—Ellen Johnson, Austin, Texas

● Yes, but not as indiscriminately as you would on a live show. I might change a word here and there when I feel it sounds better. But most of the time I stick pretty close to the script.

FOR ROONE ARLEDGE,

president, ABC Sports

Have you given any thought to televising professional five-man bowling team events? If not, explain why?—Norma Brown, San Lorenzo, Calif.

● Professional five-man bowling events have been tested but were not received favorably by the tv audience. In fact, a National Professional five-man Bowling League was in operation for a year but was dissolved due to a lack of interest from bowling buffs.

FOR ANN LANDERS

Do you have any children? Are they sons or daughters?—Betty Bartels, Champaign, Ill.

● I have a married daughter who has given me three grandchildren. Their ages are 5, 3, and 1.

FOR DEAN MARTIN

What is the most exciting experience of your career?—Lou Ann Vincent, Green Bay, Wis.

● That's tough to single out. One exciting experience, though, was the time I spent about 15 minutes recording a song for the flip side of a record after spending all day working on the supposedly main song. The flip side was the song, "That's Amore."

FOR PETE ROZELLE,

Commissioner of Football

If an AFL team were to win the Super Bowl, would it play the College All-Stars in the Chicago Tribune charity game?—Bob Darnall, Bloomington, Ill.

● Yes, the pro football representative in the Chicago All-Star Game against the All Stars is the winner of the previous season's World Championship game.

WHAT IN THE WORLD!

Apple Art Doris Stilwell of Bath, N.Y., has developed a grandmotherly new art form that she calls Apple People. If you'd like to try it, stick two peeled apples together with toothpicks for the body, add another for the head. Use a toothpick to carve eyebrows, eyes, and mouth. Then press out the ears with thumb and fingers. After it dries for a day, paint the mouth with lipstick and add rice for the teeth. After drying another 10 days or so, it's ready for more make-up, pipe-cleaner arms and legs, and clothes and trimmings from your scrap bag. As the apples keep drying, the expressions keep changing.

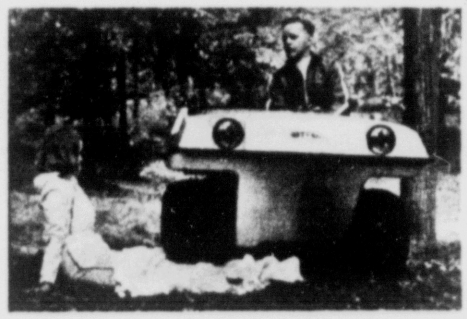
Neatness Counts If householders will "fallproof" their homes, the greatest cause of home accidents—slips and falls—can be minimized. The first rule, according to the National Safety Council, should be for every member of the family to make it a habit to put things away when he has finished using them. Some other suggestions: "Keep mop-up materials easily available in all areas where spills are frequent—kitchen, bathroom, laundry room, garage. Secure rugs with antislip coating or nonskid pads. Keep a flashlight with fresh batteries at every bedside in case of power failure."

Noise Is Nice Most people complain they can't work in noisy offices, but even worse is no noise at all. The principle is that of the crowded restaurant—for all the loud talking, you hardly can hear the conversation at the next table. In quiet surroundings, the opposite is true. DuPont and John Hancock Mutual Life are testing a tape recording of office and street background noises, played low through a speaker system to "lend an air of bustle as well as a sense of privacy."

Background for an Actor Richard Crenna of "Star," reminiscing about growing up in his parents' downtown Los Angeles hotel, notes: "I was a bellboy and switchboard operator when only nine. A lot of carnival people lived there. Troubled people were routine to Mom. Once a drug addict climbed in the window with two knives. She said calmly, 'Put those knives away; you could hurt yourself.' She was too naive to be afraid and that saved her—and me, too."

Richard Crenna



Run down on new auto

A New Softie This "car" isn't likely to add to our tragic traffic-death toll. The six low-pressure floatation tires absorb its 450-pound weight. Designed for use on crowded beaches or uncrowded swamps, it also can get up a snow-covered 45-degree slope—but never was meant for a highway. For the hard-to-please on a Christmas list, this all-terrain vehicle might make a better bauble than another limousine.

Student Protests— When Do They Go Too Far?

By WILLIAM E. STEVENSON

IN F. SCOTT Fitzgerald's day, students were carefree, pleasure loving, and unconcerned about most college rules and regulations. Participation in college administrative procedures was the last thing students cared about.

The faculty and curriculum were taken blithely for granted. To demand a part in faculty selection or promotion or to call for changes in courses or subject matter was unheard of. The young people of that era were stolid at best and unconcerned at least. It was one of the most benign periods in American academic history. Lucky presidents, deans, and other administrators!

Even as late as the post-World War II period, student restlessness or protest was relatively unknown. In fact, unhappiness was felt by older people about the complacency, if not boredom, of our undergraduates. It was a rare person who could stir them to more than glassy-eyed acceptance of whatever was prescribed in their academic programs. Serious concern was felt because the college generation was so passive, so docile, so uninvolved. Freedom from care and a search for security were key elements in the students' outlook.

In sharp contrast are today's students. We now have student unrest and anxiety about their education, their mores, and their destinies. They care about what courses are prescribed. They demand stimulating and effective teaching. They insist upon participation in decisions affecting their social and academic lives. Tradition and custom are questioned critically and put in doubt. A new era in the life of our colleges and universities has arrived. Why?

Many factors enter in. On the one side, it may be suggested that today's students are the children of World War II, that family unity has deteriorated, parental and church guidance have diminished, more permissive educational philosophies and practices have been allowed, affluence has stood in sharp comparison with poverty and discrimination. The specter of nuclear war and unhappiness over Vietnam are factors in the troubled world into which young people now must take their places. The younger generation is disturbed, too, because the actions of those in power and control appear in such marked contrast with the ideals which have been professed so universally, yet seldom practiced.

On the other side, it should be mentioned that many young people today are idealists. More than a few have participated in such acts of personal commitment as civil rights work in the South or with the Quakers, the Peace Corps, Vista, summer programs in ghetto areas, protests over the Vietnam war or the draft, and demonstrations in support of freedom of speech. Thus, young people have acquired, often from actual experience, a passion for social justice making collegiate curricula offerings seem unexciting—if not irrelevant.

At an informal "sing-in" in April, 1967, seminary students demanded the resignation of Drew University president, Robert Oxnam.

To students, a natural corollary to social justice is a demand for personal liberty and rebellion against a society which they consider immoral because it has condoned social abuses and inequalities for so long.

Today students yearn to be accepted as mature adults. They seek meaning in their personal lives and in the educational and political institutions of which they are a part.

How should youth of this type be dealt with? How can they be challenged? How can our society profit most from their intelligence, ideals, and fine instincts?

Disregarding those young people who dissent for the sake of dissension (including the comparatively small percentage who may be anarchists or active Communists), most modern students are earnestly in search of a more challenging transition into adulthood. They should be taken seriously and respected in their sincerity and commendable purposes.

Socially conscious, they are eager to participate in solving the many large problems of our present-day world. True, their ideas may be untried and their objectives those of innocence. Some will be utopian. Mistakes are bound to occur, but hasn't youthful idealism always been a principal counterbalance to cynicism and decadence?

If the foregoing analysis—however cursory or however broad in its terms—of today's younger generation is anywhere near accurate, then how should college and university administrations deal with student protest and rebellion?

Obviously, one cannot generalize. Situations will vary from campus to campus and occasion to occasion. Perhaps, however, a few broad principles may be stated:

1. Students deserve patience and empathy on the part of parents and those who have responsibility for them at colleges and universities. After all, they are inexperienced and still in a period of development and growth.

2. On their part, students should abide by the laws of the land just as everyone else. They can protest against college regulations or administrations in an orderly way. They are just as entitled to the full protection of the state and, if necessary, the courts in the exercise of free speech as is any older citizen.

3. In protesting or asserting their views, students have no basis whatsoever for the use of violence or illegal means—no matter what provocation they may have (or believe that they have). As Supreme Court Justice Abe Fortas has summarized it in his excellent and concise pamphlet, "Concerning Dissent and Civil Disobedience": "Our Constitution . . . generously protects the right to organize people for protest and dissent. It broadly protects the right to assemble, to picket, to stage 'freedom walks' or mass demonstrations, if these activities are peaceable, and if the protestors comply with reasonable regulations designed to protect the general public without substantially interfering with effective protest."

But, Justice Fortas points out, a protestor will not be protected if valid laws are violated or if unlawful action is intended or if property is damaged or if injury occurs.

Vital questions and problems can arise, of course, concerning the word "lawful." If a person willfully violates a law which he feels to be unjust, he runs the risk that he may be wrong. He must take that gamble and must abide by the final outcome as determined by the courts or other authority, even to the point

Civil disobedience was the path Gandhi took, resulting in his commitment to prison. Martin Luther King did the same thing in Birmingham in 1961. He deliberately disobeyed what he considered to be an unjust law (which he defined as one which a minority must observe, but not a majority) and went to jail for five days in consequence. Both Gandhi and King were well aware of the risk they were running, and they were philosophical about the penalty when it was applied.

To these young who decline to take seriously the statement that they should always behave lawfully, we older people, from our experience, can warn them of the backlash that may result if they are wrong.

Recently at some of our universities and colleges, students in advocating their causes have damaged property, interfered with the rights of others, or acted contrary to law. When the time came to pay the penalty, some have demanded amnesty. Here, of course, they have been dead wrong. They gambled, they lost, and like all citizens, they must accept the result of their wrongdoing. If one decides to be a revolutionary, one had better win!

Last spring some students at the University of Denver, although warned that severe penalties would ensue, staged a disruptive sit-in to force the administration to accept certain new election procedures. Because the students disregarded the warning and, in fact, violated a city ordinance, they were arrested and subsequently suspended from the university for a year.

After the violation, when amnesty was sought, Chancellor M. B. Mitchell said: "It would have been the easy way out to say, 'Come home, all is forgiven.' I could not do it, for that would have meant condoning an illegal and disorderly act."

Although the unhappy events at Columbia University last spring were vastly more complicated and serious, a general amnesty was sought and granted in fact, if not in name, as a device to unravel the riotous and anarchic conditions which finally had developed.

The university was faced with revolutionary tactics, apparently preplanned by racial leadership. Authoritarian administrative attitudes and actions, especially in ultimately calling in a large and vigorous police force, greatly aggravated the whole situation.

It seems possible that if the university administration had comprehended the temper of the times from the very beginning and adopted a reasonable set of rules for student conduct and affairs, Columbia might not have been singled out as a test case by S.D.S. (Students for a Democratic Society) and the radical leaders for revolutionary action.

In any case, a less aloof and more conciliatory and understanding attitude surely would have mollified the great majority of the student body and kept student participation in riotous and illegal actions at a minimum.

That one cannot generalize about the proper technique to cope with student protest and revolt was illustrated in 1966 at the University of Chicago. There, members of a sit-in took over the administrative offices, including those of the president and dean for five days. Although greatly inconvenienced, the administration made no concessions nor was police action taken. So the protestors, not having provoked violence or a substantial issue, vacated the occupied buildings, and their tactic was unsuccessful. Basic issues then were dealt with. The more serious violators of university rules were penalized.

Unhappy experiences at the University of California at Berkeley, the University of Wisconsin, Columbia, and elsewhere have prompted reconsideration of codes affecting student conduct and disciplinary proceedings at many colleges and universities. Some have clear-cut policy statements on "demonstrations" so that students, faculty, and public all know in advance exactly where lines will be drawn between acceptable and unacceptable conduct.

More important, the procedure for handling violations of the code and for appeals is clearly spelled out. Significantly, in one case, the regulations conclude: "Police will not be called onto the campus unless there is clear danger to life or to property or unless non-university groups disrupt university operations and fail to comply with the stated guidelines when requested."

Application of elementary principles of psychology can play an effective part. The recent refusal of the board of regents at Berkeley to permit campus access to Black Panther leader Eldridge Cleaver appeared to be pouring oil on smoldering fires of unrest. In contrast, the students at Colorado State University had no issue because university authorities did not object to the students' invitation to Cleaver to appear on that campus.

Nowadays, nothing stimulates student unrest and rebellion more rapidly than paternalism or other frustration without plausible explanation. Tradition may have been good enough for older generations. It isn't for today's young people who demand rational answers.

Admittedly, it is hard for older Americans, educated during the carefree, unconcerned days of yesteryear, to understand the young people of today. Beards, beads, and bare feet may constitute only protest symbols, but they do lead to misunderstanding and confusion.

There is much talk about a generation gap, but don't we really want the next generation to have keen intellectual interest, even to the point of challenging tradition and the customs of the past? Certainly there would be little if any social progress if each new generation merely followed the patterns of preceding decades without question.

As the quality of the education of our students has improved, youth has become more socially conscious and disturbed about injustices and practices which appear to them entirely unnecessary and irrational. We should welcome this development but encourage its fulfillment through legal and constructive channels. We must be fair but firm whenever illegality becomes a factor.

The students of today have an unbelievable amount of energy and a vast reservoir of idealism. We cannot afford to waste such assets which can be applied so helpfully to social progress for the benefit of us all. ◆

Two women and a man were shipwrecked on a deserted island. One day they saw in the distance a makeshift raft floating their way, bearing a single occupant. "I hope it's another woman," the man said greedily.

"So do we," said one of the women.

"Why?" asked the surprised male.

The honest reply was quick in coming: "We need someone to talk about." —Lane Olinghouse

—Franklin P. Jones

The owner of a service station was complaining to an employee about his chronic tardiness: "It's funny," he said, "you are always late in the morning, and you live right across the street. Now Bobby Watson lives two miles away, and he's always on time."

"There's nothing funny about that," replied the tardy one. "If Bobby is late in the morning, he can hurry. But if I'm late, I'm here." —A. T. Quigg

Mother on phone: "Daughter, dear, could Dad and I leave your kiddies with you and Bob tonight? We're invited out for the evening."

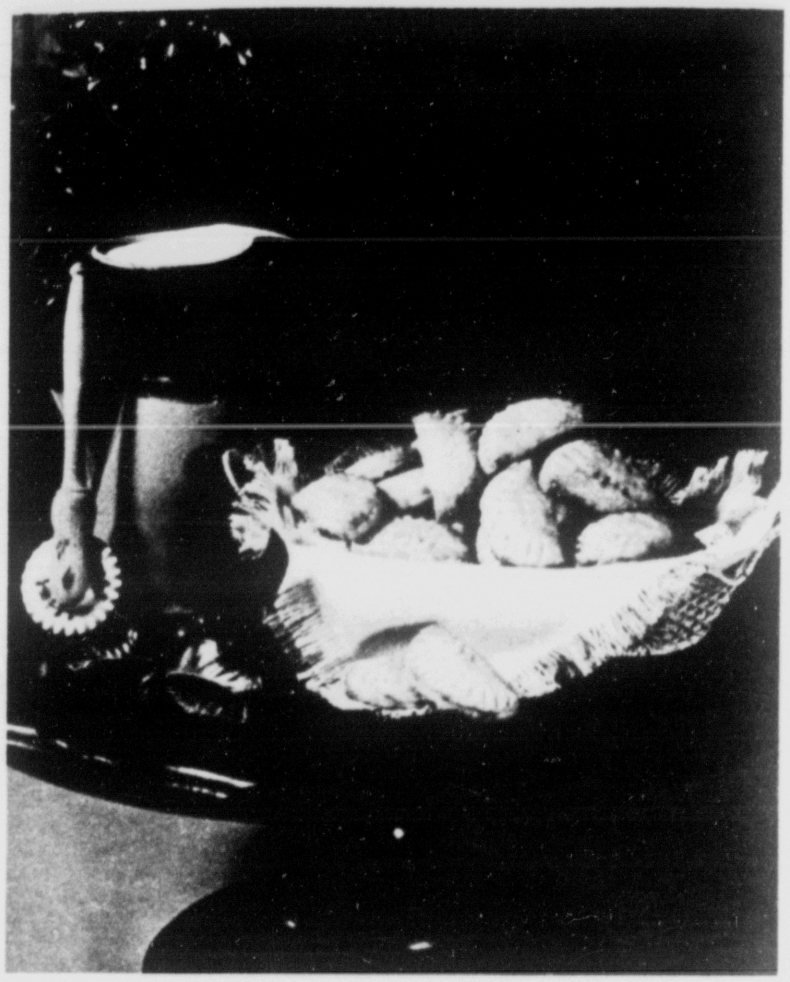
Party-Pleasing Cookies



Jam Pockets, tender, rich pastry enfolding red raspberry or green-tinted pineapple jam, are perfect for holiday entertaining.

MELANIE DE PROFT Food Editor

■ There are many tastes to satisfy at holiday parties, especially those of cookie lovers. You will please one and all if your holiday trays include pastry and butter-type cookies as well as those of full-flavored molasses. Those with a foreign heritage will heighten the appeal of your chosen assortment.

Jam Pockets

2 cups sifted regular all-purpose flour
1 tablespoon sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup vegetable shortening
1 pkg. (8 oz.) cream cheese, softened
¼ teaspoon vanilla extract
Jam (red raspberry and green-tinted pineapple)
Cream

1. Sift flour, sugar, and salt together; set aside.

2. Mix shortening, cream cheese, and extract together. Add dry ingredients in fourths, blending well after each addition.

3. Divide dough in thirds, wrap each in moisture-vaporproof material, and chill several hours.

4. Working with one third of dough at a time, flatten dough on a lightly floured surface and roll into a round about ⅛ in. thick. Cut with a floured 2½-in. round cutter.

5. Spoon a small amount of red or green jam onto one half of each round. Fold other half over filling, brush bottom edge with cream, and press to seal. Brush tops with cream. With a fork, flute edges and prick tops. Place on ungreased cookie sheets.

6. Bake at 350°F. 16 min. or until lightly browned. Remove from cookie sheets to wire racks to cool. If desired, sprinkle some with red or green sugar.

About 5 doz. cookies

Danish Saddle Cookies

½ cup finely chopped blanched almonds
¼ cup sugar
1 cup butter or margarine
1 cup plus 2 tablespoons sugar
2¼ cups sifted regular all-purpose flour
2 egg yolks, beaten
1 tablespoon water

1. Save 1- to 1¼-in. in diameter cardboard rollers from paper toweling or moisture-vaporproof material and cover with aluminum foil. Use these to form the saddle cookies.

2. Mix almonds and the ¼ cup sugar; set aside.

3. Cream butter or margarine. Gradually add the remaining sugar, creaming well. Add flour in fourths, mixing until well blended after each addition.

4. Working with a small amount of dough at a time, roll out into a rectangle about ¼ in. thick on a lightly floured surface. Cut into 3x1½-in. rectangles. Place on ungreased cookie sheets.

5. Brush tops of cookies with a mixture of the beaten egg yolks and water. Sprinkle with the almond-sugar mixture.

6. Bake at 375°F. 8 to 10 min. or until delicately browned. Cool cookies slightly on sheets, remove and bend lengthwise over foil-wrapped rollers to cool. Carefully remove cooled cookies. About 7 doz. cookies

German Molasses Cookies

1 cup butter or margarine
1¼ cups light molasses
¼ cup lightly packed light brown sugar
4 cups sifted regular all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons ground ginger
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
½ teaspoon ground cloves

1. Melt butter or margarine in a saucepan; add molasses and sugar. Heat until sugar is dissolved, stirring occasionally. Set aside to cool.

2. Sift dry ingredients together; blend thoroughly. Add in fourths to cooled mixture, blending well after each addition.

3. Wrap dough in moisture-vaporproof material; refrigerate one or two days to ripen dough.

4. Roll one fourth of the dough at a time about ⅛ in. thick on a lightly floured surface. Cut with 3-in. round or fancy cutters. Transfer to ungreased cookie sheets.

5. Bake at 375°F. 6 to 7 min. Cool on wire racks. About 7 doz. cookies

Ewa Aulin— Is the Star of "Candy" Not So Sweet?

"IN THIS business, if you're all sweetness and light, the only thing that happens to you is that you get stepped on," says Ewa Aulin, star of the movie "Candy."

The harsh realities of show-business life seemingly have transformed a demure 18-year-old into a hard-driving, straightforward, not-so-sweet actress.

"It's the result of the way she was treated in 'Candy,' " says Bud Yorkin, who is directing Ewa's new film, "Two Times Two." "They treated her like an animal. She worked outrageous hours and no one cared. Everyone paid attention to the big stars, Burton, Brando, and Coburn, not Ewa. When she came to us, she had circles under her eyes, a blotched face, and a bleeding ulcer. Can you believe that—at 18?"

Ewa found that the life of a star is more heartache than glamour.

Yorkin's statements appear not unfounded. "They (the studio brass) left her stranded in New York once without paying her hotel bill," says one member of the "Candy" set. "Another time, she had to spend the night sleeping on her luggage in Milan."

This sort of treatment would harden even the most stoic person. What it did to an idealistic, dreamy newcomer was bring her down to earth rudely and show her the tougher side of life. Most teenagers feel that being a movie star is all glamour, but not Ewa. "Acting is a hard, rude, heartbreaking business," she says.

Ewa has no intention of being destroyed, however. She found out early that life is no bed of roses. Her parents were divorced when she was only a year old, and Ewa was raised by her mother.

At 15, Ewa was a normal schoolgirl who earned a little extra money by modeling. Her life changed when a boy friend sent her picture to the Miss Teen Sweden contest—without her knowledge. She won the title and also the subsequent Miss Teen International contest.

This eventually led to film offers and to her first meeting with people she really despises—movie publicity men. "In my 'official' biography, they say I attended school in Stockholm and concentrated on mathematics. That's a lie. I never studied math in my life. Everything in this business is a lie."

In the two years since she won the title, Ewa has traveled extensively ("I grew up 10 years in that time"). She matured so fast that when the offer came to play "Candy," she coldly calculated that "they wanted to hire Miss Teen International, not Ewa Aulin."

People who know Ewa well insist she really hasn't changed privately, that she just has overreacted to the high pressure. According to boy friend John Shadow, Ewa is still shy and sweet. "She's really warm and understanding. She only appears hard. That's what this business has done to her."

Ewa draws an interesting parallel between her life and the life of "Candy," the film character. " 'Candy' is a moral lesson about a pure, childlike girl who is taken advantage of by selfish, amoral people. She just wants to make people happy. If everyone were like 'Candy,' the world would be a better place."

Rightly or wrongly, everyone isn't, as Ewa found out—the hard way.—PEER J. OPPENHEIMER

SCIENCE ANSWERS:

How Much Do You Know About Love?

"LOVE MAKES the world go round," according to the popular song, but just how much do you know about this powerful and puzzling emotion?

Compare your knowledge of the subject with scientific findings in the following quiz. Answer each statement true or false.

1. The most important thing, when it comes to love and happiness, is picking the right partner.

2. Few people agree on what romantic love is.

3. A high IQ handicaps love.

4. Absence makes a man's heart grow fonder.

5. People who believe in "starry-eyed love" are likely to be emotionally unstable.

6. Men are more prone to let their heads rule their hearts than women are.

7. The strong, silent man is likely to have the inside track in matters of love.

8. There are two periods in a person's life when he is most likely to fall in love.

9. If a couple is really in love, the success of their marriage is assured.

10. To be happy in love, it is important that each person put his best foot forward.

ANSWERS

1. False. Sociological studies show that choosing the right mate is only one factor. What is even more essential is being a good mate yourself; being flexible, willing to compromise, and being understanding, too.

2. False. University of Pennsylvania studies of more than 1,000 young men and women showed that love means the same thing to most people.

3. False. Studies have shown that persons with higher IQs have a greater capacity for adjustment in love relationships and average fewer marital upsets.

4. True. University of Redlands studies indicate that a man's romantic feelings increased during periods of separation. The opposite, however, was true of most women. Absence tended to make their hearts grow fonder—of someone else.

5. False. Studies at Capital University show that a romantic attitude tends to go with a well-adjusted personality. Persons with a "practical" attitude tend to be rigid, inhibited individuals.

6. False. The University of Pennsylvania study showed that women were far more concerned than men with material considerations, such as security and high social status.

7. False. The American Institute of Family Relations studies show that the fortunes of love strongly favor the man who is most fluent in expressing his feelings. A "strong, silent" disposition was found to be a definite handicap.

8. True. Wide-scale investigations show that a woman is most likely to fall in love the first time in her late teens and again in her early 40s. Men are most love-prone in their early 20s and again in their 40s.

9. False. Sociologist Judson T. Landis concludes from his extensive research that just because two people are in love does not mean that they can live together happily.

10. False. After long study, psychologist Sidney M. Jourard explains that each person should reveal his real self to the other, expressing honestly what he feels, needs, and believes.

AMAZING MINIATURE TREE-GROWING DISCOVERY FROM FLORIDA!

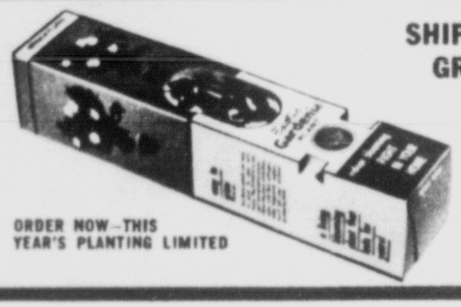
MINIATURE COFFEE TREES!

Imagine the thrill of producing plump, tasty clusters of prime coffee beans (to brew yourself!) nestled among snowy white blossoms — all in your own living-room!

These are marvelous true miniature trees, little botanical gems grown and developed for planting INDOORS where they blossom and thrive all year 'round. All are true trees, not grafts, but rooted cuttings of good well-known varieties, and they grow exotic full-size flowers (and fruit) indoors, right in your own home! A horticulturally amazing adaptation of Bonsai, the Japanese art of growing miniature trees that dates back to 1868, they are the oldest yet newest and most exciting gardening thrill. Developed in the propagating house of our Florida tree-growing plantation, each cutting is taken from certified stock trees that never touch the ground, placed on wire frames, and roots are bound to make the trees smaller just as Oriental women used to bind their feet. It is an astonishing accomplishment! Just imagine—when the Central American Coffee Tree buds, then bursts into beautiful fragrant blossoms (its unforgettable scent of jasmine will thrill you, your family and your friends)—then grows heavy aromatic clusters of beans, you'll even be able to make your own coffee, fresh every day! They enhance and decorate your house and table all through the year, year after year. Nationally advertised in House & Garden Magazine, all these miniature trees have glossy foliage easily trimmed and shaped, all grow from 10 inches when you receive them to 3 feet tall! Beautiful to have and give, they are real conversation pieces.



ORDER NOW—THIS YEAR'S PLANTING LIMITED

SHIPPED FROM FLORIDA GROVES IN BEAUTIFUL COLOR GIFT-BOX

Just think what a wonderful and really unusual gift these trees make. Each is in its own pot. Individually boxed in an especially nice, bright, colorful package that enhances the tree. All are shipped directly to you from Florida groves. You can have your own little grove if you order now!

Grows naturally best in shade, often 10 feet tall

Bears many blossoms and clumps of round ripe coffee beans

Also Available: Miniature Gardenia, Hibiscus & Palm Trees

Miniature Gardenia

Imagine the thrill of producing these delicate, fragrant, snow-white blossoms right in your own living room! Undoubtedly America's most romantic flower, they are easy to grow, have lustrous dark green foliage, up to 18 magnificent blossoms at a time. You can even make your own corsage for special occasions.

A touch of tropical Florida in your home all year. Versatile, it is America's easiest-to-grow indoors tree. Simple growing instructions will permit you to be the sole judge of the tree size — from 10 inches to 6 feet! Palms love deep shade and thrive where other plants refuse to grow.

Florida Palm Tree

Miniature Hibiscus

An exotic touch of the West Indies, a slow easy grower that produces really magnificent blossoms. Famous as Hawaii's national flower, the Hibiscus flowers profusely. There is always a formation of buds behind each bloom that blooms itself shortly thereafter. You have your choice of red or golden.

MINIATURE INDOOR FRUIT-BEARING TREES!

ORANGE

Get your greatest gardening thrill when these sturdy little trees BUD, BLOOM and BEAR fruit right in your own home! Easier to grow than many common house plants, their glossy green foliage is easily shaped. It's a fine way to have fresh fruit all year 'round, and before you know it you'll be eating oranges that you'll pluck yourself sitting at the breakfast table. Bears up to 36 fruit!

LEMON

Countless articles have been written describing the many, many years of pleasure growing lemon trees in your home. Watching these miniature trees bud, bloom and bear fruit as a direct result of your own efforts will be a great "green thumb" thrill. You'll have fresh, full-size lemons year after year in addition to a handsome and unique tree whose foliage you can trim and shape as you wish.

LIME

Anyone having had the pleasure of tasting Florida's famous "Key Lime Pie" will need no introduction to this wonderful little tree. Those who have not should start a lime grove in the kitchen window now. Eager and easy to grow indoors, the lush dark-green foliage, fragrant blossoms and subsequent fruit will provide a gardening achievement not soon forgotten.

Eye on Hawaii

By ROSALYN ABREVAYA

Now, Hawaii, originator of the comfortable, eye-catching muu muu, has left its mark on the fashion scene. Hawaiian designers are creating everything from culottes to full-length pool or hostess outfits. Reflecting the colorful, casual Hawaiian scene, these designs come right on the heels of our expanding leisure life when such clothes really match a need.

These enchanting examples, currently available in stores across the U.S., were culled from the 1969 Pan Am collection, assembled by the Hawaiian Fashion Guild. ✦

Eye-catching splatter-print jumpsuit, in cotton pique, sports ruffled funnel-leg pants. Designed by Kahala Sportswear.

Inspired by Hawaii's early traditional missionary dress is Bete's yoked blue-green-pink miniature floral print hostess gown.

WITH A MONTHLY PROFIT POTENTIAL OF MORE THAN $3,000?

WOULD YOU BE INTERESTED IN SUCH A BUSINESS, RIGHT NOW, IF YOU COULD BE CERTAIN OF SUCCESS BEFORE RESIGNING YOUR PRESENT POSITION?

Are you ready, right now, for the joys of independence and the many benefits you can enjoy as the owner of your own business? Do you want a business offering rapid growth with built-in repeat profits? Would you consider giving up your job and your present pay check if you could prove beforehand—in spare time—that your weekly or monthly profits could pay you two, three, and even four times as much in cash? Would you like to learn more about a business you can own outright in which you make profits not only on your own efforts, but many times more from the work of others?

It is such a business that we invite ambitious men in this area to consider. With a spectacular record of reception in other parts of the U.S., our company is now ready to appoint Pathway Plan Sales Coordinators in the cities and towns shown in the column at the left. If you live in or near one of these centers; if you have a thirst to enjoy independence in a business of your own; if you can invest as little as $1,350, you may be eligible to take advantage of this rare opportunity. We say "rare" because once these areas have been assigned, it is unlikely that they ever will be available again.

Our success and the success of our Coordinators has been built on two things—Product and Plan. Both are unique.

In describing just one of our products, a highly regarded marketing consultant said:

> "Seldom have I had a product submitted which so perfectly meets all the prime requirements for instant acceptance by the public, tremendous volume, and sustained and growing repeat business. The fact that Haste® is needed in every household gives you a universal market. The fact that the housewife can, for less than $3.00, get the equivalent of approximately $30 worth of all the cleaning compounds she is now buying in the supermarket makes her an eager customer. The fact that this product accomplishes cleaning chores beyond the scope of most products makes it extra desirable. And, finally, the fact that it is used up and reordered month after month gives it a growth potential found in only a few other non-food products."

That description fits one of a group of products offered under the Pathway Plan. All the other products are equally unique, and all are the result of modern technological advances in the research laboratory.

All the products provide such sensational demonstrations that the housewife who witnesses their action cannot resist buying. And, as with all extraordinary products, the woman who first uses Haste® can't wait to tell her friends of her "discovery."

The second factor which makes possible a profit potential in excess of $3,000 a month is the Pathway Plan. No Pathway product is available in any retail store. All Pathway products are delivered to the home by individuals working under you who have regular routes to cover. As a Sales Coordinator in your area, you may have from five to as many as 30 such persons distributing the products they must obtain from you. The number working for you will be controlled to some extent by the number of households in your territory.

The men (or women) who may be appointed as Sales Coordinators for the areas listed will be given complete training in the operation of their businesses. They will be shown how to hire and train others. Our Executive Staff will spend the time necessary to launch each Coordinator on the road to success, and will be available for help in promoting the rapid expansion of each business.

The Pathway Plan incorporates many of the advantages usually available only under a costly franchise. The profit potential is so great that you might expect to pay as much as $10,000 in franchise fees or a continuing percentage of your profits. However, there is no franchise fee and there is no percentage to pay. You keep all the profits. Your total investment is protected by a physical inventory of products which have a resale value in excess of $4,000. Your total investment is $3,950, but for persons who are acceptable to the company, we will finance ⅓ of this amount, making the cash requirement only $1,350. The starting investment covers all materials, all training, and all direction and help from our home office staff.

The Pathway Plan is not one for dreamers or for those who expect success without effort. To derive the greatest profits from this Plan and Product requires the time, effort and enthusiasm of capable men (or women) who can follow the clearly charted and proven methods developed by the parent company. If you have had some sales experience, it will count in your favor, but it is not essential to success. If you have had some experience in business management, it will be helpful, but, again, it is not necessary. The prime requirements that we look for in a Pathway Coordinator are enthusiasm and willingness to put forth the effort upon which every success is based. Not all those who apply will meet the requirements of our executive screening committee, but if you have the determination to be master of your own destiny and personally and financially independent, you will want to investigate the Pathway Plan.

We will be glad to mail complete information to anyone who has a belief in himself. All information will be mailed entirely free and postage paid. No salesman will call to influence your decision.

After learning details of the Pathway Plan, if you are then interested in one of the areas now available, we will arrange for a personal interview in which we will disclose every facet of the Plan and acquaint you with the spectacular characteristics of Pathway products. Based upon what you learn, you will then decide whether or not you wish to apply for appointment as a Pathway Sales Coordinator.

Asking for this information does not put you under the slightest obligation. But, we make one request. If you do not have a strong desire to be the sole owner of a profitable business of your own; if you do not have the funds necessary to invest a minimum of $1,350 in your future, don't waste your postage.

To get complete information by mail, it is only necessary to fill in and mail the "Request for Information" printed below. But, do not delay as the towns in which we will establish Coordinators will be closed up within the next few weeks.

The Man Who Feared Santa Claus

By WILLIAM J. BRYAN, Jr., M.D.
Executive Director of the American Institute of Hypnosis

IT WAS just before Christmas. Outside, shoppers crowded the street, and bells jiggled merrily—but the young man consulting me had the haunted look of a man pursued by a demon.

"Doctor, I feel depressed," he told me. "When I walk down the streets, I feel that something terrible is going to happen to me."

"Is this the first time you've felt this?" I asked.

"No," he replied. "I've felt it before. Just about a year ago. I felt bad the year before that, too, just about this time."

As a Los Angeles physician specializing in medical hypnosis, I had encountered patients before with seasonal psychoneurotic problems, particularly involving Christmas. Of course, many of us feel "the blues" during certain holidays, but the patients I refer to approach a psychotic state.

Now before me was a 23-year-old man who lived a normal life most of the time. Yet once a year a vague fear grew in him until even the thought of going outside his home became unbearable. As we talked, we both came to realize that this bad time for him always came at Christmas.

"Well, why not?" the patient said, trying to sound offhand. "Everywhere you look there's some guy wearing a silly costume and ringing a darn bell. Everybody gets depressed at Christmas—you certainly know that."

"Everybody doesn't get depressed at Christmas," I told him. But the more the young man talked, the more he tried to pass off the fears and return to the idea "that everyone gets depressed at Christmas. Those darn bell ringers at every corner . . ."

It was here that his fears seemed concentrated—in good-natured, jolly Santa Claus.

The patient agreed to let me put him under hypno-analysis. Somewhere in his childhood was the answer to the idea that Santa was a harmful ogre.

Under hypnosis, he began recalling vivid incidents of his childhood. He was five years old now, and it was Christmas Day. He relived the sense of anticipation that day and heard himself summoned into the living room.

The boy ran into the room. A giant figure in scarlet loomed before him, his face masked in a great white beard. The figure roared with laughter and reached out to grab the boy. Terrified, the child turned and ran. He tripped, hitting his head on the floor. He saw a trickle of blood—the same color as the giant's clothing.

The giant, of course, was the boy's father, a rough-and-ready type, who had dressed up to please his son.

Another incident flowed from the hypnotized patient. It was some days before Christmas of the same year. His family had taken him to a department store to visit Santa for the first time. The store was crowded, and the boy stumbled over a toy. He fell, cutting his scalp, and he was bleeding. Looking up into a blurry circle of strange faces, peering at him, he saw a beet-red face with a profuse growth of white hair. The strange man dressed in blood red was the department store Santa.

As the boy grew, he consciously forgot the earlier association of Santa with traumatic experience. But his subconscious did not. For 18 years, it never failed to nag him at Christmas.

His was a childish fear, easily coped with now by an adult who understood its basis. As a result, he enjoyed Christmas for the first time in years. ◆

HISTORIC LANDMARK SOLD — This original Van Briggle Art Pottery Plant at Uintah Street and the Freeway has been punchased by Colorado College. Colorado College Buys Van Briggle Landmark

The Van Briggle Art Pottery at Uintah Street and the Freeway, a Colorado Springs landmark since 1907, has been acquired by Colorado College.

Van Briggle will continue to manufacture and sell its internationally known pottery products at the old Midland Terminal Railway Roundhouse at 21st Street off the Midland Expressway.

Sale of the property was announced by Robert W. Broughton, vice president and business manager of the college.

In commenting on the acquisition, Broughton said, "The purchase of the Van Briggle property is of substantial benefit to the College in that it will give us the needed space to house our physical plant facilities as well as some of the smaller departments of the college that are greatly in need of additional space.

"We are pleased that a facility in such close proximity to the college was made available to us."

The 20,000 square foot building was built by the late Anne Gregory Van Briggle as a memorial to her husband, Artus Van Briggle, who died in 1904.

It was in Paris that he encountered exquisite pieces of Chinese pottery, made at the time of the Ming Dynasty in the 14th century A.D., that influenced his whole career as a potter.

Determined to discover the lost art of this remarkable glaze, he studied and experimented over many years until he was able to reproduce the "Matte" finish or "dead" of Imperial China.

Van Briggle came to Colorado Springs in 1899 and did his first work in the cottage at the rear of 615 N. Nevada Ave.

By 1901 the first pottery ever to be sold commercially, was fired and by 1904 he had perfected his experiments in color and glaze.

He received more awards than any other American potter and his work remains paramount in American ceramics today.

Original pieces can be found in the Louvre in Paris, the Smithsonian Institute and museums throughout the world.

The pottery became world famous for its two relevant colors, turquoise Ming, which is a luminous blue and Persian rose, a shadowy rouge color.

The hallmark, or signature of the maker, is the well known double "A" placed in a square and is etched on the bottom of each of the original pieces.

The pottery was purchased by J. H. Lewis and I. F. Lewis in 1922.

Local Bank Sponsors Course In Poise

Men and women employes of the Colorado Springs National Bank are taking advantage these days of a self improvement course geared to increase their personal charm and poise.

Sponsored by the bank and under the director-instructorship of Mrs. Jeannie Stark, owner of the Jeannie School of Charm, 1227 Mountain View Ln., classes have been in progress since May of this year.

Mrs. Stark reports that she is conducting classes for women on a one class per six week basis with a total of five women per class from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. on Wednesdays.

During the class students are taught visual poise, make-up application, body sculpturing and wardrobe, with hair styling by Mr. Antonio, Neusteters and voice and diction taught by Maggie Huston, KVOR.

The men's classes are conducted at the bank rather than at the Jeannie Studio and will have a total of 12 persons.

The agenda consists of lectures stressing masculine poise in the field of executive activities. Mrs. Stark will also conduct these classes on a 7 to 9 p.m. basis. All classes are exclusively for employes of the bank.

Improvement of customer relations is the target of the entire program.

The bank management believes that the program, the only one of its type in progress in the local area, will build confidence in employes when dealing with the public and will enable them to project a better image of themselves and of the bank.

Mrs. Stark, a native of Nebraska and a biology student at Colorado State University, taught at the John Robert Powers modeling school in Denver for 10 years.

She came to Colorado Springs and opened her school of charm in 1966. The school specializes in teaching charm and modeling for women.

Her husband, James, is presently a graduate student in the field of management and engineering at Denver University. He is presently affiliated as a civil engineer wth Ent.

The couple have a daughter, a student at Bates elementary school.

Rose Realty Adds Salesman To Staff

George Havens, formerly a finance and insurance executive, has been named a real estate salesman with Rose Realty Co., 2367 East Platte Avenue.

He has been a licensed real estate salesman since 1955.

Havens attended Washburn College, Topeka, Kan. and Denver University, majoring in prelaw courses.

He entered the consumer finance field in 1939 with one of Colorado Springs' largest finance companies, and was soon promoted to manager.

After serving with the Air Corps in World War II as a classification specialist, Havens returned to Colorado Springs and to his position as manager of the finance firm.

He entered business for himself in Lamar in 1946 under the name of Havens Loan Co.

The company, along with a general insurance agency, was successfully operated until its sale in 1959.

In 1960 Havens became a futures trader in commodities; and was accepted as a member on the Chicago Open Board of Trade.

He is a communicant of the Chapel of Our Savior and has been a lay-reader in the Church since 1950.

Havens is a member of Masonic Lodge No. 90, AF and AM, Southern Colorado Consistory, and Al Kaly Shrine.

He and his wife, Ardis, live at 107 W. Cheyenne Rd.

Motivation Is Vital to Production

Motivation is intricately and inseparably related to production and without it production declines, according to M. Blaine Lee in an article in the Colorado Business Review, a publication of the University of Colorado business research division.

A former faculty member at the University of British Columbia, Lee asserts the main challenge of business management today is to provide incentives for workers which will result in higher productivity.

In the review article, he analyzes past and present management approaches to motivation, recalling that threats of punishment and wage reduction once were used by management to motivate the lazy worker.

Today, Lee notes, the exploitation approach has been abandoned in favor or more positive approaches such as the rational-economic approach which assumes that an individual will respond to money incentives.

The social approach attempts to make the worker socially content in his environment.

Through recognition of the worker's need for self-fulfillment, employers using the improved job value approach provide employees with a sense of responsibility and an opportunity to show their abilities.

The complex-man approach combines all three of these and is based on the variations of man's motives in different situations.

Flea Market Moves to Covered Area

The Flea Market which has been operating in the parking lot of the Colorado Springs dog track north of the city, has moved to a new, sheltered location.

Donald S. O'Regan, manager, reports that the new site is lo- the east side of the track and contains 35,000 square feet plus an outside area for vehicle parking.

The market will continue to operate every Saturday and Sunday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. as it has during the past five months.

Penney Credit Co. Shows $6 Million Net

J.C. Penney Credit Corp. announced today net earnings for the nine months ended Oct. 26 of $5,563,649 after provision for federal income taxes of $6,308,000.

Kenneth S. Axelson, chairman, and Arthur Jacobsen, president, said that this compared with net earnings for the same 39 weeks last year of $4,724,489 after provision for federal income taxes of $4,350,000.

The Credit Corp., Holly owne dsubsidiary of J. C. Penney Company, Inc., purchases customer receivables arising from the retail credit sales of the parent.

Its income is derived from charges to the parent company based on fixed charged incurred.

Penney Corp. Shows 13 Per Cent Gain

J.C. Penney Co., Inc., tuned up for the Christmas season with a 13.0 per cent November sales gain despite this year's later Thanksgiving.

Chairman William M. Batten and Pres. C. L. Wright noted no significant change in the strong retailing picture as they reported volume for the five weeks ended Nov. 30 rose to a record $376,071,727 from $332,962,023 for the same 1967 period, an increase of $43,109,704.

While the period had 29 selling days, the same number as last year, only two selling days were post-Thanksgiving this year compared to eight such days in 1967.

This was significant to this year's November performance, since the weekend after Thanksgiving traditionally marks the beginning of the Christmas rush.

November was the Company's 68th straight monthly reporting period of sales gains.

IMC Official Attends MSU Lenders Course

Norman Peterson, assistant vice president of Intermountain Mortgage Co., a division of Exchange National Bank, recently attended an income property lenders course at Michigan State University.

This was sponsored by the Mortgage Bankers Association and had mortgage people in attendance from over 30 states.

Modern Barber Salon Opens in Rustic Hills

The Sculptur-Kut Hairstyling and Barber Salon is now open for business in the Rustic Hill Plaza shopping center, 3973 Palmer Park Blvd.

Mr. Delfino, manager, reports that the salon will offer the Roffler Natural Look Technique, the latest concept in men's hair grooming.

The shop will specialize in razor cutting, coloring, straightening and an all inclusive line of male hairstyling and barbering.

Also featured is a complete line of hairpieces, mustaches, beards and sideburns.

Mr. Delfino is also a distributor of M'Lord hairpieces.

The shop willl make appointments for the busy executive and professional man.

Dr. Delfino is a native of Colorado and served with the U.S. Navy from 1954 to 1957.

He attended barber school in Pueblo in 1959 and a hairstyling school in California in 1967. At the latter school he studied under Patrick Martinez a famous stylist in Oakland.

Later he took more schooling in Albuquerque, N.M. where he learned the Roffler Sculptur-Kut technique in razor cutting and styling.

The shop also offers the contour cut plus all types of facial massage and clay packs.

The Sculptur-Kut is a style which allows the stylist to taper the hair ends to interlock.

Mr. Delfino has lived in Colorado Springs since 1960. He and his wife Lenora are the parents of four children.

Kaman Scientist Authors Three Journal Articles

Dr. William J. Veigele, a research physicist with Kaman Nuclear, a division of Kaman Sciences Corp., Colorado Springs, recently authored papers accepted and published by three internationally recognized professional journals.

They were "Electron Momenta in Monte Carlo X-Ray Transport" which appeared in the September issue of the Journal of Applied Physics, "Spin Hamiltonian Derivation of Paramagnetic Susceptibility" published in the September American Journal of Physics, and "High Field Paramagnetic Susceptibility" published by the Journal of Chemical Education in October.

Dr. Veigele joined Kaman Nuclear in 1964 with 15 years of prior experience in research and education.

At Kaman he has been involved in research concerning experimental and theoretical atomic and solid state physics, including radiation effects on electronic materials and their quantum electronic properties.

He is currently investigating X-ray transport through and deposition in materials. Dr. Veigele has also contributed to instrument studies for underground nuclear testing and to studies of ballistic missile and decoy vulnerability.

Double Wide Mobile Homes Go on Display

Southwest Mobile Homes, 4710 N. Nevada Ave., now has four new double-wide model homes on display.

Gil Longnecker, president of the company, stated that these homes are available in two, three, and four bedrooms with two baths.

The advantages to these new factory built double wide units is the unique house type arrangements that are achieved, together with luxury at modest prices.

Several of the display homes have elevated dining rooms which overlook a sunken living room.

Also featured are fireplaces, wall-to-wall carpeting, deluxe furnishings, latest design kitchens with built in eye-level ranges, automatic defrost refrigerator freezers, garbage disposals, and laundry centers.

The local company can complete these homes on the buyers' site in as little as three days.

These model mobile homes are open for inspection Monday through Saturday 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. and Sunday afternoon 1 to 6 p.m.

MPR Sets Dividends On Its Stocks

The board of directors of the Missouri Pacific Railroad has declared a dividend of $1.25 per share on the Company's Class A stock and a dividend of $5.00 per share on its Class B stock, both payable on Dec. 23 to holders of record Dec. 13.

This will bring dividends declared on MoPac Class A stock to a total of $5.00 a share for the year.

A dividend of $4.00 per share was also paid on MoPac Class B stock at this time last year.

In the past four years, cotton textile imports into the U.S. have risen by 50 per cent. In 1967, 300 million square yards of foreign man-made fibers reached the U.S.

Lumber Prices Forcing Home Cost Increases

A home building industry spokesman said today that sizeable lumber price increases in the past year are forcing the cost of homes higher throughout the nation.

These incrases, said Eugene A. Gulledge, First Vice President of the National Association of Home Builders, will have a "tragic effect" on meeting the nation's housing needs.

"Specifically," he said, "they can very well make shambles of any efforts to provide for low and moderate income families no matter how well -intended the Congressionally -authorized housing programs. The situation demands deep examination.

The Greensboro, N.C., home builder made the statements in testimony prepared for a Senate Select Committee on Small Business which opened a hearing on wood needs of the future.

Gulledge cited price increases which have occurred throughout the country in the past year which have ranged from 20 to 85 per cent — increases which on an average house priced at $25,000 has added about $800 to the cost.

For instance, he said, home builders in Arkansas were paying an average of $95 per 1,000 board feet of framing lumber last November; now in November, 1968, they are paying $142.50 — a 50 per cent increase.

Father Seeks Daughter by 10,000 Letters

REDLANDS, Calif. (AP) — The father of a teen-aged girl who vanished last March has mailed letters to more than 10,000 newspapers in the United States and Canada, asking help in finding her.

Norman Ernstein says the effort to contact every paper in the country cost about $2,500 and it would have been twice that had he not had help from his church, co-workers.

Elizabeth Lurene Ernstein, 15, was last seen half a mile from home, walking from school. Search by authorities and volunteers from a nearby air base disclosed no trace.

Police ruled out kidnaping because there was no ransom try and said the girl probably is a runaway.

Ernstein offered a $1,000 reward after she disappeared, later upped it to $5,000, advertised in papers and asked hippie groups to watch for her.

Ernstein, who works at an aerospace firm, had to rent a truck to bring all the letters to the post office Thursday.

"I still have hope," he said. "I don't know what the odds are for the success of this packet, but no matter how small they are I still have to play them."

Springs Man Is Part of Firm Merger

Colorado Agency Co., an insurance firm serving Denver for more than 64 years, has merged with Harlan of Denver Incorporated it was announced today. Operating under the name Harlan of Denver Incorporated, offices are located at 838 Grant Street, Denver, Colorado.

Harlan of Denver Incorporated was formed earlier this year with the merger of two Denver firms, Corbin Douglass, Inc. and Headrick & Co. The organization is a subsidiary of Harlan Incorporated, which is based in Houston, Tex.

In 1945, Rex Ruppel, a native of Colorado Springs, became coowner of the P. R. Spahr Agency, Inc., an insurance agency established in 1904. The name of the agency was changed to Colorado Agency Co. in 1957. Mr. Ruppel came to the Spahr Agency after serving three and a half years in the Navy. He is a member of Denver's Chamber of Commerce, Convention and Visitors Bureau, Kiwanis Club and the Christ Methodist Church. He is also a member of the Colorado Insurors Association, Inc., and the Denver Insurors Association, Inc.

Johns-Manville Adds Warehouse In Florence

Johns-Manville Products Corp. has completed its new $125,000 warehouse addition at the Florence plant and also has added two huge new trucks to its quarry operation at Coaldale, according to Bob Earl, plant manager.

The trucks, supplied by Triangle Truck Service of Canon City, were deilvered last week to Bob Smith, quarry superintendent for the Florence plant.

The addition of the new 20-ton trucks has made it possible for the quarry to double its capacity. Other new mining equipment for the Coaldale quarry is being considered, Earl reported.

At the time Johns-Manville bought out the wallboard interests of Fibreboard Paper Products Corp. last January, the Florence plant was working one shift of about 25 men. Today the plant is on a three shift basis and employment has jumped to 65.

During the month of October, the Florence plant turned out a total of 6,100,000 feet of wallboard to establish a new record production.

"We anticipate reaching a production peak of 50 million feet of board in 1968," Earl stated, "and if our projections are correct we'll hit a 50 per cent increase in 1969 over this year."

On tap for 1969 are a $50,000 replacement of the plant's fork truck fleet plus an additional $25,000 replacement expenditure within the plant's main forming line.

The Florence J-M plant, which formerly serviced a three-state sales area, now is serving an 11-state area covered by a Johns-Manville sales force.

Since the sales area has been more than doubled, the J-M plant here has reported tremendous increase over 1967 prodcction figures. The Johns-Manville business expansion has come despite 10 major competitors in the area, Earl stated.

NEW ORLEANS DECOR — The produce department of the newly remodeled Miller Supermarket store at 2001 Southgate Rd., is gaily lighted with hanging lamps and is cherry against the wrought iron decor reminiscent of old New Orleans. KKTV Slated to Complete Move to AFCO Stage

KKTV-KKFM will begin programming from its new location, 3200 N. Nevada Ave., the former Alexander Film Co. stage, starting this week.

The announcement of the firm's move from its 512 S. Tejon St., location was made by George W. Jeffrey, vice president and general manager for Garvey Communications Systems Inc.

The Garvey firm has negotiated a long term lease with Cortland Dietler, of Denver, for the use of the stage.

The facility has been fully remodeled to include technical rooms, offices and programming areas.

It is completely equipped for local origination of programs plus the CBS network offerings.

The station can transmit color slides, films, tape and network signals and is fully staffed and equipped for complete news coverage.

In connection with the move, Hal Kennedy, in addition to his news director position, will assume a newly created post of assistant to the vice president.

His responsibilities in this field will be in the area of decision making at the executive level with particular emphasis on personnel and related management problems, Jeffrey said.

Promoted to program director is Miss Mae Dene Ellis, executive secretary to Jeffrey.

This position had been filled by Kennedy for many years and involves programming film, purchasing and network clearances for the entire TV operation.

The firm has a local staff of approximately 45 full and part time employes. Included are Frank Clinebell, sales manager, Kurt Conrad, Rick Bruce, Bill Maestas and John McVise, producer directors.

In addition to Kennedy, on-the-air-personnel include Thorn Faulks reporter-photographer, Dan Rouse in the same capacity, Robert Smith, weatherman, George Beatie, operations manager, Ross Beatty, staff announcer, Jack Finlayson, sports director and Roger Moore, news reporter, photographer and sales representative.

Other personnel include Cozy Strang, chief engineer, George Burnikel, business manager, Beverly Trentz, continuity director, Annette Warhola, traffic director and Harold Luitzenich, J. D. Caldwell, account executives.

Academy Coach To Talk on Sport Financing

Ben Martin, U.S. Air Academy football coach, will speak at the Colorado Springs-Pueblo

The dinner meeting begins at 6:30 p.m., followed by the technical session at 8:45 p.m.

Martin's topic will be "Financing a Service Academy Athletic Program."

Martin is a service academy graduate, graduating with honors from the U.S. Naval Academy in 1945.

He was brigade commander during his senior year. Playing in every football game while at Navy as an end or halfback, he received All-American mention in 1944 as an end.

He lettered three years in track while attending Annapolis.

Martin began his coaching career at his alma mater following a stint of sea duty, and served as assistant coach from 1947 through 1955 before taking over the head coaching job at the University of Virginia, where he served for two seasons before coming to the Air Force Academy.

The "dean" of service academy football coaches, Martin began his 11th season at the helm of the Air Force Academy football program this fall. He's guided the Falcons through formidable years in astonishing fashion, including two post-season bowl appearances.

His first year at the Academy was one of the most spectacular coaching debuts in the history of college football. The Academy had yet to graduate its first class, when in 1958, Martin led the cadets through an undefeated season and an ultimate appearance in the 1959 Cotton Bowl where the Falcons battled to a scoreless tie with powerful Texas Christian.

In 1963, following a hugely successful 7-3 campaign, Martin's team played in the Gator Bowl in Jacksonville, Fla.

An accomplished after dinner speaker and athlete, Martin has authored two books which are currently on the stands — "Ben Martin's Flexible — T Offense," and "End Play."

The meeting will be held jointly with the American Society of Military Controllers. Wives will also be in attendance. The public is invited to attend Chapter meetings. Reservations may be made by calling 635-2541 or Pueblo at 545-[illegible]31.

Police Pension Fund To Disburse Back Pay

DENVER (AP)—Sixteen children of former Denver policemen, including two killed in the line of duty, will receive $32,245.19 in back pay from the Police Pension Fund.

City Auditor Charles Byrne said the six widows involved are not eligible for benefits because they have remarried. A court ruling make the payments available to the children.

Byrne said the mothers have been receiving the monthly payments for their children since last April and that the checks sent Friday represent back payments for six years.

The largest amount will go to Mrs. Elione Wood of Virginia Beach, Va., $11,400.29. She is the widow of Donald C. Seick, shot to death Jan. 12, 1958, as he attempted to question a filling station holdup suspect. The Seicks were the parents of six children at the time of the shooting.

Mrs. Helen P. Miller of Wheat Ridge will receive $7,249.30 for the support of her two children. She is the former Mrs. Carl B. Knobbe. Knobbe was fatally wounded Sept. 16, 1962, while hunting a robber.

Scranton Encouraged By Middle East Talk

CAIRO (AP) — William W. Scranton said today he is "more encouraged" about the possibilities of a peaceful settlement in the Middle East after his lengthy talk Friday with Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser.

Scranton, President-elect Richard M. Nixon's special envoy, met with newsmen shortly before leaving by plane for Saudi Arabia on the next leg of his Middle East tour.

The former Pennsylvania governor said he and Nasser also discussed possible resumption of diplomatic relations between Egypt and the United States.

"This would be helpful and I am sure President Nasser feels likewise," Scranton said.

Meanwhile, U.N. peace envoy Gunnar V. Jarring of Sweden arrived in Amman Saturday for a one-day visit, the first leg of a tour of several Arab capitals.

Comptroller Says He Is 'Flabbergasted'

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — City Comptroller Hyman A. Pressman describes himself as "flabbergasted" at having received an advice-seeking letter from President-elect Richard M. Nixon.

The letter asked for the comptroller's assistance in "finding persons who can make significant contributions to our country."

"I don't know how I got on the mailing list," Pressman said. He disclosed that this was the second letter he had received from Nixon. The first letter, he said, thanked him for his campaign work.

Financial Roundup

By ED MORSE

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market this week shied off from making a new record or of attaining the Wall Street millenium of "Dow 1,000" but afair degree of optimism remained that these things could be attained after the market consolidates.

Analysts pointed out that the Dow Jones industrial average had climbed 36.67 points in the four weeks prior to the one just ended. Therefore, it came as no great surprise to many that the average this week declined 6.84 to 978.24.

This was a moderate correction of a huge advance and fits into the pattern of market behavior, purely on a technical basis, they noted.

The decline, however, was triggered by surprise news of higher interest rates. The stock market always dislikes dearer money. The major commercial banks boosted their "prime" rate — the rate they charge their bigest and best corporate customers — to 6½ per cent from 6¼ per cent.

When the news came on Monday, the stock market was advancing vigorously. Even as the news came and was digested, there was no panicky rush for the exits on the New York Stock Exchange. The bond market responded immediately by taking a steep dive. Only later in the day did the stock market pare away its gains and settle down to a slight loss. Another moderate decline came on Tuesday. This was in advance of the Wednesday closing in order to catch up with paperwork. A stiffer setback came on Thursday and on big volume, exceeding 19 million shares — but this was the usual thing after a midweek closing when institutional investors pile up orders while the markets are closed.

The market week ended with a minor advance on Friday, helped to some extent by news of rising steel prices which gave the steel stocks a modest lift.

While some analysts had cheerfully predicted that the Dow industrials would reach 1,000 this week, others cautioned that the last 10 or 15 points before such a milestone are often the hardest.

Kenneth Ward of Hayden Stone said, "One should remember that a rather formidable barrier of technical and psychological resistance looms just ahead around 1,000 in the Dow Jones industrial average."

Of 1,719 issues traded this week on the New York Stock Exchange, 856 declined and 746 advanced. New highs for the year totaled 325 and new lows 18.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks this week fell 1.8 to 367.0 — its first weekly decline in five weeks.

Volume for the four-day trading week was 65,534,910 shares compared with 61,804,872 the previous week.

THE CUTLINK — O. B. Bengston of BBRC swims to CUTLink to attach a hoist line following deep ocean tests in the Pacific. The lozenge-like material running the length of the 16-foot aluminum frame is syntactic foam.

TV Pictures Now Relayed From the Ocean's Depths

For the first time, television pictures have been relayed without cable at near real-time rates from ocean depths to the water's surface.

The company that introduced this breakthrough in underwater surveying is Ball Brothers Research Corp. (BBRC), Boulder, an aerospace company bettery known for designing and building satellites.

The system, called CUTLink (for cableless underwater television link) proved successful during recent tests in the waters near Hawaii, said O. E. Bartoe, BBRC director of aerospace operations.

Engineers on board an ocean research ship received recognizable pictures from the CUTLink underwater vehicle at a depth of 15,000 feet.

A system like CUTLink, which permits acoustic transmission of photos and readout of scenes within moments after the camera records them, could be used for submarine search and rescue, salvage operations, plant and animal life research and communications between manned underwater laboratories.

The performance near Honolulu culminated a year of development at BBRC which included tests in the laboratory (where a child's wading pool substituted for the ocean) and in a mountain reservoir.

BBRC engineers who operated CUTLink in the Pacific were Donald Guthals, M. E. Poyer, V. R. Tucker, Joseph Bickler and O. B. Bengtson. Donald Burrows is CUTLink project engineer.

In CUTLink operation, a scene illuminated by the flash of a strobe light is recorded on a slow-scan television camera.

The picture data is converted to a narrowband acoustic signal for transmission to a hydrophone receiver suspended below a monitoring ship.

The signal is processed and displayed on board ship one of two ways: on a cathode ray tube to which a Polaroid camera is attached or on a screen for line-by-line viewing.

A tape recorder also retains the signal for later processing.

The slow-scan camera used by BBRC engineers can be commanded to transmit an 80-line picture in 10 seconds, a 200-line picture in 57 seconds, or a 500-line picture in 5½ minutes.

The water's turbidity will affect the picture, but identifiable targets at depths of 1300 feet were transmitted through the Pacific when the target was 10 feet from the camera.

About 200 pictures can be made with the present CUTLink battery.

The telvision camera and conversion electronics are housed in a two-foot long tube with a diameter of five inches.

This is mounted perpendicular to the length of an open 16-foot long aluminum frame, called the submersible.

The submersible also contains the strobe, battery, acoustic transponder-data transmitter, anchor release and surface recovery equipment.

The complete submersible weighs about 1000 pounds dry and is 90 pounds buoyant in the water.

Its buoyancy is due to discs of molded syntactic foam running the length of the submersible.

During the October tests in the Pacific, the submersible was placed over the side of the monitoring ship and allowed to descend to the ocean floor by its own anchor.

Engineers determined the submersible's position by acoustic interrogation and then commanded camera power, video settings and frame start via the hyprophone-projector, which also receives the submersible's signals.

On acoustic command, the anchor was released and the submersible came to the surface at the rate of almost four feet a second.

Other lighting and display techniques will be studied before the next deep water test.

Asks Tightened Laws for Mines

WASHINGTON (UPI)— Rep. Ken Hechler, D-W. Va., Friday proposed tightening mine safety laws so as to provide unannounced inspections of coal mines and provisions to shut them down when unsafe conditions are found.

Hechler's proposal also included a provision for continuing the pay to miners who would be forced to stop work under such action.

Hechler, quoting House Speaker John W. McCormack as saying a mine safety bill will be passed by the next Congress told a news conference he hopes his ideas will be incorporated in an adminstration measure.

Interior Secretary Stewart Udall has called a meeting Dec. 12, to discuss existing health and safety measures introduced too late in the 90th Congress for action.

Hechler and Udall are acting in the wake of the Nov. 20 coal mine disaster at Mannington, W. Va. The lives of 78 men were lost in the mishap.

The congressman observed Friday was the anniversary of the nation's worst coal mine disaster in which 361 miners died Dec. 6, 1907 at Monongah, W. Va.

Institutions Budget Plea Up 1 Per Cent

DENVER (AP) — The Colorado Institutions Department asked for nearly $57 million for the next fiscal year as the legislature's Joint Budget Committee began its annual round of hearings Wednesday.

Its requests represent an increase of $7.5 million, or 15.2 per cent, over this year's allocations from the general fund.

The biggest item is an $18.5 million request to run Colorado State Hospital at Pueblo. The current budget for the hospital is $18 million.

The department asked $8 million, $1.1 million more than the current figure, for the Fort Logan Mental Health Center.

The State Penitentiary at Canon City would get $5.75 million, 10.4 per cent up from this year, while spending for the State Reformatory at Buena Vista would be $2.16 million, an 8.1 per cent increase.

A total of $4.5 million was asked for the State Home at Grand Junction while $5.5 million was requested for the State Home and Training School at Wheat Ridge.

Romney May Take Cabinet Transport Post

DETROIT (AP) — Michigan Gov. George Romney will be appointed secretary of transportation in the cabinet of President-elect Richard M. Nixon, the Detroit Free Press reported Friday night.

In its Saturday editions the Free Press said it has learned Romney, who campaigned vigorously for Nixon after opposing him for the Republican party's presidential nomination, has been ruled out for the post of secretary of commerce.

Romney, 61, was in Palm Springs, Calif., Friday for the Republican Governors' Association meeting.

Romney gained national prominence in the 1950s as head of the financially ailing American Motors Corp. He was given credit for revitalizing the firm, a feat said to be instrumental in his election as governor of Michigan.

BBRC will display the CUTLink system at the Oceanology '69 exhibition in Brighton, England in Feb. 1969.

YEAR-ROUND CHARM — A gift that will reflect the glow of the holiday spirit year-round, Venetian mirrored sconces by Arabesque have the look of treasured antiques. They're of simulated wood, exactly reproduced from hand-carved original designs and finished in rich patina gold with smoked glass mirror panels. Measuring 7½ x 19 inches and projecting 3 inches, these handsome sconces are priced individually at $15 each.

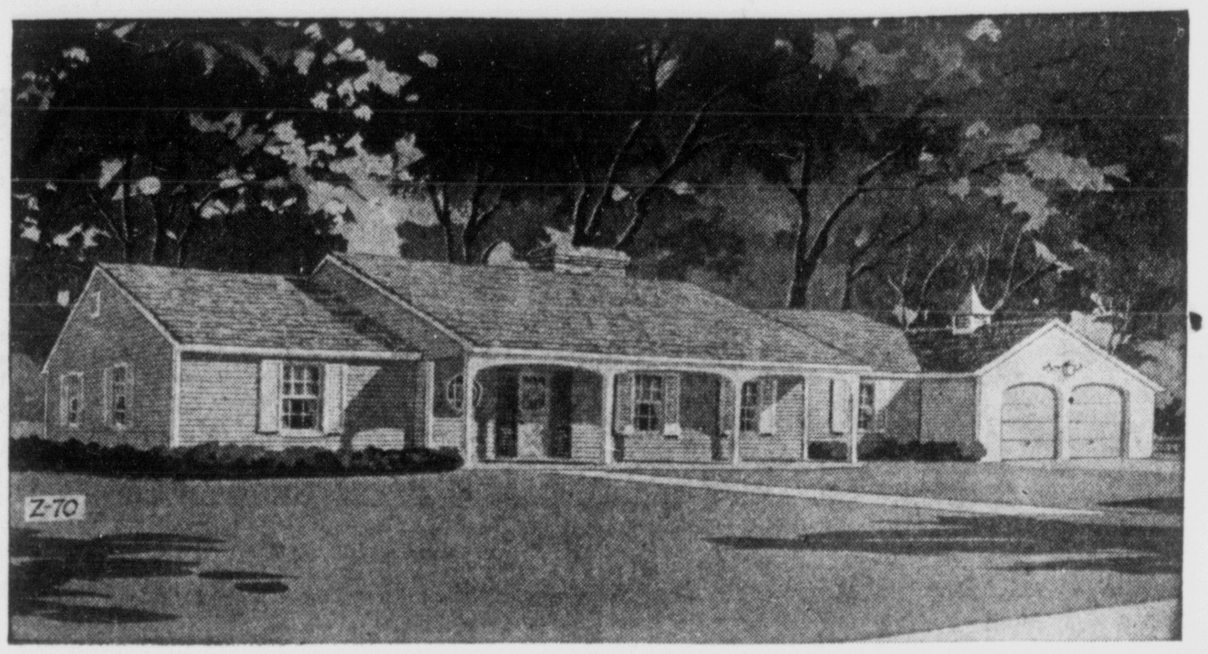
Problem Solved By Storm Doors

While this may be the season to be jolly, it's not always easy to laugh away the problems that winter prsents.

Like keeping cold air out of the house, for example.

This particular problem is getting lots of attention from homeowners. The solution, many have found is the installation of aluminum storm doors.

Among the most popular types of storm doors are the jalousie models. They eliminate the need to remove the screen panel in winter and replace it with the glass panel. The jalousie is made with a series of narrow slats of glass. They are installed in frames that operate from a crank or lever which opens or closes the frames, depending on the season.



Decorator Finds Answer To Gift Finding Puzzle

For folks who have practically everything, as well as for those who have very little—newlyweds in a first apartment or a live-alone bachelor, for example — decorative accessories for the home can make unusual and very welcome gifts.

Though it's obviously easier to choose such a gift for a person whose tastes are well known to the giver, today's trend toward the eclectic or "mixed-stype" decorating approach gives wide latitude, according to interior designer May Ann Wills.

"Besides," she pointed out, "Practically everyone likes to make occasional changes of accessories, and an item received as a gift offers the perfect excuse to do so."

Unless the recipient has expressed a desire for a certain type of accent piece and thus provided a "shopping guide," it's always wiser to choose an item that will look good in more than one spot.

A battery wall clock that's suitable for either a hallway or family room, for instance, might be received more enthusiastically than one so elaborate and so large, it can hang only above the living room fireplace.

The current Arabesque collection of decorator clocks, barometers, and other wall accessories by Burwood Products Co., Traverse City, Mich., offers likely gift choices in a wide range of prices and sizes, as well as style categories, Miss Wills reported.

"Even miniature oil paintings, which are priced from $8 to about $40, come in a variety of traditional, contemporary, and transitional frame styles," she pointed out, "and each is a signed, one-of-a-kind canvas."

It's easiest to buy for the friend or relative who has already started a gallery wall, according to the consultant, because there are so many possibilities for adding to or changing such arrangements.

Arabesque's own gallery collection offers delicate bisque cameos, clssic medallions, skillful reporductions of ancient carved ivory figurines, and classic coral pink cameos in numerous frame styles to add variety and interest to any traditional wall grouping.

Some of these items cost as little as $6 a pair, while others range up to $35. And several are mounted on velveteen under glass for a "precious jewel" effect.

For the gallery in a more contemporary mood, there are slim-line plaques in a variety of designs.

One series translates the classic four seasons theme into a group of stylized floral urns.

The designs, carved in both intaglio (recessed) and relief techniques, have been exactingly reproduced in simulated wood and hand-colored to stand out against a background of smoked walnut wood tone.

Other slim plaques feature perky bouquets of daisies, big-eyed birds done in a stylized contemporary manner, and popular chess figures. In one Arabesque chess group the golden king, castle, knight, and bishop are silhouetted against an interesting cork-textured ground in smoked walnut wood tone.

Daisy bouquet and contemporary bird plaques are both $10 each, and the diamond-shaped chess plaques are just $7.50 each in the cork-textured style.

"A hobby is, of course, always a dependable clue in choosing gifts for the hard-to-please," Miss Wills observed. "The summer sailor, for instance, might be enchanted with one of Arabesque's nautical plaques that combine colorful reproductions of old marine maps with deep-relief replicas of seafaring equipment.

"And if you have a friend who collects owls in the form of paperweights, figurines and such, a perfect answer could be the droll contemporary owl plaques with their saucer eyes and bright avocado plumage," she suggested.

Just as women like the golden delicacy of Gallery Collection miniatures, so do men enjoy the bold designs and rich colorings of heraldic plaques in assorted sizes.

There's a truly international field of choice that includes English, French, Italian, Austrian, Polish, and American armorial designs, plus those of Normandy and Saxony. Their prices range from $15 to $50.

All of these and many more unusual gift ideas may be found in the wall accessories sections of department and furniture stores, as well as in many gift stores, the decorating consultant said.

Arabesque clocks, plaques, and other wall items are packaged in sturdy cartons that are easy to wrap and decorate.

If necessary, they can even be mailed without risk of damage, provided the item does not exceel postal size and limitations.

Comfort Stressed In This Farm Type Colonial

BY ANDY LANG

The shrunken and so-called efficiency kitchen excluded everyone but Mom for a number of years. No one liked it, but there wasn't much to do but put up with it, since it was an era when, for a number of reasons, the small kitchen had replaced the spacious kitchen of yesteryear.

In keeping with the present trend toward the larger kitchen, either by itself or in combination with a family room, the House of the Week has presented a number of designs along that line. A recent popular one included a kitchen-family room combination in the front part of the house, an arrangement preferred by some home owners. This week, a typically Colonial farm-type home encompasses a kitchen-family room at the rear, a location many housewives insist on.

This combination are i' 20' long, one part a food prepuration center, the other a place for informal meals and get-togethers. Connected to it is a porch almost the same size, with double doors for access. Because of its privacy (behind the two-car garage), it is likely to be well used for family living, eating and guest entertaining in suitable weather. At the other side of the kitchen is the well-placed service area, with a lavatory, stairway to the basement, space for laundry equipment, a broom closet, enough room to sort wash and do ironing, and a door to the outside.

At the front of the house and to the right of the foyer are the living room and dining room, placed in line to give a vista of 33' but with partial separating walls to permit each to retain its identity. The living room has an attractive fireplace set into the chimney wall which, on the other side, houses the kitchen's built-in oven and a separate barbecue.

The three-bedroom wing is serviced by a large bath designed for dual use; it can be a hall bath or a master private bath by securing one of its two doors. The lavatory previously mentioned is placed so that it also can be used from the bedrooms.

One of the exterior features of architect Rudolph A. Matern's design Z-70 is a long porch, another throwback to the era of large kitchens. It is 30' in length, affords excellent weather protection for the front entrance and provides a large greeting or farewell place for guests. For anyone desiring to return the porch to its old-time use as a sitting area to watch the world go by, this one qualifies.

Exterior materials are narrow horizontal siding with vertical corner boards; shuttered double hung windows; flush boards on garage face and wood; and wood roof shingles. The latter, when local regulations permit their use, give a house of this nature an authentic farmhouse flavor. These days, of course, the fire-retardant type of shingles is the proper choice.

Z-70 STATISTICS

Design Z-70 has a fireplaced living room, dining room, combined family room-kitchen, laundry area, three bedrooms, bathroom, lavatory and center foyer, with a total habitable space of 1792 square feet. To the right of the house is a two-car garage and, in back of that, a large porch accessible to the kitchen-family room. The plans call for a basement. Over-all dimensions, which include the garage, the front porch and the side porch, are 78' 4" by 36' 2".

Mud Room Stops Tracked In Dirt

A "mud room" is a cousin to the foyer, says the Tile Council of America.

Both are anterooms, but while the foyer is designed for the convenience of guests and visitors, the "mud room" is primarily for family use, explains the council.

Basically a "mud room" is a small area usually located just inside a side or rear door where family members can clean up before entering the home.

It eases Mom's house-cleaning chores by putting an end to tracked-in mud and dirt in the kitchen and other rooms.

The only requirement in a "mud room" is that walls and floor be surfaced with waterproof, easy-to-clean materials such as ceramic tile.

Helpful, but not necessary are such added conveniences as a shower, a countertop lavatory, a laundry and storage space for heavy outer clothing, shoes, boots, rubbers and slippers and seasonal outdoor equipment such as leaf rakes or snow shovels.

CHRISTMAS IN JAIL

COPENHAGEN (UPI) — A man who wanted to stage a bank robbery so he could be caught and spend Christmas in jail was apprehended but after police heard his story he was released, authorities reported Friday. A charity organization said it would offer him a room in a reformatory for Christmas should he want it.

Soft Water Makes Chores Much Easier

Families sometimes live with a problem for so long that they become accustomed to it and think there's no real solution.

Take hard water, for example. According to the Water Conditioning Foundation, around 85 per cent of the country has water hard enough to require treatment.

Symptoms of such water include the familiar ring in the bathtub, film on freshly washed drinking glasses, and dingy-looking clothes. Hard water is resonsible for the blackened pot when you cook.

It can remove as much as 60 per cent of luster from hair shampooed in it. Even razor blades can be dulled by it.

Hard water is also hard on the pocketbook, the Foundation notes. You have to use more soap and hot water to perform every chore. Clothes and linens laundered in it really take a beating.

It leaves a scaly deposit in pipe and water-using equipment, shortening their life.

Studies by the Dept. of Commerce and others show that the average family can save at least $150 a year by using softened water, and some estimates go as high as $300.

The only way to correct the problem is with an automatic softener that removes hardness before it enters the piping system. Water flows through a tank where a chemical removes the hardening minerals. As the chemical becomes saturated, it's automatically regenerated.

Equipment to correct other types of water problems such as rust, odor, etc. also is available.

Consult a qualified water conditioning dealer for equipment that will best serve you, the Foundation advises. This is a nonprofit research organization dedicated to the solution of every type of water problem.

More than 5 per cent of the professional chemists in the United States are women, the Women's Bureau of the U.S. Department of Labor reports.

Mrs. Gravitis Observes 40 Years as Piano Teacher

Mrs. Velta Gravitis will celebrate forty years as a piano teacher in Europe and the U.S.A. with a concert at 2 p. m. today at the Fine Arts Center theater, in which she will present piano solo works, and in which her number of select students will also participate.

Mrs. Gravitis was born in Riga, Latvia, where in 1928, while still a music student, she began teaching piano. In 1930, she graduated from the Latvian State Conservatory of Music, and was elected a docent at the conservatory in 1940.

She came to Colorado Springs in 1949, and has been teaching piano to an ever increasing circle of music students ever since. Several of her students have entered the music profession, and more are preparing for such a career.

MRS. VELTA GRAVITIS

Mrs. Gravitis is active in Colorado Springs music circles, and presents her students in solo and ensemble recitals twice a year.

Today's program will feature students in solo and ensemble works.

The concert will also feature the appearance of Mrs. Gravitis as piano solist in compositions by her late professor, J. Wihtol, and the final work to be played by her will be Tschaikowsky's Piano Concerto No. 1 in B Flát Minor which she played in her graduation concert in Latvia many years ago.

The concert will be open free of charge to the general public, and a reception will conclude the event.

The arctic tern, a sea bird, is a champion long-distance traveler; it migrates more than 10,000 miles from its breeding areas, from New England north to Greenland, to the shores of Antartica. After several months, it flies back to the Arctic.

GOING DOWN — Perhaps in an effort to reach a lower altitude, members of B Company, 52d Engineer Battalion, Ft. Carson, drill a well at Camp Alexander, a Boy Scout installation near Lake George. Battalion projects at the camp include road maintenance, masonry, replacing of broken water lines, renovation and new building.

Carson Engineers Spruce Up Camp Alexander

Combat engineers of Ft. Carson's 52d Engineer Battalion are chasing rabbits around the Colorado foothills in their spare time, but it's all in the interest of good Scouting.

Since early October men of the battalion's B Company have been working at the Scouts' Camp Alexander, south of Lake George.

Their first project was replacing broken water lines, and from there they progressed to construction of trailer pads and rain shelters, road maintenance and rehabilitation of the porch of one of the lodges. A kiva, or theater, has also been started.

Drainage work, and placing of culverts in critical areas, have improved the camp's roads.

The Camp Alexander project is almost half finished. More than 4,800 man hours and 700 hours of equipment usage have already gone into it. Expected completion date is Dec. 15.

The 46-man platoon on site rotates weekly, and any man may volunteer to remain an additional week. Recreation includes chasing rabbits, mountain climbing and fishing when temperatures permit. One vehicle makes the 50-mile trip to Ft. Carson each day when the roads are open.

A newer project, assigned to D Company, is improvement of the Palmer Park Boy Scout Camp in east Colorado Springs.

Work there includes a 15-foot extension of the main pavilion, installation of a new water line, construction of two dry-pit latrines and building of a stone fireplace.

Deadline for completion of this project, about one-fourth finished, has been set at Dec. 20, according to the project officer, Lt. Gary M. Woodward, a mechanical engineer from Kennett, Mo.

Andy Stumpf Gets His Pilot's License

Andy L. Stumpf, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Stumpf, 1301 Rosemount Drive, Security, recently completed an FAA approved private pilot's course at Colorado Aeromotive. Stumpf, currently a specialist 5 stationed with the army at Ft. Lewis, Wash., completed the training in less than 18 days while home on leave. Stumpf enrolled at Colorado Aeromotive's flight school at Pikes Peak Airport on Nov. 19 and made his first solo flight Nov. 21 after seven hours of dual instruction.

He was recommended for his private license after 35.3 hours of combined solo and dual flight time by Dale Moore, a flight instructor at Colorado Aeromotive. He successfully completed his private pilot check ride with Norman Smith, FAA examiner at Pueblo Municipal Airport Dec. 6.

Stumpf plans on making aviation a career after majoring in physics at Southern Colorado State College upon discharge from the Army next year. He a 1966 graduate of Widefield High School.

HEAR Ye! with Larry Buck

By the time a fellow is wise enough to watch his step, seems he is too old to go anywhere.

In 1937, MAICO made the first hearing test instrument that could actually "measure" hearing losses, and revolutionized the science of hearing testing. Earlier devices merely projected test tones, but had no standardized reference level from which the degree of hearing impairment could be determined.

College student: "Is my face dirty or is it just my imagination?"
Coed: "Your face is clean, but I don't know about your imagination."

Not too long ago, finding the right aid for a hearing loss was somewhat of a trial-and-error process. Today, remarkable new hearing aid "fitting instruments" like the MAICO "PrecisionEar" enable us to determine, with one simple test session, which aid will do the best job for each person.

Safety Procedures Were Ignored, Miner Charges

By NILES JACKSON

FAIRMONT, W.Va. (AP) — One of the miners who escaped says some safety procedures were ignored or there wasn't time to perform them in Mountaineer Coal Co. Mine No. 9 before it was rocked by explosions and 78 men entombed.

Walter Slovekosky said Thursday rock-dusting, aimed at minimizing floating coal dust that is often highly combustible, was not through. He spoke at a hearing on the causes of the disaster.

Mine foremen often did not "have time to make sure" their sections were safe, said Slovekosky, one of the 21 men who escaped after the first blast Nov. 20, spent six of his 32 years as a miner in No. 9.

The two-day meeting of the West Virginia Department if Mines; the U.S. Bureau of Mines; officials of Consolidation Coal Co., Mountaineer's parent firm, and representatives of the United Mine Workers union on the disaster continues today.

Charles Biafore, another of the men who reached safety, gave the hearing a different opinion. He said he was "satisfied that I was working in a good, safe section." He said he checked for methane gas "every two or three minutes."

Another of the 21, Russell Foster, said there was no indication of any trouble just before the first explosion.

And Lawrence Riggs, general superintendent of the mine, told the panel the mine's gas content "was checked constantly."

The mine was ravaged by explosions and fires for nine days before officials decided that the trapped men could not be alive and sealed the mine.

Slovekosky was questioned about safety conditions by Lewis Evans, a safety inspector for the miners' union.

"They only dusted straight up and down the main line," Slovekosky said of the rock-dusting. "I thought they should dust the headings, the parallels and the cross entries, too. They looked pretty black. I thought they should be more thorough. I guess they didn't have time."

Western sections of No. 9, hardest hit by the explosions, had "entirely too much" floating coal dust, Slovekosky said. "You could hardly see at all."

He said the section bosses who supervise work crews had too many duties to devote enough time to safety.

"A section boss' duties are a lot more than he can take care of," Slovekosky said. "Although they have safety at heart, it's just not something he can look at continuously. A lot of bosses don't have time."

"I hope that those 78 men, most of them did not die in vain," he said. "That's why I'm speaking out."

Leonard Pnakovich of the miners' union said three spot inspections of mines in the area were made after the No. 9 explosion and violations were found in all.

Pnakovich said, "Dangerous accumulations of fine coal" were found at the Loveridge mine which parallels No. 9 and "rock dust applications were visibly inadequate." He said the shortcomings were corrected.

"It goes to prove what happened at No. 9 is still continuing and it shouldn't," Pnakovich told newsmen later.

In other developments, the United Mine Workers, revealed it had given $1,000 to each of the 72 families of men trapped in the mine. Six of those trapped were supervisory personnel.

In the Dec. 1 edition of the UMW Journal, assistant editor Rex Lauck wrote that Interior Secretary Stewart L. Udall, Rep. Ken Heckler, D-W.Va., Sen. Gaylor Nelson, D-Wis., and safety advocate Ralph Nader used the No. 9 disaster as "an opportunity for publicity to take a 'cheap shot' at the union, management and federal and state governments."

CSU Faculty Wants Beer On Campus

FORT COLLINS (AP) — The Colorado State University faculty council voted 124 to 39 Tuesday to ask the state Board of Agriculture to permit the sale of 3.2 beer on campus.

In August, the board, governing body of the university, rejected a similar request. A "drink-in" at the Student Union followed and the names of 179 students were taken for disciplinary action.

The council is expected to submit its request at the Dec. 11-12 board meeting.

Sgt. H. F. Eslick Named Top Marine

Sgt. H.F. Eslick, a former resident of Black Forest, and student at Air Force Academy High School, was recently presented the annual Marine of the Year award. The honor was presented by the annual Marine of the Year award. The honor was presented by the Honolulu, Hawaii Council of the Navy League.

Sgt. Eslick, a career Marine, earned the award on the basis of a commendation letter submitted to the league by his commanding officer, Lt. Col. E. L. Conroy.

The letter recognized the Marine's leadership qualities and listed his accomplishments while serving in Vietnam.

During his five years in the Corps, Sgt. Eslick has earned the Bronze Star with combat "V", a presidential Unit Citation, Navy Unit Citation, National Defense Medal, Good Conduct Medal, Vietnamese Campaign with two stars, and Vietnamese Service Medal.

"Sgt. Eslick was also commended for voluntarily extending his overseas tour in Vietnam and did not return to the U.S. until April of 1967.

Canadian Air Line May Face Slowdown

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

TORONTO (AP) — The 2,200-member Canadian Air Line Employes Association today threatened a by-the-rulebook slowdown unless Air Canada presents a "reasonable" contract during weekend negotiations.

"The company seems to think that we're not worth any more money so we're going to institute a work perfection program, making sure that we follow all the rules," said John Hayes, association president who represents passenger agents, communications personnel and switchboard operators in 29 terminals.

The two sides have been negotiating since July 31 when the old contract expired. At issue are wages, working conditions, duration of the new contract and employe transfer clauses.

Suit Against Denver Tax Filed in Court

DENVER (AP) — Attorneys George and Nathan Creamer Friday filed suit in Denver District Court asking that the city's proposed occupational head tax be declared null and void.

The Colorado Supreme Court, in a 4-3 decision late Thursday, decided the matter would be better handled in a lower court.

The tax, scheduled to go into effect Jan. 1, is expected to raise $10 million in revenue annually. On April 1, the head tax is to be replaced by an earnings tax. This second proposal would tax personnal income at the rate of 1.4 per cent. Business profits would also be taxed 1.4 per cent.

The suit asks the defendants, the City Council and manager of revenue, be enjoined from enforcing the tax ordinance, and asks for an immediate hearing on a preliminary injunction.

The Creamers say the city does not have the power to levy an income tax.

Pack 19 Held Its November Meeting

Pack 19 held its November meeting at Will Rogers School recently. Den 2 conducted the opening ceremony. New Bobcats inducted were Gut Sprague, David Serna, John Serna, Jimmy Hinkle, Ricky Allen and Mike Welsh.

Webelos receiving their colors were Raymond Huggins, Chris Trent, Paul Perra and Jimmy Kidwell.

Other awards were presented to John Doenges, wolf badge; Paul Perra, bear badge; Jimmy Kidwell, silver arrow bear; Steve Talcott, bear badge; gold arrow bear; Philip Bray and Arthur Hillegass, perfect attendance award; Rex Lamke, denner; Rodney Frank, assistant denner; Scott Land, perfect attendance, denner stripe, and service star; Guy Jones, assistant denner stripe, recruiter badge, and Jeff Eckhart, service star.

Webelos awards were presented to Bruce Radloff, 2 year service star, engineer, falcon trail patch; Tom Hinkle and Carl Lewis, falcon trail patch; John Winters, 2 year service star, athlete, falcon trail patch; Chris Trent, engineer, falcon trail patch; Craig Kraus, 2 year service star, athlete, falcon trail patch; Jeff Knoepke, engineer, falcon trail patch; Scott Bergh, engineer, falcon trail batch; Dale Armstrong, citizen, falcon trail patch; Shane Toothman, 2 Year service star, architect, athlete and falcon trail patch; Jim Omans, aquanaut, athlete, naturalist; and Bill Bray, aquanaut, athlete.

Den 1 presented a series of "Black Out" skits. The next Pack meeting will be held December 19, 7:00 p.m. at the Will Rogers School auditorium. This will be the annual Christmas program.

Publishing Officials Arrested in Korea

SEOUL (AP) —Two leading officials of the monthly publication Shindong-A, a sister publication of South Korea's largest newspaper, were arrested today in connection with an article titled "North Korea and Sino-Russo feud."

The Seoul district prosecutor's office arrested Hong Sung-Myon, manager of the monthly, and Son Se-il, its chief editor, on suspicion of violating the nation's rigorous anti-Communist law. Both men had been under interrogation for about a week by the Korean Central Intelligence Agency.

The CIA today summoned the editor in chief of the daily Dong-A Ilbo, Shindong-A's sister publication for questioning in connection with the Shindong-A article and another in the monthly on foreign loans. Five reporters for the daily have been under CIA interrogation since last week.

Dr. Erickson to Address Rotary Club Wednesday

Guest speaker at the North Colorado Springs Rotary Club at its Wednesday luncheon meeting will be Dr. Kenneth W. Erickson, president of Kaman Sciences Corp.

The subject of his talk is "Science and the Community." Dr. Erickson plans to discuss the interrelationshhips between scientific activities and the welfare of the local community.

Dr. Erickson is a member of the Board of Directors of Kaman Corp. and general manger of Kaman Nuclear. From the inception of Kaman Nuclear in January, 1957, Dr. Erickson has guided its growth from an original nucleus of some half dozen scientists to its present force of about 400 people, including 150 scientists and engineers. Under his leadership, Kaman Nuclear has earned a reputation as one of the country's outstanding research and development organizations. Dr. Erickson examines broad strategic and tactical problems, suggests solutions and directs the efforts of his staff in developing specific system and hardware.

DR. KENNETH ERICKSON

Prior to establishing Kaman Nuclear, Dr. Erickson was associated with the Sandia Corp. for seven years. There he was in charge of major research efforts leading to the development of atomic weapons systems and their components. In 1953 he was loaned to the Weapons Evaluation Group of the Department of Defense to join a high-level study team organized to investigate major phases of American war-waging capabilities.

Dr. Erickson's other experience includes work with the Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory, where he was responsible for fundamental work in light-particle nuclear reactions, and with the Naval Ordnance Laboratory, where he had principal responsibilities for applied work on torpedo and mine arming and fuzing and for techniques of electronic harbor defense.

In addition, Dr. Erickson is also active in numerous Colorado Springs civic affairs, serving as chairman or board member of the Colorado Springs Symphony, the Miss Colorado Springs Pageant, Academy Boulevard Bank, Vumore Video Cable Television Corp., Memorial Hospital, and the Red Cross.

Dr. and Mrs. Kenneth Erickson live with their three children, Marc, Chris and Marta at 6 Heather Circle in Broadmoor. Mrs. Jewell Erickson, who is interested in fine arts and interior decorating, has been associated with the activities of the Colorado Springs Fine Arts Center.

Ent Announces Promotions

Three Aerospace Defense Command Ent AFB lieutenant colonels pinned on eagles Nov. 25 and nine other officers pinned on new leaves Friday.

Promoted to the rank of colonel were Gordon W. Edwards and Frank J. Cietryka of Headquarters Aerospace Defense Command and Howard E. Wilson of the 4608th Support Squadron.

Six Ent majors pinned on the silver leaves of a lieutenant colonel Friday. They are Richard R. Ryan of the 4600th Operations Squadron, Russell L. Ohl and Charles R. Minich of Headquarters Aerospace Defense Command and Arcangelo M. Darcangelo, Philip E. Crawford and William M. Perry of the 4608th Support Squadron.

Three new majors pinned on their gold leaves Friday also. They are Jack W. Parker of the 4600th Operations Squadron and Eugene F. Armstrong and Rudolph Greis of Headquarters Aerospace Defense Command.

Col. Edwards, who came here last July, is the assistant chief of the Reserve Personnel Division at Hq. ADC. Prior to coming to Ent, he was a Personnel staff officer at Headquarters U. S. Air Force.

Col. Wilson has been chief of the Airman Assignment Division at Hq. ADC since January 1967. The holder of the Bronze Star Medal, Air Force Commendation Medal, and Army Commendation Ribbon. Col. Wilson served as the base director of Personnel with the 377th Combat Support Group at Tan Son Nhut AB Vietnam before coming to Ent.

Col. Pietryka is chief of the Aerospace Environment Division at Hq. ADC. The holder of the Air Force Commendation Medal with first oak leaf cluster, Col. Pietryka served as the commander of the 932nd Aircraft Control and Warning Squadron at Rockville AS, Iceland. He served there from July 1965 until his assignment here in August this year.

Patrick G. McAdoo Ends Combat Flying

Capt. Patrick G. McAdoo, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hervey G. McAdoo of New Orleans, recently flew his 303rd and final combat mission over South Vietnam in A-37 aircraft.

Capt. McAdoo, who has served with the 604th Special Operations Squadron at Bien Hoa Air Base, is scheduled for reassignment to England AFB, La., as an A-37 instructor pilot for the Tactical Air Command.

During his year combat tour, the captain participated in some of the major battles in Vietnam and earned the Silver Star, the Distinguished Flying Cross (DFC) and 15 Air Medals for his achievements in the modified Cessna T-37 Trainer.

Sees $20 Million Hike In State Tax Revenues

By MIKE NOLAN
UPI Statehouse Reporter

DENVER (UPI) — A Republican member of the powerful Joint Budget Committee predicted Friday that the maximum amount of new tax money to be raised by the 1969 Colorado Legislature would be between $20 and $30 million.

Rep. George Fentress of Lakewood, in answer to United Press International's annual legislative survey, said he expected most of the new money to go for state aid to public schools.

Fentress said he expected GOP Gov. John A. Love to call for tax increases next year but couldn't predict what changes Love would request.

"However, I believe that the maximum new dollars, regardless of the tax shifts from one pocket to the other, will be in the neighborhood of $20 to $30 million, probably from the graduated income tax," Fentress said.

Fentress said he personally didn't think higher state taxes "are ever going to solve the problems since the more money given any agency just makes their requests the next year that much higher."

"However, we have many things going for the people of Colorado from the fiscal tax studies and the efficiency studies and I believe that we must have a slightly higher tax levy, at least until we can hopefully make some changes to get maximum use of the dollar," he said. "After all, who gets a 12 to 16 per cent increase in income every year, except from tax appropriations."

The Lakewood legislator said he thought part of the $20 to $30 million in new taxes, possibly as much as two-thirds of the total, would go for increased state aid to schools.

Fentress said that graphs he prepared showed that increases in state school money in the past only slowed down the growth of local property taxes for schools for one year at a time—and only to rise at the same rate in subsequent years.

"I don't know how it can be reduced without specific limits on property taxes," he said. "Then, if that happens, we must graduate over 5 to 10 years the shift from property, or else we can never afford the change."

Fentress listed money and education as the top issues for 1969 "because there just isn't enough money to meet requests, already over $141 million more than available, for all state government, and because teachers have hired professionals to try to get what they want without regard to other state problems."

A controversial topic, Fentress said, would be a bill to control pornography.

"I expect that the gas tax will be increased by one cent for the completion only of the interstate system," he said. "There will also need to be some changes in methods under which the highway department operates. If the gas increase is greater, then I expect it would go to local and municipal government and not to interstate."

Donates Kidney to Aid Ailing Brother

A hospital spokesman said both men were reported in satisfactory condition.

This was the 225th kidney transplant operation by a team of surgeons at Veterans and Colorado General hospitals. Of these 146 recipients still are living.

1,500 Seek Jobs Daily With Nixon

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President-elect Richard M. Nixon's chief talent hunter said Friday applications have been arriving at the rate of 1,500 a day from people who want to work in the Nixon administration.

"So far we've received 3,500," said Harry Flemming. "Today's mail brought in 1,500 to 2,000 . . . I fully anticipate 25,000 to 50,000."

From these will be culled the 1,700 or so persons who Flemming is to recruit for Nixon to fill middle-management job from the position of deputy assistant secretary to a cabinet officer and downward.

The posts pay $10,000 to $28,000 a year.

At a news conference, he had bad news for 11-year-old boys from Cheyenne, Wyo. and for cooks—but good news for some who served the Johnson administration.

He said the applications are sorted as they arrive and those obviously unqualified for "executive assignments"—such as cooks and "the 11-year-old boy in Cheyenne who wants to be assistant secretary of housing and urban development"—are weeded out. They receive a form letter.

Flemming said a "cursory study" of the situation made him think that as many as 40 per cent of the middle-management bureaucrats in the Johnson administration might be retained. Among them are "competent, highly qualified persons who dedicated their lives to government service."

But "those persons making political policy decisions probably in most cases will be replaced," he said.

Effort to Limit Steel Imports Into U.S. Noted

NEW YORK (AP) — Efforts to limit European and Japanese steel exports to the United State seem to be making progress, according to industry observers.

While the imposition of legal quotas on such shipments has been rejected by Congress, the administration has been reported negotiating with the overseas producers to cut back on shipments to this country.

The negotiations, if they take final form, are expected to be in the shape of "a gentleman's agreement to voluntarily reduce steel exports from the European Common Market and Japan," according to American Metal Market, daily metals newspaper.

The newspaper said that "according to reports from Washgotiated by the State Department with the full approval of the White House will be between foreign steel producers and the U.S., rather than one on a government-to-government basis."

Industry observers think the overseas producers have agreed privately to hold their steel exports to this country to 14 million tons next year in an effort to avoid any possible curbs by Congress in 1969.

"The 14 million tons would compare with indicated steel shipments to this country this year of some 18 million tons," the newspaper said. "During October, a heafty total of 11,485,047 tons of steel entered this country from foreign sources, a market drop from the September pace, but nearly half a million tons over the same period last year.

"For the first 10 months of this year, imports soared to 14,984,526 tons, a 3.5-million ton gain over the same period a year ago."

In other developments this past week, the Treasury Department reported its stock of silver—both in coins and bullion—was 246.1 million ounces at the end of November, compared with 319.1 million ounces on July 1.

Bullion sales accounted for more than half the decline.

More Oil Import Stability Demanded

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Gov. Robert B. Docking, D-Kan., said Friday it is imperative that stability and integrity be restored to the Interior Department's mandatory oil import control program.

"Stable import controls are essential to the development of the nation's oil and gas resources," Docking said.

"Indeed, the economic progress of the 50 states and all the free world requires that this nation not become dependent upon foreign oil supplies that could become unreliable in times of emergency."

Docking spoke at a general session of the Interstate Oil Compact Commission, 33-state agency that serves as a forum on oil and gas conservation matters.

Docking did not pinpoint specific import control problems but a resolution calling for stricter controls is to be considered at the commission's business session Saturday. A resolution adopted at a mid-year meeting in June said special exceptions being granted by the Interior Department were threatening the control program's objective of maintaining a healthy domestic petroleum industry in the interest of national security.

Army Intends to Prevent More Nerve Gas Incidents

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—Saying military nerve gas was not the cause of a massive Utah sheep kill last spring, an Army commander announced Friday a plan to keep it from happening again.

He vowed "There isn't going to be another Skull Valley incident if I have anything to do with it."

Brig. Gen. John G. Appel said "Program Safe" would produce tight control over testing of chemical and biological agents at the Army's super-secret Dugway Proving Ground.

Appel commands Desert Test Center, which administers Dugway.

Some 6,000 sheep died last March in Skull Valley, a barren western Utah basin near the proving ground, after the Army conducted an aerial test of nerve gas.

The Army denied responsibility for the deaths. But this indicated an agent found in the tissue of dead sheep was identical to that sprayed from the airplane.

Congress approved last October a bill providing $371,685 in damages for Anschutz Land and Livestock Co. of Denver, Colo., owner of most of the sheep.

Appel said the Army had admitted being "involved" in the deaths, but added: "I don't think it (nerve agent) was the cause."

He suggested a number of factors may have combined to kill the sheep, saying "insecticides have permeated the world." He offered newsmen a government pamphlet titled "22 Plants Poisonous to Livestock in the Western United States."

"I think it is quite possible," the 50-year-old general said, "that the sheep would have died without the nerve gas."

Appel said "no mistakes" were made in the March 13 test and that no particular individual was to blame, but that such aerial testing has been stopped.

Dunbar Acquires Two Assistant Officers

DENVER (AP) — Colorado Atty. Gen. Duke W. Dunbar has announced the acquisition of two new assistant attorneys general. One is already on duty. The other will assume his duties Jan. 1.

They are Michael T. Haley, 25, and Harold L. Neufeld, 37, both of Denver. Haley is already on duty.

Neufeld, an Air Force Reserve major, received his law degree in 1964 from the University of Denver and his bachelor's degree from the University of Oregon in 1953.

Haley, whose wife is a Denver school teacher, received his law degree from the University of Denver last July. He received a bachelor's degree in political science from the University of Colorado in 1965.

Mental Health Group Sponsors Gift Program

For the seventh year, the El Paso County Association for Mental Health is sponsoring "Operation Santa Claus," during which gifts for the men and women at the Colorado State Hospital in Pueblo are being collected.

Gifts may be brought to the monthly luncheon meeting of the Association, which will be held Tuesday at the East Methodist Church, 1505 E. Monument St. Staff members from the hospetal will be present to take the gifts back to the hospital, or they can be left at the Mental Health offices, 509½ N. Tejon St. Cost of the luncheon is $1.50 per person.

A discussion after the luncheon will be led by Karen Metzger, 1967 graduate of Colorado College, and Joe Delgadillo, who works for the "Committee for Disadvantaged," in Colorado Springs. Reservations for the luncheon can be made by calling 633-5306.

Those who would like to bring gifts are reminded that patients at the hospital have requested such things as coffee mugs, plastic drinking glasses, games, stationery, cake mixes, postcards of Colorado scenes, hairspray, lipsticks, deodorants, paint by number sets, compacts and billfolds for both men and women.

The occupational therapy group at the hospital will do the wrapping of the gifts after the staff has selected them for each patient.

COUNSEL

DENVER (AP) — Kenneth G. Bueche of Arvada has been appointed general counsel for the Colorado Municipal League.

He replaces Charles B. Howe, who has entered the private practice of law.

Bueche will work with Colorado municipal attorneys on legal matters, help prepare legal publications and to press for passage of league endorsed legislative proposals.

Drops Plans for Hospital in Trinidad

TRINIDAD, Colo. (UPI) —Dr. James E. Donnelly, a former state senator, said Thursday night he was abandoning plans to build a hospital at Trinidad.

The move apparently cleared the way for construction of the hospital by the Trinidad Area Health Association.

Both the association and Donnelly had applied for almost $1 million in Hill - Burton funds from the Colorado State Board of Health.

The association already has acquired a $1.5 million loan from the Denver-U.S. National Bank for construction of the hospital. The loan, it was reported, is contingent upon the association receiving the Hill - Burton funds.

Dissension Battled By Denver Catholics

DENVER (UPI) A national Catholic laymen's organization has been formed in Denver with the immediate goal of exposing "those prominent in fomenting dissension and disloyalty in the church."

Frank Morris of Denver, the executive director of the new group called the Catholic Laymen of America, said the initial objective would be the publication and distribution of a book by the Rev. Richard Ginder of Pittsburgh.

Morris said Fr. Ginder's book, entitled "Thou Art the Rock," reveals "those prominent in fomenting dissension and disloyalty in the church and the manner in which they spread them."

He said the CLA would see to the "widest distribution possible of Father Ginder's book."

The CLA will be based in Denver. Its president is Fred Schlafly of Afton, Ill. Paul H. Hallett of Denver, an associate editor of the Denver Catholic Register, will be secretary.

U.S. Moon Flight to Be Riskiest Mission

By PAUL RECER
AP Aerospace Writer

SPACE CENTER, HOUSTON (AP) — Apollo 8's Christmas time flight around the moon will be among the riskiest missions ever attempted by man.

During the seven-day flight, Apollo 8 will streak 250,000 miles to the lunar vicinity, orbit the moon for 20 hours like a moth around a flame and then return to earth.

The Apollo 8 crew, Air Force Col. Frank Borman, Navy Capt. James A. Lovell Jr. and Air Force Maj. William A. Anders, will become the first humans to be captured by the gravitational pull of another celestial body.

Their lives will depend on the performance of a single 20,500-pound thrust rocket engine. If that engine fails, they will orbit the moon long after their oxygen supply fails, beyond help, beyond rescue, beyond hope.

Even if that rocket engine performs perfectly and Apollo 8 starts for home, the re-entry poses hazards never faced before.

The spacecraft will come flashing back from the moon at about 24,000 miles an hour. The on-board computers must guide it across a quarter million miles of space into a 32-mile wide "window" or corridor through the earth's atmosphere.

Just before re-entry, the command module, containing the crew, is separated from the service module, which contains most of the oxygen supplies. This leaves about seven hours of oxygen on board for the crew.

If the spacecraft undershoots the corridor, or comes in too steeply, the extreme braking pressure of colliding with the atmosphere could cause the craft to break up.

If the spacecraft overshoots the corridor, it could hit the atmosphere and skip, like a pebble across a pond, back into space. This skip trajectory, space officials believe, would most likely be fatal to the crew because their oxygen would run out before the spacecraft's new orbit returns it to earth.

Even after the crew hits the corridor, their problems are far from over. The automatic re-entry system must roll the spacecraft's angle of attack on the atmosphere precisely correct or the spacecraft could still skip out into space again.

After the spacecraft is launched toward the moon from earth orbit, Apollo 8 will dare distance and time as no other manned spacecraft. This distance alone adds risk to the mission.

Earth orbit flights are, at the very most, three hours from safety. In extreme emergencies, a spacecraft in earth orbit could return to earth somewhere in 30 minutes.

As Apollo 8 glides toward the moon, however, its ladder to safety gets longer and longer, until, in the lunar vicinity, the spacecraft is up to three days away from home.

To offset these risks, the astronauts have several factors going for them.

First is the proven reliability of the flight machinery. After boost into orbit, their lives will depend on a spacecraft which has proven its excellence in extensive ground testing, unmanned flights and the perfect flight of Apollo 7.

Redundancy of systems is another big safety factor. Most systems and subsystems on the complex Command and Service Module have at least one back-up, or alternate. Some systems have several back-ups. Only the Service Propulsion Rocket Engine is without a back-up system. But even this rocket engine has high redundancy of design. Only the engine's thrust chamber, fuel injector and nozzle are without back-up parts. These, however, have been designed with extra strength.

Another big safety factor is the open-ended approach to the mission.

Apollo 8 will be flown on plateaus of decisions. This can be compared to a swimmer who charges up his confidence by walking slowly down stair steps into deep water. On any step of the stairway, the swimmer may decide to stop and retreat to safety.

So it is with the Apollo 8 flight. There are go-no-go decisions which would allow a safe retreat at more than a dozen points along the path to the moon and around it. The major points are at translunar injection, planned during earth orbit about three hours after launch; lunar orbit insertion, the point 69 hours after launch when the spacecraft is fired into an orbit of the moon; and lunar orbit circularization, when the lunar orbit is changed from 69 by 195 miles to 69 by 69.

If the ground controllers or the crew are not satisfied with the condition of the spacecraft at any of these points, the mission can retreat to a position of greater safety.

These retreats, however, would not mean that the mission is a total failure.

The crew and the ground controllers are prepared immediately to shift to alternate flight plans which take advantage of the altitude achieved by the spacecraft. These flight plans include a 10-day earth orbit flight; a flight carrying the spacecraft 4,000 miles above the earth or a loop around the moon. Each is regarded as safer than the actual orbit of the moon.

But, just as the swimmer runs out of safe steps when the water creeps above his neck, the Apollo 8 will run out of totally safe retreats.

That point for Apollo 8 is when the spacecraft is in a position to be inserted into moon orbit.

If Borman, the Apollo 8 commander, decides to take that step, the crew is committed to complete dependence for survival on the performance of the service propulsion crocket engine.

"I will have a very conservative approach to this burn," Borman said recently. "If we have a problem after this burn with the propulsion system or something like that, we would be in trouble."

Borman and his crew regard the mission as a proper risk at this point in the man-to-the-moon program, but the spacecraft commander points out, "We have elements of danger all along the way."

"We said we were going to the moon," said Borman. "Finally when we get down to examining the details and saying we are really going, people start getting a little queasy about it. . . . But I can't help thinking when I see that vehicle, that booster and the spacecraft that we are looking at the best that American technology can produce. And I have confidence that it will be good enough."

Secret Peace Talks May Be Crucial at Paris Meeting

By MICHAEL GOLDSMITH

PARIS (AP) — While negotiators at the Paris peace talks shadow box in public, many hope they might inch toward a Vietnam settlement in private, unpublicized meetings.

Both sides seem unbending in public statements, but they show signs of being less intransigent in private.

Diplomats hope this attitude will prevail after all the procedural disputes about status, seating and the shape of the conference table are hammered out.

Up to now negotiators have been wary about showing their cards in advance, and none of the four sides has said much about the actual substance of peace negotiations, such as conditions for a cease-fire, withdrawal of foreign troops and a political settlement in Vietnam.

The allied and Communist positions on how to end the war are so far apart that few can visualize at this stage what a final settlement might look like.

The first objective of the talks in the coming months will be to define areas of common ground. But such definitions can be deceptive, and will not necessarily mark any progress toward agreement.

For example, all sides agree on the need to withdraw foreign troops from South Vietnam. But while the Americans and Saigon representatives think mainly in terms of North Vietnamese forces withdrawing, Hanoi and the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front demand the withdrawal of U.S. and other allied troops.

In their public statements, the opposing sides leave little room for compromise.

North Vietnam and the NLF have a rigid program calling for a Communist-dominated government of "national unity" in South Vietnam. This would kick out the present Saigon regime and prepare to merge the country with North Vietnam.

Saigon claims this program seeks to achieve Hanoi's war aims at the conference table.

The allied view of a possible peace settlement on the other hand would mean the final defeat of Hanoi's war aims. It would require disarming Viet Cong units in the South and would leave the political future of South Vietnam in the hands of the Saigon government.

Hanoi says this program seeks to perpetuate "American aggression" in South Vietnam.

The North Vietnamese and NLF delegations face the talks with a united front. While constantly insisting on their sovereign, independent status, their postures have been dentical.

Any similar unanimity between Washington and Saigon may be difficult to establish and maintain, particularly with strong-willed Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky acting as "special adviser" to the South Vietnamese delegation.

North Vietnamese and NLF negotiators say there must be agreement on South Vietnam's political future before there can be any cease-fire.

Short of destroying their forces in the field, there is no way for the allies to enforce a cease-fire against the enemy's will. Thus negotiations for a political settlement ultimately are unavoidable.

National Rifle Group Probed By FBI Men

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI confirmed Friday it is investigating the National Rifle Association, an influential group that never has registered with Congress as a lobby.

The NRA, which has fought fiercely against gun-control legislation, contends it is an educational organization and does not engage in lobbying.

An NRA official said, "FBI agents came in here and said they were instigating an investigation at the behest of a member of Congress who was not identified."

He said FBI agents visited the NRA headquarters in downtown Washington last month to inquire about NRA activities.

The FBI said the Justice Department asked for the inquiry. Asst. Atty. Gen. Fred Vinson Jr., the top criminal division official who reportedly made the request, refused to answer questions about the investigation.

Federal law requires all lobbying groups to register with the clerk of the House of Representatives. The NRA, which dates back to 1871, never has done so, contending it is not covered by this requirement.

Wolfson Gets 18 Months For Illegal Stock Deal

NEW YORK (AP) — Multi-millionaire financier Louis E. Wolfso was sentenced to 18 months in federal prison and fined $32,000 Friday for attempting to deceive government investigators during a probe of a $4 million stock deal. He could have gotten 14 years.

The new sentence is to be served only after Wolfso , 55, completes a prior sentence of a year in federal prison in a separate stock fraud case. He is appealing the judgment, which also included a $100,000 fine.

The combined sentences woule extend over a 2½-year period, which could be reduced by good behaviour to 20 months.

Both sentences were imposed a little over a year apart in U.S. District Court by Judge Edmund L. Palmieri, who said that in each case Wolfson was "legally convicted after a fair trial."

However, the trim, graying Wolfson accused the government of prejudice in singling him out for prosecution when, he said, others got away with violations of federal security regulations.

Wolfson's latest conviction involved his world-wide construction firm, Merritt-Chapman & Scott, which he acquired 29 years ago, and used as a base in building a $240-million empire of 17 corporations.

Son of an immigrant junk dealer, Wolfson made his first million by the age of 30 and his personal fortune has been estimated at $100 million.

LOUIS E. WOLFSON

Sentenced with Wolfson were Marshall G. Staub, 45, Merritt-Chapman president, who received a suspended sentence and probation of one year each and a $30,000 fine, and Joseph Kosow, 51, whose Boston financing firm was acquired by Merritt-Chapman. Kosow got a year in prison and a $10,000 fine ..

The government charged that the defendents entered into a secret agreement whereby Merritt-Chapman stock was bought on the open market, then sold back to the corporation at "an agreed price well above the market price at the time of the agreement." Participants shared a $4 million profit, the government said.

The indictment, however, was based on subsequent actions, including perjury, to cover up the stock deal during a Securities and Exchange Commission inquiry. The defendants were convicted of conspiracy to commit perjury and obstruct justice.

Chinese Intellectuals Planning 'Rebellion'

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — Nationalist Chinese intelligence sources said today millions of intellectuals sent to remote regions of mainland China for forced labor have joined with anti-Communist peasants to overthrow the Red Chinese regime.

The report, channeled through Nationalist China's official news agency, said the intellectuals, generally teachers, students and white collar workers, have formed secret anti-Communist societies.

It claimed that one million intellectuals were sent to the countryside for farm labor in Kwangtung and Kiangsi provinces and from Peking.

Fountain Adds Man To Police Department

Fountain will add a new patrolman to its four-man police force Jan. 1, Police Chief Albert LiCastro said Friday.

The new patrolman is David R. Carter, 41, a former member of the Nevada State Patrol. The new officer was chosen from a field of 11 applicants, who took both written and oral examinations, LiCastro said.

According to LiCastro, the new man will be added to the force because of increased police workloads and to cut down on overtime overload to other officers.

The new officer has 12 years of law enforcement experience as a member of the Clark County, Nev., Sheriff's Department and the Nevada State Patrol. He also has graduated from several police training schools and law enforcement academies.

Carter, his wife and their two children, plan to make their home in Fountain, according to LiCastro.

Red Guerrillas Still At Large in Korea

SEOUL, Korea (AP) — Between 20 and 25 North Korean guerrillas who landed on South Korea's east coast early last month remain at large, the South Korean military command said today.

It reported capturing three on Friday, raising to five the total captured. It said 65 had been killed and South Korean troops are continuing their search for the remaining infiltrators.

Meanwhile, the U.N. command proposed to North Korea that a Military Armistice Commission conference be held Monday at Panmunjom to discuss violations along the demilitarized zone.

The North Koreans have not replied.

SAIGON (AP) — The government has decided to prohibit production, import, storage and sale of firecrackers "for security reason," Saigon newspapers reported today.

Firecrackers traditionally have played a loud, important part in the celebration of Tet, the lunar new year, in Vietnam. Last Tet some of the confusion surrounding the start of the Viet Cong's big offensive was caused by the blending of the sound of firecracker with the rattle of gunfire.

U.S. Will Fly Troops to Europe 'Games'

By BOB HORTON
AP Military Writer

WSAHINGTON (AP) — The United States will fly 15,500 men and some 96 F4 Phantom fighter-bombers to West Germany for January maneuvers near the Czechoslovakia border, the Pentagon announced Friday.

The men, including 12,000 Army troops, will conduct exercises near Grafenwohr, West Germany, for a few weeks before returning to the United States.

The four Phantom squadrons will remain longer to complete additional training, the Pentagon said.

The action came as part of a broad plan by the North Atlantic Treaty Organization to shore up the alliance in response to the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia and tensions in Central Europe.

The announcement said Secretary of Defense Clark M. Clifford informed NATO ministers of the "proposed U.S. contribution to the increased readiness of NATO' when they met in Brussels on Nov. 14.

The exercises had been planned for later in 1969 but Friday's Pentagon announcement confirmed earlier reports that they had been moved ahead about six months.

The war games will cost the Pentagon considerable at a time when the department is under pressure to hold down spending. Officials estimated the cost could run as high as $16 million.

Advance elements will be leaving the United States about Jan. 5 while the remainder will follow beginning about Jan. 23.

Although the Army units and some of the Air Force personnel will return around March 1, the four Phantom squadrons will remain for an unspecified period.

The Army and Air Force units involved were pulled out of West Germany last summer under a plan to base them in the United States to help cut the balance-of-payments deficit.

The Air Force elements include 3,500 men in the fighter squadrons and six C141 airlift wings.

The Army units include two brigades of the 24th Infantry Division at Ft. Riley, Kan., which will link up with a third brigade of that outfit which has remained in West Germany.

The plan has been to rotate the brigades to serve one at a time in West Germany but the Pentagon said Friday that has been changed. After the maneuvers the No. 1 brigade, already in West Germany, will continue to hold the post.

The Pentagon said the exercises "are designed to maintain proficiency in operating procedures and to deal with special requirements pertaining to the European theater.' The location is about 30 miles from the Czech border.

The first movement of Army troops to Europe will involve 80 C141 flights hauling 6,000 troops and 57 tons of cargo and equipment.

This advance party will be followed in about two weeks by 70 C141 flights with 4,000 troops and 124 tons of cargo.

Major units involved include: 24th Infantry Division brigades, Ft. Riley, Kan.; 2nd Squadron, 3rd Armored Cavalry Regiment, Ft. Lewis, Wash.; 7th, 8th and 9th Tactical Fighter Squadrons, Holloman Air Force Base, N.M.: 417th Tactical Fighter Squadron, Mountain Home AFB, Idaho;

TOKYO (AP) — Chobyo Yara, the new chief executive of the Ryukyu government, arrived here Saturday to press for the immediate and unconditional return of U.S.-administered Oklnawa to Japanese rule.

The 65-qear-old former teacher, elected with the backing of three leftist parties last month, was welcomed at the airport by left-wing Japanese leaders.

Ted Kennedy Urges End to Biafra War

NEW YORK (UPI)—Sen. Edward M. Kennedy called Friday night for the U.S. government to use its tools of diplomatic leadership to achieve a cease-fire in the Nigeria-Biafra war.

"Whether these goals are pursued through the office of the secretary general of the United Nations, or the Organization for African Unity, or through other channels, it is not as important at this point a that they be pursued with urgency," Kennedy said.

In a speech at a dinner sponsored by the International League for the Rights of Man, Kennedy again appealed to the warring leaders of Nigeria and Biafra, to the leaders of all nations and to President Johnson "to take determined and compassionate action to bring an end to the conflict and answer the cries of a suffering people."

The Massachusetts senator said President Johnson with the consent of President-elect Richard M. Nixon should appoint a special presidential representative to oversee and expedite a program that would bring an end to the fighting and relieve the suffering in the war-torn African nation.

Tax Warrant Sales Usually Don't End in Actual Property Transfer

By RAY BROUSSARD
Gazette Telegraph Staff Writer

Tax warrant sales, a baffling excursion into the world of investment, only in the most minimum of percentages actually result in exchanges of real property.

Just how minimum those exchanges are was illustrated this week by County Treasurer Mrs. Sharon Shipley. With tax warrant sales of a week ago still fresh in mind, Mrs. Shipley said that "in more than 99 per cent of the cases, the property owners redeem the tax warrants and there is such a slight turnover of properties you wonder why owners allow their taxes to become delinquent in the first place."

Though there is no feasible way of finding out for sure why hundreds of tax warrants are put up for sale each year because of delinquent taxes — property owners understandably being reluctant and-or adamant about keeping this personal — the consensus is that many of them are merely waiting until after the first of the year to redeem the tax warrants with their income tax rebates.

For Mrs. Shipley's records clearly show that 75 per cent of the tax warrants are redeemed in the first year. And there's a good reason for that: under Colorado law delinquent tax warrants draw interest from the date of the sale of the warrants at one and a half per cent per month for the first six months and then one per cent per month thereafter.

That there is such a minute exchange of properties between delinquent tax payers and those purchasing the tax warrants further was illustrated by Mrs. Shipley, using the years 1963 and 1964 as samples.

The tax sale of 1963 — as documented in Treasury Book No. 70 in Mrs. Shipley's office (and open to inspection by anyone) shows that there were 446 certificates up for sale with only nine actual pieces of property not being redeemed during the prescribed period of time and thus actually changing hands. There were 21 cases of that 446 amount being handled where various titles had to have "clouds" lifted showing four-tenths of the total amount of certificates being affected, but the amount of properties actually exchanged amounted to much less than that.

Again, in 1964, Book No. 71 shows that 577 certificates were up for grabs, but also shows that while 18 titles were affected one way or another, only seven were not redeemed. The treasurer said that amounted to all the sampling years she could use at the moment because the county is now in the process of issuing treaury deeds for 1965.

The entire process works something like this (there are variances because there are a number of dates to be considered and times necessarily vary): using 1963 as the year of the tax sale one envisions a hypothetical propety owner allowing his delinquent taxes to slip beyond the August deadline.

Once this happens the tax warrants on those delinquent taxes are put up for sale. As a "for instance," say that the hypothetical property owner, for one reason or another, decides not to pay the taxes and allows the warrants to be sold. As another "for instance," say that the purchaser pays the taxes (called sub-taxing) for the years 1964, 1965, 1966. The hypothetical property owner has years from the date of the sale in which to redeem the warrants (or delinquent taxes).

But since taxes are due "this year" and "payable the next," that means that Mr. Hypothetical taxpayer still has until 1967 to redeem the warrants. The purchaser can start applying for title, or deed certificate, in 1966 (using these sampling years in a sequence) but the deed on the property is not issued until the following year if the property owner has not redeemed the warrants.

Reason why the dates vary is obvious, Mrs. Shipley said, because people are not bound and tied to doing something at a prescribed time. For example, the purchaser can apply for deed in 1966, three years after date of the sale, but then again, he might not do this until the following year. But all depending on when he does it, the hypothetical property owner has, at least, from 1963 until 1967 to redeem the warrants. And, as was pointed out, about 75 per cent of them redeem in the first year.

Why all this process then?

In the case of the delinquent property owner it probably is a case of waiting for a bulk sum of money off tax rebates before being able to redeem. But in the case of the purchaser, Mrs. Shipley says, it's a pure and simple case of investment.

That investment, incidentally, returns the purchaser not only the interest, but if it comes to it repaying of processing costs. Those costs amount to a minimum of $50 paid by the purchaser when applying for deed, plus several other costs that parallel closing costs when purchasing a house. But the delinquent property owner is made well aware, she said, up until the very last minute of what's happening.

He's made aware because the processing of a deed calls for the abstract to list everyone involved in the property and alert them as to what's happening via registered letter, published legals that run for 30 days plus notice that the property is going to tax sale.

Such are the vagaries of investing in property tax warrant sales of this kind. So much so, that people pay bonuses to bid at the annual auctions. The bonuses wind up in the hand of the county, but they are a tricky process.

First off, if you re going to bid on a tax warrant you have to deposit the maximum amount you are going to bid with the treasurer's office in the form of cash, check or letter of credit. Since auction seats are numbered as to warrant bids, even a person remotely interested in the warrant can take a flyer by putting up a bonus. Whether that bonus amounts to $100 or $500, that amount also has to be deposited in advance with the treasurer's office.

The amount of bonus you put up to give yourself the privilege of bidding before somebody else is strictly up to you, Mrs. Shipley said. But she noted that bonus bidding has declined in the past couple of years.

Interestingly, enough, this year's tax sales (always held at the end of the year) in a breakdown, reflected that there were 661 certificates up for grabs; three city specials (amounting to $332.77 in delinquent taxes on curbs and gutters); $1,955.17 in advertising fees (tied into the package taxes); $1,831 in bonus-bidding; $3,722.70 interest; $361 in fees (of one kind or another); and $97,289.26 in delinquent taxes-warrants up for sale. All this brought in $105,159.13 in sales.

But if past years are any track record, she said, just about 99 per cent (and probably more) of those delinquent taxes will be bought back with the purchaser probably winding up as the only one really ahead — counting his interest and other costs that the property owner has to pay back to him.

Colorado Chiropractic Society

Germs and other micro-organisms get credit for causing many diseases, but is this the whole story?

Apparently not.

Leading Chropractic institutions of the U.S. and Canada have long stated that the true causes of disease cannot be fully explained by the "germ theory" alone. In other words, Chiropractic research shows there has to be more than the presence of foreign living bodies in the human system to cause most disease.

That other "something" is at least in part the inability of the body to fight off the ill effects of those germs and organisms said to be the number one health enemy.

Nature has constructed the human body in a way that it can be self sufficient. A body in good health can easily dispose of a normal intake of germs if its blood supply, vital organs and all other parts are in a trim operating condition.

Thousands of case histories in the files of Chiropractors throughout the nation show beyond a doubt that one of the major reasons why the body loses its ability to fight germs and organisms is nerve failure. Put simply, nerve blockage in the spinal column cuts off contact between the brain and some of the body's parts. After this occurs, those parts fail to function properly and cannot do their defensive job.

Such nerve blockage comes about when one or more of the spinal vertebrae becomes slightly twisted out of position. A tense muscle in the back can bring this on, or a fall or bump even though it seems slight at the time.

As a result, the nerve trunks coming out of the spinal cord are pressed by the twisted vertebrae, and partial paralysis of some part of the body is inevitable. Disease germs can then have a field day with the partly paralyzed part, be it a kidney, lung, area of the skin, the heart or an entire leg or arm.

The Doctor of Chiropractic first locates the twisted (subluxated) vertebrae with delicate instruments capable of measuring the slightest inflammation or misalignment. He then makes an adjustment, the vertebrae are put back in normal position, and nerve interference is relieved.

Germs do exist, but their capability to do damage is greatly reduced by restoring healthy nerve contact to all parts of the human system.

Zabud Council Elects Officers

Zahud Council 8, Royal and Select Masters, elected John W. Cole as Illustrious Master for 1969 to succeed Hubert E. Maharg.

Other officers elected were Hoyt C. Powell, Deputy Master; Benson R. Lennie, principal conductor of the work; W. Earl Bates, treasurer; E. M. Ferguson, recorder; George A. Haun, captain of the guard; Jack N. Manning, conductor of the Council; James A. Stivers, steward; and Elmer W. Siekman, sentinel.

The officers were installed by Byron E. Thady, acting for Most Illustrious Grand Master Ray H. Slaybaugh, and Hubert Maharg, acting for Grand Marshall. Thady also cited as prelate.

Youth Indicted in Fair Housing Case

NEW YORK (UPI)—An 18-year-old youth now serving in the Marine Corps has become the first person indicted under the new federal fair housing law, it was announced Friday.

Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark said in Washington the indictment was returned late Thursday by a federal grand jury in Brooklyn against Dennis Feise. It charged him with setting fire to his next-door neighbor's home in West Babylon, N.Y., because the owner planned to sell the house to a Negro.

Brooklyn Federal Judge George Rosling set Dec. 19 for arraignment of Feise, who was reported by his parents to be in South Carolina. If convicted, he could receive a maximum of a year in jail and a $1,000 fine.

Feise was charged with violating title 9 of the 1968 civil rights act which makes it a federal crime to attempt to intimidate anyone from selling a home on a nondiscriminatory basis.

The indictment also accused Feise of defacing his neighbor's two cars. Asst. U.S. Atty. David Steinman said the word "Nigger" was painted on the cars and the tires slashed.

The youth allegedly set the fire last May 23, causing about $500 damage to the garage of the home of Jerome R. Sievers. Sievers sold his home in September to a white family and moved to Florida, according to a realty company which handled the transaction.

Clock Kills Bill to Reform Divorce Law

LONDON (AP) — For the second sessioni n a row, the clock killed a bill to reform divorce laws in Britain and open the way to legalize an estimated 180,000 illegitimate children.

Under the House of Commons system, 75 minutes were alloted for debate of Laborite Alec Jones' bill. When time ran out, the bill was automatically dropped.

Jones wanted to remove adultery as grounds for divorce and allow a marriage to be dissolved only when it had "irretrievably broken down."

If the divorce law were changed, Jones argued, an estimated 180,000 illegitimate children could be legalized. Jones said these children were the products of many couples living in stable but illegal unions because one partner could not get a divorce.

STACKED AGAINST INCHES — The thinking man is asked to look at this splendidly stacked gal and "think metric." Some feat. Miss Metric is the poster girl whose charms Britain has enlisted to push a campaign to switch the nation away from measurements in inches, feet and yards and change it to the metric system of measurements. She measures 914-610-914. That's 36-24-36 to the inches people. (AP Wirephoto)

Beauty Helps Turn Minds to Metric Measure

LONDON AP—A splendidly proportioned young lady in a bikini makes it easy to "think metric.' She measures 914-610-914. That's 36-24-36 to the uninitiated.

"Coo, that's a nice big o construction, that is," said a burly bricklayer, surveying the lissome Miss Metric, and another blow was struck for the coming revolution in british industry. Miss Metric is the poster girl whose charms Britain has enlisted to push a campaign to switch the nation away from measurements in inches, feet and yards and change it to the metric system of measurements. Miss Metric, 24, is a photographer's model named Delia Freeman, who admits she was a bit shaken when she was informed her measurements were 914-610-914. "I'm five feet 7½, but I have no idea what that is in meters," she said. "They didn't tell me." The poster was issued by the Construction Industry Training Board.

Wooing the workers from inches to millimeters, even in the measurements of glamorous girls, is not going to be easy in a land which is accustomed to thinking in yards, feet, rods, chains and scruples. Some British measurements date to Roman days. But the metric system is used by all of Europe and by 85 per cent of the world's population, and British industry thinks it's more practical to begin measuring in grams, liters and meters. These are easy to calculate and simple to understand, with everything divided into tens and hundreds. But the British do not surrender their traditions lightly. Many Britons feel they'll never be at home when the metric system takes over in 1971. "I've been drinking beer all me life in a pub," muttered a rebellious workman, "and by the pint. What's it going to be when they get rid of the pint?"

The cherished British pint will become 0.5679 of a liter.

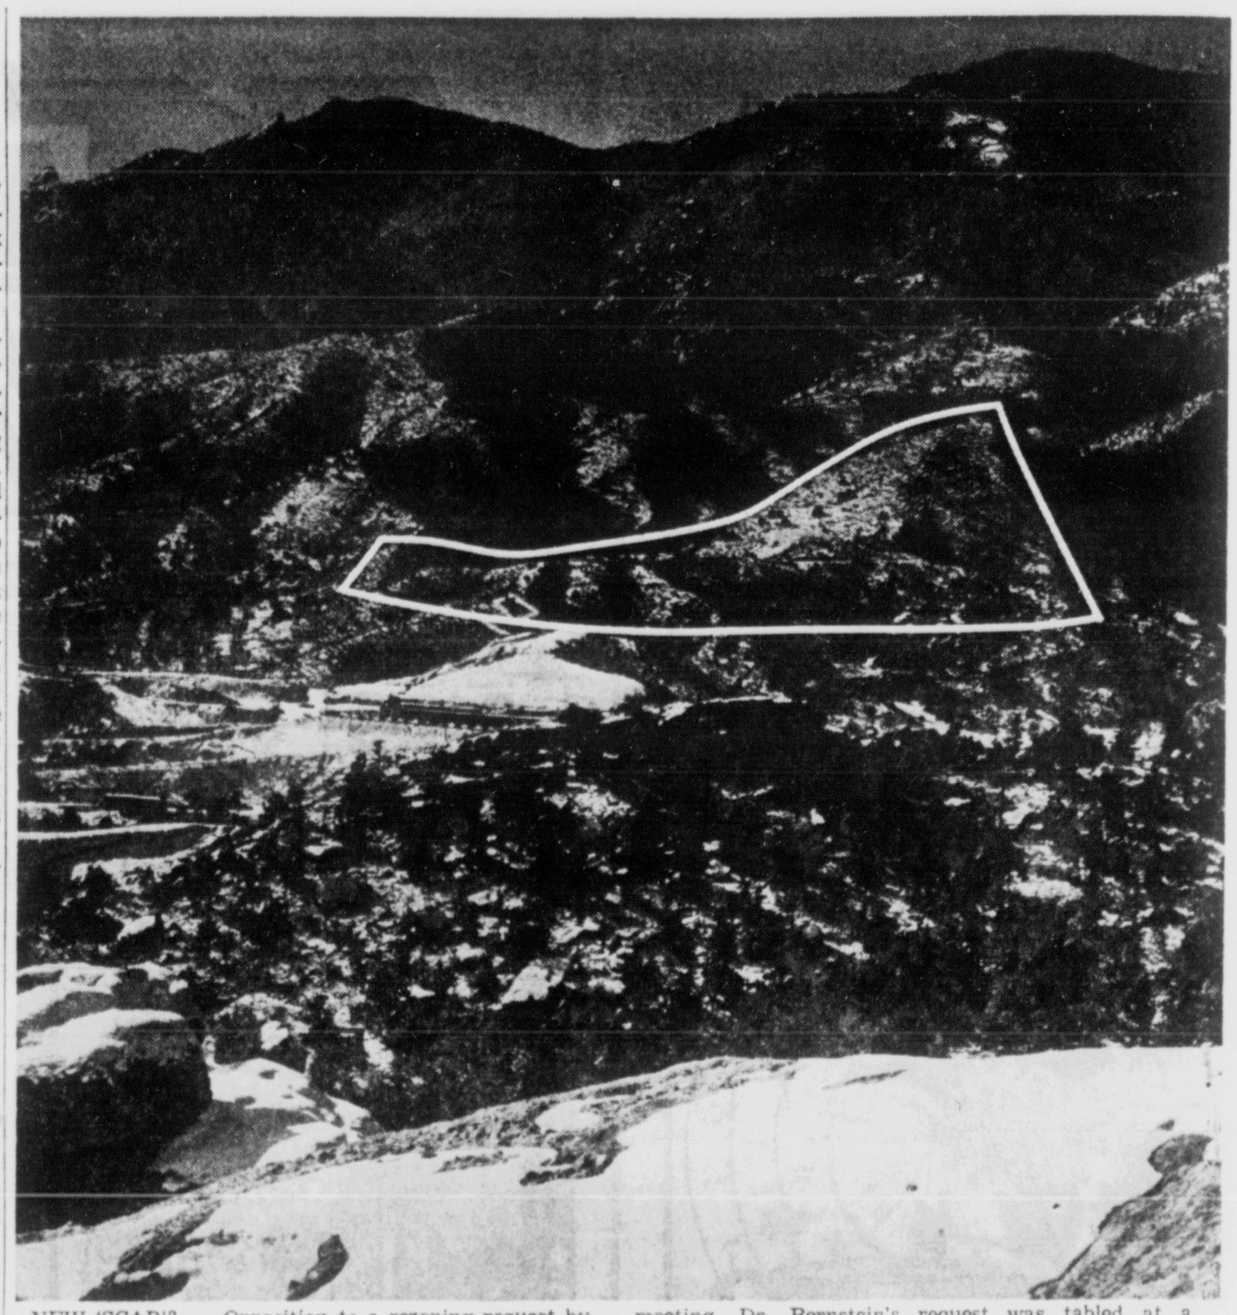
New Orleans Protests Plan To End Salutes

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP)—A proposal to do away with an annual 21-gun salute in Boston commemorating the battle of New Orleans in the War of 1812 has left New Orleans Mayor Victor Schiro aghast.

"I suggest a 22-gun salute next year, 21 blank shots and one loaded and aimed at those who would low-rate American tradition," Schiro said Tuesday in reply to the proposal. "We in New Orleans are proud of the Boston Tea Party," he said.

A bill filed Monday in the Massachusetts Legislature would repeal a law requiring the annual salute on Jan. 8. The Massachusetts adjutant general said the salutes are costly and ammunition scarce.

There are about five million children in the U.S. living in poverty.



NEW 'SCAR'? — Opposition to a rezoning request by Dr. Phineas Bernstein which would allow gravel-mining operation in the area outlined above will be evident at Wednesday's County Planning Commission meeting. Dr. Bernstein's request was tabled at a November meeting of the commission, but will come up again Wednesday.

Opposition to 'New Scar' Gears for Planning Meet

Manitou Springs, of late acting like a town with a mission, has yet another date with the El Paso County Planning Commission Wednesday. Manitou's objective this time, as it was at the Nov. 13 meeting, is to block a zone-change petition it feels will result in another "scar on the mountain." Manitou is joined by other dissidents and backed by a 300-signature petition.

The petition, to change an R-2 Residence District to an F-Forest and Recreation District, was presented to the planning commission at last month's meeting by Dr. Phineas Bernstein, but tabled when the commission couldn't decide. The zone change would affect a 20-acre site Dr. Bernstein wants for a concrete aggregate mining operation.

Officially, according to the county planning department, the 20-acre site is located "south of and adjacent to the city of Manitou Springs." More specifically, the area was located by proponents at the last meeting between the Manitou Springs city dump and the graveyard, south of the Mt. Manitou Incline. Its elevation between 6,600 to 7,000 feet.

Residents of Manitou Springs, Crystal Hills, Springs Area Beautiful Association (SPABA) and the Waltonians, to name just a few, will be leading the battle to try and block Dr. Bernstein's petition from being approved by the planning commission. The latest acquisition among the dissidents is School District 11 as an entity.

Since the commission's last meeting in November, the board members — led by chairman Doug Naegele — have toured the area. Just before the weekend, Manitou Springs attorney Robert Mason told the Gazette Telegraph that "the petition containing the signatures of 300 people will be presented to the planning commission meeting Wednesday."

Just to show how dissident the opponents are, Mayor Ralph Sumner of Manitou Springs — it was he who recently suggested that Manitou should annex Colorado Springs because of the Columbia Addition annexation squabble — said the group might take their case to the Colorado Supreme Court if they lose out on the local level.

Manitou Springs' city council previously rejected Dr. Bernstein's proposal, though at one time it purportedly was on record as favoring the mining development. The Broadmoor physician's representative, George Dawes, previously told the planning commission it's estimated that there might be a million cubic yards if aggregate. Much of the aggregate for this area now has to be hauled in from Pueblo.

Further, Dawes said at the November meeting that his client originally conceived of turning the area into a residential development. But he seemed to concede at the meeting after Sumner said that was too far-fetched because the area wouldn't be served with water and sewer facilities for at least 20 years.

Opponents Mason and attorney Howard Morrison labeled the potential operations "the prelude to more scars on the front range."

Also objecting at that November meeting were Waltonians Orville Kenelly and Mrs. Joe Stammen and former school teacher Lester Stanley. But Dr. Bernstein maintained that nobody would see any scar, that the mining operations would be located in a "hollow that has lain fallow for years." Dawes maintained there were valuable deposits there, though under questioning from commission board member George Morris admitted that only preliminary excavation to date had been back-hoeing — actual hoeing that sometimes shows gravel deposit or layer about five to 10 feet deep, but doesn't disclose if anything lies deeper.

Finally, at that November meeting, the proponents suggested that Crystal Hills, only about two per cent of Manitou Springs, swayed the city council's attitude there. Bernstein and Dawes said the scar, if any, wouldn't be seen for miles because it would be in a hollow. They said their plot isn't a mountain, it's a "(gravel) mound, or mounds, if you will."

Despite all that, opponents to Dr. Bernstein's petition — according to spokesman Mason — said they would line up against the zone change and show up en masse at Wednesday's meeting which will be held at 2 p.m. in the third-floor auditorium of the County Office Building.

Final Tally Shows Big Edge For Dominick

DENVER (AP) — Colorado's record turnout in the Nov. 5 general election returned Sen. Peter H. Dominick to office with 134,000 votes to spare, final official returns from the secretary of state's office showed today.

The final figures showed Dominick, a republican, polled 459,952 votes, compared to 325,584 for former Gov. Steve McNichols, the Democratic challenger.

Earlier totals on the presidential race showed President-elect Richard Nixon got 409,345 votes, while Hubert H. Humphrey had 331,063. George Wallace received 60,813 votes in Colorado.

The total turnout of 806,983 represented 83.1 per cent of those eligible to vote.

In the House of Representatives contests, there were these results:

Incumbent Rep. Byron Rogers D-Colo., with 91,199 votes, defeated State Sen. Frank Kemp, R-Denver, with 82,677 and independent Gordon Barnewall with 25,499.

Incumbent Rep. Don Brotzman, R-Colo., polled 152,153 votes to defeat former Rep. Roy McVicker, a Democrat, who had 89,917.

Incumbent Rep. Frank Evans, D-Colo., defeated Republican Paul Bradley, 88,368 to 81,163.

Incumbent Rep. Wayne Aspinall, D-Colo., defeated Republican Fred Anderson, 92,680 to 76,776.

TO STRIKE

TOKYO (AP) — The Japan garrison forces labor union, representing the 25,000 Japanese civilian workers at U.S. bases, said today it would stage a 24-hour strike Dec. 16 at 52 U.S. bases to demand additional retirement pay.

The retirement allowance is paid by the Japanese government when base workers retire or lose their jobs because the base is closed.

The workers want between $138.88 and $972.22 depending on length of service; the government so far has offered $27.77 to $583.33.

Shoe-Swipers Get 75 Cents From Soldier

A pair of shoe-swiping bandits, whose method of operation was similar to that of another pair who since have been charged with armed robbery, Friday night held up a 20-year-old Ft. Carson soldier. They got 75 cents plus identification papers.

The victim, identified by police as Ronald Lee Ostrander, 984 Military Police Co., said he stopped at the corner of Colorado and Pikes Peak Avenues and offered a ride back to the base to two Negro GIs he saw standing there.

The one sitting in front asked Ostrander to drive past a friend's house to pick up his fatigues. In the 600 block of Moreno Street, the one in the rear pulled a revolver on Ostrander.

"Don't say anything or it might be your last," he quoted the gunman. "Just be quiet and do what I tell you."

He told police the one in the front seat went through his wallet and removed some papers then ordered Ostrander to hand over his change which amounted to about 75 cents.

They ordered the soldier out of his car, made him take his shoes off and told him to start walking. The pair then left the car and fled afoot. Ostrander went to a nearby apartment and called police. The incident occurred about 10:15 p.m.

Santa Claus Pelted By Youthful Vandals

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — Santa Claus may have to discontinue his nightly trips around Spokane. He, his helper and his sleigh can't take the physical abuse much longer.

That was the report Friday from city firemen who, at their own expense and on their own time, constructed a float in which Santa rides each night.

Youthful vandals armed with snowballs, pine cones and rocks have pelted the float on five of the seven nights Santa has made the rounds, according to fire dispatcher Gary Schmidt, who usually drives the rig.

"About $40 worth of damage has been done each night," he said. "We can't afford to keep it up much longer."

CAPITOL STUFF

By TED LEWIS

WASHINGTON — Supreme Court Associate Justice Hugo L. Black is an old man, 82, but what he did tonight in one brief hour to lift the spirit of a nation depressed over grave issues should never go unheeded.

What we are referring to is the CBS interview with the jurist, obtained after four long years of effort to get him to speak his mind, and impart his wisdom to a nation which has foundered through one helluva confused year dominated by flannel-mouthed politicians, troubles in the streets and discord over the Vietnam war.

With charm, eloquent simplicity of language, and a proud expression of faith in constitutional processes, Black provided a perspective for millions who desperately needed to be told that the country was not really going to hell in a hack.

In the process he revealed some of the inner workings of judicial minds on the Supreme Court on such issues as pornography, racial segregation, the Chicago rioting and the Fifth Amendment.

And he even dared his own projection of the lasting quality of the country itself, reminding that history has shown that nations begin to decay "if they get too big and try to run the world."

For good measure Black dared to give his own assessment of the Vietnam controversy. He said there was only one war that he ever approved of —"The war against Hitler."

Anyone who read the advance transcript of this televised interview — carried on capably by questioners Eric Sevareid and Martin Agronsky — must end up with renewed faith in American institutions as interpreted by one distinguished citizen. The pity of it is that too few millions listened and saw Black's performance tonight, for his NBC competition on the same prime time was Brigitte Bardot, the French cutie. What a contrast!

Fortunately, what Justice Black said on the air is even more effective in print, while Bardot has to be in motion to be enjoyed and appreciated.

But consider the lasting quality of Black's utterances. For example, concerning the Chicago street demonstrations during the Democratic National Convention:

"Daley says they did so and so, and the other side says they're just a group of nice young idealists singing sweet songs of mercy and love, and I don't know. . . . Now the Constitution doesn't say that any man shall have a right to say anything he wishes, anywhere he wants to go.

"Now the government would be in a very bad fix, I think, if the Constitution provided that the Congress was without power to keep people from coming into the Library of Congress, spending the day there, demonstrating and singing because they wanted to protest the government."

And here is Black on pornography issue as it has involved criticism of the Supreme Court for being easy on peddlers of filth:

"Of course, I understand that pornography sounds bad. But I have never seen anybody who'd say what it is. . . . If the idea is to keep people from learning about the facts of life, as between the sexes, that's a vain task. . . .

"Obscenity is wholly ambiguous. It means one thing to you, and another thing to these people, and another thing to me. . . ."

Black most frankly criticized in hindsight the "all-deliberate-speed" mandate in the court's historic 1954 school desegregation decision. "It seems to me that it's delayed the process of outlawing segregation," he said, adding it would have been better to have treated the case as an ordinary lawsuit, as that fitted "into my ideas of the court not making politicies for the nation."

On the issue of the Fifth Amendment, Black said that critics of the court's opinions on this issue overlooked what "the Constitution says absolutely and in words that nobody can deny."

He was asked if court decisions in this connection had not made it difficult for police to combat crime.

"Certainly," replied Black. "Why shouldn't they? (the decisions) What were they written for? (The reference was to the Bill of Rights). . . And what the court does is to try to follow what they (the framers of the Bill of Rights) wrote, and say you've got to try people in this way."

There was intense questioning of Black as to whether he was alarmed about the present rise in crime. "Nothing new about crime," replied Black. "And it's true — different types of crime increase from time to time. Or decrease."

What about the danger of dissolution of the American society — a kind of spread of anarchy and disbelief?

"I do know that a study of history convinces me that nations have risen, their stars have gone up, and then they begin to grow dimmer. Particularly if they get too big and try to run the world. I hope this nation will have a longer life than all of them. Nobody knows."

The justice did not shy away either from a blunt question as to whether the chief justice has any "extra power." Black wanted no part of supporting the idea that the court was dominated by Chief Justice Warren.

The chief justice's power, he insisted, was limited solely to his persuasive ability and "by his integrity."

There are many lessons to learn from Justice Black's exposure to public questioning. Not the least is that age does not make all men decrepit. In Black's case there was the warm mellowness of a ripening of years to full flower.

And the generous offering of his wisdom to a nation needing sustenance came at a most fitting moment of turbulent 1968. In going back to 1937, when he was named to the court by Franklin D. Roosevelt, this was certainly his finest hour.

There had been speculation before his appearance that he might use the opportunity to announce his retirement. But it was silly speculation. As one close friend reminded: "Hugo Black will leave the court only in a coffin."

NEW PARCEL POST SORTER — The new piece of equipment now being used here is a carrousel-type multi-slide parcel post sorter. It is the only one of its kind in a five-state region. The sorter costs just under $5,000, does away with all throwing operations and will eliminate breakage. (Gazette Telegraph Photo)

OUTDATED PROCESSING SYSTEM — The old processing system was slow and required a number of men to sort out mail and parcel post. During the holidays this process required more men and time. The new system will save the Post Office Department about $44,000 a year in Colorado Springs. (Gazette Telegraph Photo)

Post Office Speeds Up Mail With New Sorter

Gone are the days when a box of fresh-baked cookies, tossed to the bottom of a canvas mail sack, was crushed by 75 pounds of parcel post thrown on top of it. At least, that's the way it is at the Colorado Springs Post Office, with the installation of an unusually large piece of equipment that went into operation in time to efficiently process the unequalled avalanche of incoming holiday packages.

The new equipment is a carrousel-type multi-slide parcel post sorter, the only one of its kind in a five-state region, according to Lawrence M. Judy, assistant superintendent of mails. It was installed in the parcel post section of the mail handling unit, 3180 N. El Paso St., and was first operated Nov. 23.

The sorter, which cost under $5,000, does away with all throwing operations and will eliminate breakage, he said. In addition, it will double the speed of processing the packages, and will pay for itself in two months. It will save the Post Office Department approximately $44,000 a year in Colorado Springs. The sorter occupies 1,000 square feet of space, one-half of the amount of valuable footage that the ild manual distribution required. It has made most hamper operations and 55 sack racks obsolete.

"However, the money and space that will be saved by the new sorter are only secondary side benefits, compared to the improvement in working conditions for postal clerks," Judy emphasized. "The employes are enthused about the new sorter, for it eliminates lifting and strain injuries. It plainly takes the load off their backs."

It has been estimated that the new sorter will save from 210 to 230 man hours a week, he said, for clerks, under the old method, rolled the hampers approximately two miles a night from the primary to the secondary operation.

"It is most important that everybody use zip codes on packages, because this is one of the principles of the new sorter," Judy pointed out. "There are nine slides, each one representing a zip code area for Colorado Springs and associated offices, such as Cripple Creek and Limon."

Packages reach the primary clerk over a conveyor which the local office had on hand, and converted to "suit" the new equipment. The clerk reads the zip code and places the parcel on the proper slide, where it glides down a highly waxed surface of plywood and formica. At the bottom of the slide a secondary clerk places the packages in canvas bags for individual carriers or for distribution to associated offices.

"The Denver Regional Post Office, which consists of Colorado, Wyoming, New Mexico, Arizona and Utah," he explained, "includes a number of cities like Tucson, Ogden and Albuquerque, which are in dire need of a machine of this type in order to cope with the flood of mail. We are very fortunate to have the machine in the local office, for the standard metropolitan area now includes approximately 235,000 residents and is one of the fastest growing regions in the country. The new sorter will keep the Pikes Peak Region up-to-date in its mail handling service."

Judy said that there is only one other similar machine in the western portion of the country and it is located in Austin, Texas. Plans for the sorter came from Washington, D. C., and it was built by a local cabinet shop.

"The sorter," he continued, "will make the service faster and more efficient. We find that it takes only 40 minutes longer to work 1,200 sacks of packages than it normally took to work 500 to 600 sacks the old way. The new equipment can do the same amount of work in eight hours as was done in 10-11 hours."

At the moment only incoming parcel post is being processed by the new equipment, Judy said, because the "flip-flop" tags for the bag racks have not arrived. One side of the tag will designate zip codes for other zones in the United States, while the reverse side will designate areas in the Pikes Peak Region.

"In other words," he said, "when incoming parcel post is being processed, the up side of the tags will indicate which canvas bag is for which local area. When outgoing parcel post is to be processed the tag will be flipped so that its upper side will designate for which area of the rest of the country it will be filled with packages. The tags are expected to arrive shortly after Christmas, at which time outgoing packages will also be processed. We estimate that there will be a 100 per cent increase in parcel post processing at that time."

The sorter will be operated beginning at 10 p. m. every night until Christmas, for that's the time the semi-trucks begin arriving with parcel post. There will be no delay of packages, nor a backlog, with the new sorter.

"In the meantime, the building half a block south of the mail handling unit, has been rented for 60 days in order to process the outgoing packages," Judy said. "At present we run the sorter about eight hours a night. When we also will work the outgoing packages, we estimate that the new equipment will be in use 12 hours a day."

Postmaster Robert H. Wardwell said last week that Judy is directly responsible for acquisition of the new sorter by the local Postoffice.

"He attended the Postal Service Institute in Washington, D. C., which is a school to acquaint field personnel with headquarters techniques and technology of Post office procedures," Wardwell said. "He learned about the sorter there, and had the foresight to push this project for Colorado Springs."

Doubts Tax Decrease for Property Owners

DENVER (UPI) —State Sen. A. Wayne Denny, R - Cortez, expressed doubt Thursday that increased state aid to public schools would lower local property taxes.

Denny said the upcoming 1969 Colorado Legislature "possibly" would hike state school aid "but I doubt if it will lower local taxes — they will just use more."

The Cortez Republican made his comments in answering the annual United Press International survey of legislators on their thoughts on problems facing the state.

Denny said he felt money, education and water would be the top issues of the legislature. He also said he doubted that GOP Gov. John A. Love would recommend state tax increases to the legislature.

"I wonder if all the increased demands are needed," Denny said of record budget requests from state agencies, departments and institutions.

Denny did say that he expected the state's six - cent per-gallon gasoline tax to be increased by one cent next year.

On traffic safety, Denny called for more safety training.

The Western Colorado senator also called on the legislature to do its work quickly.

"Let's not take three - plus months to do a month and a half's job," Denny said.

Virginians May See Crew Of Pueblo

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department indicated it would not oppose the effort by a group of Virginians now in Moscow to visit the 82 captured Pueblo crewmen being held in North Vietnam.

Press Officer Robert J. McCloskey said that Atty. Carl McAfee and three others "understand they carry no brief to negotiate for the U.S. government."

He said the State Department would indeed be cool to any effort by private citizens to negotiate for the government but that the State Department at the same time supports any genuine humanitarian effort on behalf of the men.

McAfee and his Norton, Va., partner, Hugh P. Cline, are accompanying Robert Ayling of Staunton, Va., the father of one of the Pueblo crew members and Charles Daniels of Ryan International, also of Norton. McAfee served as a legal adviser for U2 pilot Francis Gary Powers during his trial in Moscow for reconnaissance flights over the Soviet Union.

The four men have petitioned North Korea's Premier Kim Il Sung for permission to visit Ayling's son Charles, 22 and other crew members.

McCloskey said there has been no request as yet for the validation of the passports of the four men for travel to North Korea. It is an area normally off limits for American travelers.

GERIATRIC DENTISTRY

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — A whole new field of research into geriatric dentistry is opening up, a professor of denture prosthesis at the University of Tennessee's College of Dentistry reported at the 21st annual New Orleans Dental Conference.

The dental profesion has accepted the difficult challenge of meeting the needs of incressing numbers of people who live into their 70s and 80s, Dr. Thomas Shipmon told delegates to the conference, which this year was dedicated to prosthetic dentistry.

Special new soft materials are being developed to help older people wear their dentures comfortably in spite of their worn down mouth tissue, the speaker said.

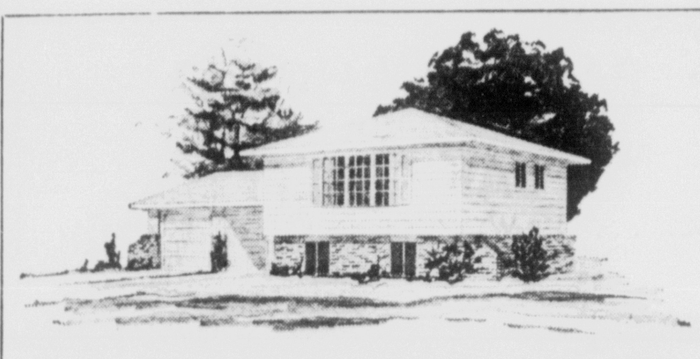
Ask The People Who Live There...

They'll happily tell you why you should make your move to better living in

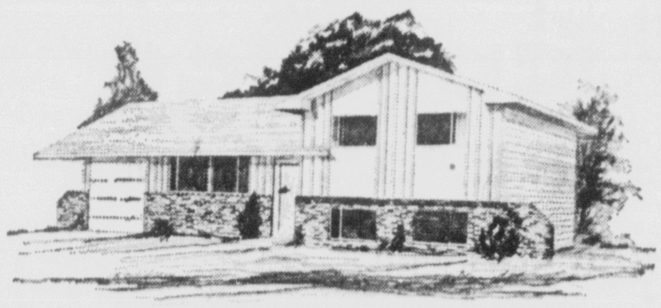
WIDEFIELD

The People in WIDEFIELD know that they've purchased the best home value that can be found in the Pikes Peak Region. They also know that the convenience of WIDEFIELD living is hard to beat, with all the schools, churches and shopping that are within a minute's reach. Why shouldn't they tell you that your best home purchase by far is in WIDEFIELD? Come on out and see!



THE CUMBERLAND $17,250

Here is an entirely new design in bi-level homes. From the moment you enter the CUMBERLAND through double doors from a gracious atrium, you will realize the extra "livability" built into this home. From the entrance hall a short staircase leads to the upper level, containing three bedrooms, two ceramic tile baths, living room, kitchen and dining room. The floor plan here makes best use of all the living area, and closet space is in abundance. On the lower level may be found ample space for additional bedrooms, baths and living areas. Attached garage with cement driveway of course. Plan for today and for the future in a Widefield home.



THE ELMHURST $16,700

Here is a home designed with the large or expanding family in mind, and includes over 1750 square feet of living area. The ELMHURST is a spacious trilevel design with three bedrooms and 2 ceramic tile baths on the upper level. Downstairs may be found the large living areas, with living room adjacent to kitchen and dining areas, both overlooking the patio and back yard through sliding glass doors. From the living room a short stairway leads further down to the lower garden level, semi-finished with room for additional bedrooms, baths, and/or family area. As an optional fourth level is available. Brick construction and attached garage at no extra charge. Plan for today and for the future in a Widefield home.

Widefield Homes Feature:

- brick construction
- large lots
- attached garage
- underground utilities
- copper plumbing
- paved streets
- ceramic tile baths

DENIED

NEW YORK (AP) — Former Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, 66, has denied reports that he would take a job in the administration of President-elect Richard M. Nixon.

Dewey, unsuccessful Republican candidate for president in 1944 and 1948, said the reports were "without foundation." He has been mentioned, among others, as a possible secretary of state.

SIGN CAUSES COMMENT — A bikini-clad girl is the feature of a new signpost of the 16th century pub, The Sun Inn, in Choblam outside London. The sign, delivered by a brewery concern, has started a row in Britain's normally tradition-bound pubs. The beer-drinking British are fussy about any alterations to their pubs. A brewery official has stated the sign will be removed. (AP Wirephoto by cable from London)

Bikini-Clad Girl Brings British Pub Sign Row

By GRANVILLE WATTS

LONDON (AP) — A sign showing a beautiful bikini-clad girl has started a row in Britain's tradition-bound pubs.

Some British pub signs have been unchanged for centuries. Beer-drinking Britons are fussy about any alterations to their pubs and the thought of putting pin-ups outside "Ye Olde Cock Tavern" or "Ye Old Punch Tavern" is too much for some.

The new-look row started when landlord Kenneth Jensen said he wanted something different in ordering a new sign to hang outside his 16th century pub, the Sun Inn, in the quiet village of Chobham near London. The old sign just showed a picture of the sun.

Customers were shocked when the scantily clad sunbathing girl went up outside the inn.

"We have had a lot of protests about the sign," Jensen said. "It has caused quite a lot of concern in the village. I don't think it is all appropriate—neither do 95 per cent of my customers.

"It might be suitable outside a travel agency, but not here. You can understand elderly people complaining about such a picture . . . but even the young ones think it is unsuitable."

An official of the Courage Brewery firm which supplied the sign commented: "We would not have put it up if we had thought it would cause offense. But, as people are offended, we are taking it down."

London's 6,000 pubs and the thousands of others throughout Britain invariably sport signs depicting the name of the inn. Many are named after kings and queens and such national heros as Lord Nelson.

Others have names, such as the Magpie and Stump opposite London's famed Old Bailey criminal court, which even the customers can't explain.

Two-Year-Old Has Her Blanket Back

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — Two-year-old Debbie Gray is secure again now that she has her blanket back.

The blanket, known as "Blankie" in the Gray household was lost Thanksgiving Day when the family car skidded off Interstate 94 near Concord, Wis.

Mrs. Kenneth Gray, 21, said that Debbie without her blanket was whiny and unhappy, having trouble taking naps and eating less.

Dad returned to the accident scene. "My husband walked two miles in the cold wind" before he found the blanket, Mrs. Gray said. "Ken was all muddy and cold, but he said it was worth it."

"Debby kept saying 'Thank you, Daddy, thank you, Daddy'," Mrs. Gray said. "It was almost the first time she'd taken a nap since Blankie was lost."

OPERATION COOKIES BEGINS — The Salvation Army will conduct "Operation Cookies" for the second consecutive year. The tasty morsels, homemade by various women and clubs, are wrapped by the Salvation Army and distributed to the many nursing homes in the city. Last year 600 dozen were requested and some 1,000 dozen were provided. Pictured here, preparing cookies with hopes that the project will be equally successful this year, are, from left, Mrs. Howard James, cookie chairman; Mrs. Maj. M. L. Kendoll, Salvation Army officer, and Mrs. A. A. Haggard.

Operation Cookies, Other Duties Keep Mrs. Major Kendoll Active

BY KATHLEEN BANWART
Gazette Telegraph
Staff Writer

Many women are swamped with Christmas shopping, wrapping, cards, baking and guests. Some are involved, too, with giving and doing for those outside the family circle.

Take Mrs. Maj. M. L. Kendoll of the Salvation Army. Along with her duties as a wife, mother and grandmother during the holidays, she is finding time to do her work as a Salvation Army officer.

Currently, along with the normal task of helping those in need, Mrs. Kendoll is again working with "Operation Cookies," which she originated last year, has written and is directing the Salvation Army Christmas play set for Dec. 22 and is active with the various groups in the framework of the Salvation Army.

"Operation Cookies," highly successful last year, is a way of giving homemade food to those in nursing homes. Managers of the various homes are anticipating public response, on behalf of their patients, again this year. Mrs. Kendoll relates that the phone-in deadline, stating the number of dozen to be delivered, is Monday. Delivery deadline to the Salvation Army office, 102 S. Weber St., is Friday.

Organizations and groups who would like to bake, package and deliver cookies for a specific nursing home should state this when they call and Mrs. Kendoll will arrange it. The cookies may be delivered Monday through Friday from 9:30 a. m. until noon and 1-4:30 p. m. Mrs. Kendoll will be taking calls at 633-5519.

Active and vitally interested in this project though she is, competent Mrs. Kendoll is also excited about her Christmas play, "Rejoice Evermore." One of her daughters cautioned her not to tell the Christmas story "in the same old manner," so she says she has gone a little beyond the traditional.

Enthusiastically, she explains that the play begins with various phases of the creation, travels through the annunciation and ancestry of Jesus and ends with the actual story. Beginning with the first Sunday in December, excerpts are being presented during church services to keep Christmas in everyone's mind throughout the season.

What this sincere woman hopes to portray to her audience is "the love of God for and His protection of all His creations."

Mrs. Kendoll has a tremendous capacity for giving of herself to others. Born to Salvation Army parents, she has grown up with the organization's motto, "With heart to God and hand to man." At the age of 12, she recalls making her personal decision to become an officer in the Salvation Army upon seeing a film on the Army's leper colony in Africa.

After attending business college, in 1943 Mrs. Kendoll entered the Salvation Army Training School for Officers in San Francisco. Along with the training she received, she was ordained as minister, as are all such officers. As a single officer, she had appointments at Booth Memorial Hospitals for unwed mothers in El Paso, Tex., and Oakland, Calif., and served in several field appointments as a corps officer where she was in charge of religious welfare and community service programs.

She married Maj. Kendoll, who is also an officer, in 1947. They, with their family of four, have had appointments in California, Oregon and Washington and have been here over two years.

While her family was small, Mrs. Kendoll gave all day Sunday and Wednesday, two nights weekly and at least three hours the remaining weekdays to her career. She and her husband are on 24-hour call to anyone who needs help, whether it be an emergency or the desire for a "friendly ear."

Along with her dedicated interest in the Salvation Army, Mrs. Kendoll is involved in other areas. An active member of the local Soroptomist Club, she was chosen Soroptomist of the Year while in Vancouver, Wash. She enjoys swimming bowling and knitting and has begun a new hobby of crocheting afghans. She has an idea for crocheting a "sort of heirloom" for her grandson, using old automobiles as a theme.

Although this pleasant woman claims that being a Salvation Army officer causes one to often be a jack of all trades and master of none, she seems to be extremely capable in the areas in which she is active—and one certainly can't say she is afflicted with the boredom found in many wives and mothers.

Wednesday Is Red Letter Day For Shoppers' Luncheon

Mark Wednesday on your busy holiday calendar as the day of the Shoppers' Luncheon sponsored by the Members Volunteer Association of the Fine Arts Center on tables decorated with original gumdrop miniature tree centerpieces.

Do not miss it. A tradition of the season is this luncheon complete with gourmet menu, serv-

Chairmen for the event are Mrs. David Q. Lewis and Mrs. Morris Guberman. Lunch will be served from 11 a.m. until 1:30 p.m. Wednesday at the Fine Arts Center. Mrs. William W. Gray, decorations chairman, has announced that some of the holiday trees will be available for purchase by the early shoppers.

The 11th annual Christmas Gourmet Food and Gift Sale is another feature that is eagerly awaited. In the setting of Christmas decorations the table of fine foods will include casseroles, pastries, breads, jellies, sauces among a wide assortment of homemade and holiday packaged items. Mrs. Julian W. Rawls, Mrs. Richard C. Vanderhoof and Mrs. James B. Maytag are chairmen of the food committee.

The special feature of the sale will be Christmas baskets decorated by Broadmoor Garden Club members. Mrs. Harvey E. Klunder, chairman of the workshop committee, was assisted by Mrs. Edward G. Thomas, Mrs. John Max Wolf and Mrs. Philip G. Cole. The Broadmoor Garden Club recipe packets are also being sold. A special sale of unusual nutcrackers imported for gifts are available.

Decorations are being planned by Mrs. Harrie E. Hart, Mrs. Klunder and Mrs. Hilliard Miller. Other chairmen were Mrs. Russell Tutt, volunteers; Mrs. Paul M. Borchert and Mrs. Cole, engravings; and Mrs. George Thatcher, treasurer.

Mrs. Miller, general chairman, has announced the allocation of proceeds from the sale for planting in the central patio of the Fine Arts Center, which has been redesigned and landscaped by the Broadmoor Garden Club. This is the second phase of the original design and will include hundreds of bulbs for spring color. Clematis, phlox and chrysanthemums will provide later seasonal foliage and color.

Tickets for the luncheon can be obtained at the Fine Arts Center, Mrs. John Cooper, ticket chairman, has stated.

Schaible-Marr Wedding Vows Given in California

Miss Janet Amelia Marr and Brian Ward Schaible pledged their nuptial vows in Valley United Presbyterian Church, Portola Valley, Calif. on Nov. 30.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eliot Marr, Woodside, Calif. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Theodore C. Schaible, 1921 Hercules Drive.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a white peau de soie gown overlaid with organza. It featured a scoop neckline, elbow length sleeves edged with Venise lace and an A-line skirt with a watteau train. Her shoulder length veil of silk illusion was held by a cluster of Venise lace. She carried a cascade bouquet of white roses and ivy.

Miss Martha Marr, maid of honor, wore a costume of oriental blue Alaskine. It had a fitted bodice with elbow-length sleeves and an A-line skirt. She carried a spray bouquet of russet mums.

Bridesmaid was Janine Sempier, Menlo Park, Calif. She was dressed identically to the honor attendant. Heidi Gene Clark, niece of bride, wore a oriental blue Alaskine with a short full skirt, short sleeves and high round neck edged with self ruffle. She carried a nosegay of russet mums.

Thomas Schaible, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. David Clark, brother-in-law of the bride; and William Cody, cousin of the bride were ushers.

The mother of the bride chose an apple-green silk and wool dress with a matching organza hat. The bridegroom's mother selected a rose brocade jacket dress.

The bride attended Utah State University. The bridegroom graduated in 1968 from Utah State University. He is a lieutenant in the United States Air Force.

CWC, South, Will Hear Speaker, Chamber Singers

Tuesday at 1 p.m. Christian Women's Club South will meet for luncheon at the Holiday Inn at which time Mildred Stamm, the national executive secretary for Meditation Moments, the prayer ministry of the organization, will be the featured speaker.

Mrs. Stamm has been associated with Christian Women's Clubs and Christian Business and Professional Women's Councils for many years and for the last 10 years has been writing all the devotional materials for these organizations. She is the author of Meditation Moments for Women, a book of daily devotions. Aimed at the practical day-to-day situations which all women face, it is solidly scriptural and warmly practical in its presentation.

Mrs. Stamm has spent a great portion of her life in Denver where for a number of years she taught in the Colorado School of the Bible. She has also been active in the Gideon organization, serving as international chaplain and international chairman of the Gideon Auxiliary. Currently in addition to her writing she travels about the country speaking to Christian Women's Clubs and Christian Business and Professional Women's Councils.

The Chamber Singers, a select group of 20 members of the Palmer High School choir, under the direction of Jerry Teske will present a program of seasonal music.

MISS SHARON L. ALEXANDER

Miss Alexander To Be Bride of Jack Crofts Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. John T. Alexander, 2114 McArthur Ave., announced the engagement of their daughter Sharon Lee, to Jack Crofts Jr. of Evansville, Ind., at a Thanksgiving family reunion in their home.

Miss Alexander is a 1968 graduate of Wasson High School and is presently attending Kansas Wesleyan University in Salina, Kan.

Crofts is a graduate of Great Falls High School, Great Falls, Mont. He attended the University of Evansville in Indiana and has served in the U.S. Air Force in Thailand. He is presently employed at Crescent Plastics Co. in Evansville, Ind.

The couple is planning a June wedding.

Shooting Stars Win Trophies

WICHITA, Kan. (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Shepherd together can boast of 100 trophies, medals and other awards from archery competition as a result of a hobby of only five years duration.

In addition, Mrs. Shepherd is this year's Kansas State Field Archery Champion. "When I first started," she recalls, "I shot a total score of 28 out of a possible 560."

The couple became interested in the sport when they met an Oklahoma Indian while they were camped in Arkansas. "Anyone can do it," says Shepherd, "but then to go on and become tops in your field takes one whale of a job. But this is a sport you can enjoy when you get older."

Homemakers Meet Thursday

The Christmas meeting of the Handy Homemakers Club will be held Thursday at 11:30 a.m. at the home of the hostess, Mrs. Ben Shepard, 12 E. Caramillo St. The co-hostess is Mrs. Forrest Hamilton.

The "Most Remembered Christmas" is the roll call theme. Gifts will be exchanged. Members should bring their Gold Bond Stamps.

At a workshop meeting Nov. 21 at the home of Mrs. O. Stuart, the Handy Homemakers made pine cone turkeys for the Thanksgiving dinner trays for the patients of a local nursing home.

* * * * * *

Gaeke-Kelley Nuptials Pledged at AF Academy

The Community Center Chapel at the AF Academy was the scene of the Nov. 16 ceremony in which Miss Melinda C. Kelley became the bride of Sgt. Albert Gaeek.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Kelley of 7312 Bell Drive. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Gaeke of Dayton, Ohio.

Performing the 10 a.m. rites in an atmosphere of gold and rust carnations was the Rev. John P. Gilhoolie.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in candlelight satin styled along empire lines. The A-line skirt was topped with a fitted bodice fashioned with long sleeves.

Her fingertip veil of illusion cascaded from a Juliet cap decorated with pearls and she carried rust and gold carnations.

Miss Nancy L. Kelley, as maid of honor, was frocked in long pastel yellow satin designed with a lace bodice. Her flowers were rust carnations arranged in a nosegay.

Betty Anne Gaeke, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Mary Elizabeth Kelley, sister of the bride. They wore long satin gowns of almond green and carried nosegays of gold carnations.

Samuel Fitzgerald served as best man. Ushers were Sgt. Terry Hankins, Sgt. John Cathey, Sgt. Robert Iseldyke and S.Sgt. Larry Cox.

For her daughter's wedding, the mother of the bride chose a sheath of olive green with matching coat. The bridegroom's mother selected a beige sheath with an overdress of lace.

The bride attended the University of California at Los Angeles and is employed at the AF Academy. Her husband is stationed at the Academy. The newlyweds are at home at 2426 N. Sage St.

Out-of-town guests included at the wedding were Mrs. Walter Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Stang and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Stang of Dayton, Ohio, and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Henry, Mr. and Mrs. George Henry and Mr. and Mrs. Lamar Shaw, all of Pueblo.

Lehmberg Chapel Is Scene Of Hovey-Dodson Vows

Miss Gay Lea Dodson and Richard Bradley Hovey were united in marriage in an afternoon ceremony on Nov. 30 in Lehmberg Chapel of First United Methodist Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Dodson, 1432 La Salle St. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. George H. Hovey, 1111 Logan Place.

The Rev. Philip L. Green was assisted by the Rev. Harold C. Knudsen with the double-ring ceremony. The rings had been specially designed by the bridegroom. The chapel was decorated with baskets of white gladioli and mums with double candelabra. Traditional nuptial music was played.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a suit of candlelight silk and worsted wool with matching accessories. A pillbox hat of breath-of-spring mink and a corsage of yellow roses completed her costume.

Roger J. Sams was best man. Ushers were Robert B. Donley and Robert Cormack.

The mother of the bride chose a suit of jade faille with a corsage of yellow carnations. The bridegroom's mother selected a powder blue knit suit with a corsage of yellow carnations.

At the reception, held in the parlor of the church, following the ceremony, Mrs. Brock Shiffer, Mrs. Robert Swarny, sister of the bridegroom, and Mrs. C. E. Dietrick assisted.

For their wedding trip to Yellowstone Park, the new Mrs. Hovey chose a three-piece suit of Wedgewood blue and beige with navy accessories. They will reside in Helena, Mont.

Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Robert Swarny, Carmichael, Calif.; Mrs. Walter Booth and Wally, Morton Grove, Ill.; Mrs. Clifford Edde, Kansas City, Mo.; Mrs. James O'Brien, Kansas City, Kan.; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mensing, Denver and Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Dietrick, Pueblo.

The bride graduated from Wasson High School and Colorado State University. The bridegroom graduated from Wasson High School and Colorado State University.

Holiday Season Waltz Night Set

What better way to start the holiday season than the light of candles, beautiful music, lovely gowns and the fun of Waltz Night. The December Waltz Night will be held in the ballroom of the Broadmoor Hotel at 8:45 p.m. Wednesday.

Preceding the dance, members and guests will have dinner at the hotel. Many members are bringing guests for this special occasion and everyone is looking forward to a gay time.

Members wishing to bring guests should contact Mrs. Dwight Dawson, 632-2841.

November Rites Unite Mrs. DeMora, Sgt. Rogers

The Ent Air Force Base chapel was the scene of the Nov. 9 ceremony in which Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Melvin T. Ostlin united Mrs. Irma G. DeMora and MSgt. Leonard A. Rogers in marriage.

Parents of Mrs. DeMora are Mr. and Mrs. Dimas Gonzalez Cintron of San Juan, Puerto Rico.

Fresh yellow and white mums adorned the altar for the morning rites. Mrs. Melvin Ostlin provided "Trumpet Air" by Purcell and "Oh Perfect Love" at the organ.

Given in marriage by Lt. Col. Jose A. Carrasquillo, Mrs. DeMora was frocked in a two-piece ensemble of pale green brocade in a daisy pattern. The knee-length dress was fashioned with a boat neckline, while her matching A-line coat featured long sleeves and caught in front with brilliant buttons.

Her only jewelry was brilliant earrings, a gift of the bridegroom. She carried an ivory missal adorned with white lace and a white carnation and orchid corsage.

Mrs. Juan A. Colon, as matron of honor, wore a princess style wool jersey short dress in bone white with pearls and gold beads trimming the high neckline. A gold ribbon arrangement as a headpiece and an orchid corsage completed her ensemble.

As bridesmaid, Mrs. John F. Fordham wore a gold two-piece brocade suit with a matching veil and gold ribbon in her hair and an orchid corsage. She carried an ivory missal.

MSgt. Eldee Wilson served as best man. Gordon Gjovic was groomsman.

For their wedding trip to Las Vegas, Nev.; Los Angeles and Santa Fe, N. M., the new Mrs. Rogers chose a wool knit suit in olive green trimmed at the turtle neck, sleeves and waistline with contrasting bands of yellow and orange. The newlyweds are making their home in Colorado Springs.

Mrs. Rogers received her BS in government from the George Washington University in Washington, D. C. Her husband is a master sergeant in the Army.

A Beauty Hint

Margaret Merril advises that it is quite simple for every woman to promote an English countryside complexion. Her hint to gain a peaches-and-cream loveliness is to damp a cloth with cold water from your refrigerator and press it over your face for a few minutes once or twice a day. Then, to hold the good of the complexion-beautifying cold water, smooth on tropical oil of Olay. This oil is rather scarce and expensive, but your drug store should be able to get you a supply.

LA-Z-BOY®

—nee Marlett

* * * * * *

Tweedy-Marlett Vows at Travis Air Base Chapel

Travis Air Base Chapel Two was the scene of the wedding vows of Nancy Jo Marlett and Frank Roger Tweedy at 2 p.m. Nov. 16. The Rev. Henry Quates officiated before an altar decorated with baskets of white mums gladioli and white candles.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Marlett, Fairfield, Calif. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Tweedy, 1852 Del Mar Drive, are the bridegroom's parents.

Bonnie Sexton played and Dorothy Todd sang "O Promise Me" and "I Love You Truly."

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a white Victorian-styled gown with long lace sleeves, high lace trimmed neckline, empire bodice and attached flowing train with a scalloped lace trim. Her shoulder-length veil was held by a white rose headpiece. She carried white carnations, roses and lily of the valley.

Shirley Marlett was her sister's maid of honor. Bridesmaid was Esther Tornay, sister of the bride. The attendants wore empire gowns of raspberry red brocade and carried pink long stemmed roses tied with pink ribbon. The gowns were made by the bride's mother.

Roger Schamel was best man. Ushers were Bernard J. Tornay and Roger Tweedy.

The bride's mother wore a gold two-piece knit dress, black accessories and a white rose corsage. The bridegroom's mother selected a yellow two-piece suit, black accessories and a white rose corsage.

The bride's traveling costume was a red two-piece suit, black accessories and a white rose corsage. The couple will be at home at Oceanside, Calif.

The bride, a 1967 graduate of Fairfield High School, is employed at the Credit Bureau in Fairfield. The bridegroom is a graduate of Wasson High School.

Kathryn Ruth Baker Weds Ward Larrison

Miss Kathryn Ruth Baker became the bride of Ward Michael Larrison in an afternoon ceremony Nov. 16 at Bethany Lutheran Church.

The Rev. A. G. Edstrom performed the nuptials before an altar graced with yellow and white carnations. "Trumpet Tune" by Purcell was played.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Donald S. Baker, 1515 McArthur Ave., and Mr. and Mrs. George Larrison of Elmira, N. Y.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white satin and lace gown featuring a chapel-length train edged in lace. Her long veil fell from a pearl tiara and she carried white carnations.

Enid Larson, as matron of honor, was attired in a yellow gown trimmed with daisies. A bouquet of yellow and white carnations completed her ensemble.

Bridesmaids were Miss Karen Frandsen, Costa Mesa, Calif., and Miss Barbara Baker, sister of the bride. They wore attire like that of the honor attendant.

For her daughter's wedding, the mother of the bride chose a green knit dress and white accessories.

Out-of-town guests included Mrs. Joe Chirby, Glendale, Calif.; Mr. and Mrs. Dave Stempson, Hawthorne, Calif.; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Maas, Lebec, Calif.

The bridegroom is stationed at Ft. Carson, while the bride works at Exchange National Bank. The newlyweds will be at home at 118 N. Logan.

KAT Alumnae Set Auction, Holiday Party

The Kappa Theta Alumnae Christmas party and auction will be held Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Raymond Holt, 2077 Brookwood Drive.

Each year for more than 15 years Kappa Alpha Theta Alumnae have held a Christmas auction donating all money raised from the auction to the national Theta Philantrophy, The Institue of Logopedics, in Wichita, Kansas.

Members attending Tuesday night will bring a wrapped gift to be auctioned and will await the surprise of "Who gets the Monster?" "The Monster" is an oversized piece of junk jewelry which has been concealed each year under gift wrapping and brought to the Theta Annual party for more than eight years.

Chairman of hostesses, Mrs. Ralph Marker, will be assisted by Mmes K. W. Sheldon, H. E. Townsley, and L. Robert Howard Jr.

All Theta Alumnae are invited and should call Mrs. H. Gay Joseph for reservations.

Springs Couple Marries at Village Christian Church

Pink and white was the decorative background in the Village Christian Church for the Nov. 22 wedding of Miss Michelle Olmsted and Richard Craig. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Victor H. Olmsted of 1411 Monteagle St. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Craig of 4402 N. Weber St.

The Rev. Lamar Hacker officiated at the double-ring ceremony. Music was provided by Mrs. Howard Burright at the organ and Carl Martin who sang "Ave Marie" and "The Lord's Prayer."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a floor-length white satin empire waist gown and an elbow-length veil. She carried a bouquet of pink rosebuds and white carnations.

Mrs. Gene Craig served as matron of honor. She wore a white floor-length gown with pink trim. Miss Gay Weber was flower girl.

Best man was Gene Craig, with Charles Osburn as usher and candle lighter.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Olmsted chose a brown ensemble with gold accessories. The mother of the bridegroom wore a lime A-line knit dress with silver trim.

The wedding reception was held at the Air Force Academy Officers Club. Among out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. H. Bodine, grandparents of the bridegroom.

The new Mrs. Craig chose a two-piece, skyblue handknit suit with beige accessories for her traveling ensemble. Following a weekend trip to Denver, where the newlyweds stayed at the Hilton Hotel, the couple is residing in Colorado Springs.

Both the bride and bridegroom are seniors at Wasson High School. Craig will attend college at Colorado University and continue his study in vocal music.

Hair Removal by Electrolysis Approved by Physicians

Reliable authorities agree that four out of every five women will encounter the problem of superfluous hair at some time in life. The tendency to grow unwanted hair is often inherited, and heredity usually determines the texture, color, amount, and distribution of all hair. Occasionally excess hair is caused by glandular disturbances or changes. When this occurs, it is wise to consult a physician who can treat the glandular malfunction. The hair which grows because of this disturbance, however, cannot be permanently removed by medication. It's there to stay — until removed by Electrolysis.

Physicians — especially Dermatologists — recognize Electrolysis and Thermolysis as being the only safe and effective means of removing excess hair permanently. The latter method, which is used by most Electrologists today, is preferred for several reasons. It is extremely gentle and leaves the skin soft and lovely. The papilla, the source of nourishment to the hair is completely coagulated, making regrowth impossible. There is never a trace of a mark to show that a hair ever grew or that hair was removed. It will not stimulate growth of new hair in the area treated or elsewhere on the body. Less than one-fifth of a second is required for permanent removal, which is but a small fraction of the time required by the other method. Hence, it can be seen that the cost, also, is but a fraction of what it was in years past.

The profession of Permanent Hair Removal, or Electrology, has come a long way in recent years. Whatever you may have heard about the old methods does not apply in this age of Electronic miracles. Women, and men, who are displeased with superfluous hair now can look forward to the happy solution of their hair problems.

If you would like information concerning unwanted hair, call Mr. G. E. Williams, Electrologist, to arrange for a private consultation. You will learn all about superfluous hair — where it came from, why it grows and what can be done about it.

After 16 years of treating problem hair Mr. Wiliams is, by many years, the most experienced Electrologist in Southern Colorado and is a member of The American Electrolysis Association. His office, which is devoted exclusively to Electrolysis, was opened 10 years ago and is located in the Burns Building, 23 E. Pikes Peak Ave., room 416, (across from Walgreen's). Phone 635-4540.

Appointments can be made in the evening and on Saturday for those who are employed through the week. Private consultation is without charge.

HINTS FROM Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Friends:

Those old holidays are right around the corner and I'm already getting letters from mothers ('specially grandmothers), wanting to know how in this wide world they're going to get through all that cooking and dishwashing, with kids, grandkids, etc., coming to visit.

In our family when we have "get - togethers," the women gather in the kitchen and we ALL pitch in and do the cooking.

Each makes her own favorite dish.

One aunt is great at fixing dressing, mother making dumplings and breads, sister doing vegetables, sister-in-law cooking cakes and desserts and I bake the turkey.

The teenagers shell peas and husbands make the salad.

To me this is a form of communion. We gossip (woman-talk!) and have fun. Really it is. Sometimes we gals in the family don't get together often to talk with one another. Don't you just love to?

You learn all about Aunt Sadie, where Uncle Tom is living, that cousin Elmer married again and has a new baby, etc. Wonderful time to learn all about your great-grandparents, too.

The small children set the table and pull up the chairs. So what if they get the forks on the wrong side? This makes them feel as if they really have a part. Shared? You bet!

Then after that "ball" is over—and everybody is full of goodies and can eat no more . . . the teensters do the dishes! A la restaurant style. If there's enough kids, let them do it in shifts.

No trouble at all on anyone's part.

One year we all tried bringing a big dish of something while Mom fixed the turkey and dressing. That worked fine, too.

So this year don't let Mom do ALL the work. Remember, it's HER Christmas too!

Love,
Heloise

Dear Heloise:

Recently my dog had a swollen and inflamed throat and the doctor gave me pills for her. He remarked it probably would be difficult to get them down her and said, "That's up to you."

It occurred to me that ice cream would feel pretty good to her throat. So I mashed the pills fine and mixed each dose with vanilla ice cream.

She promptly ate it and was soon recovered.

Mrs. E. C. Saemisch

Dear Heloise:

For those who have saved ribbons and bows from party and shower gifts and would like to use them for your Christmas packages, here is an idea:

Buy small packages of glitter at the dime store (red, silver, green, or gold) and a small tube of glue. Spread a little glue on the bows and sprinkle with glitter.

Mrs. G. B.

LETTER OF THOUGHT

Dear Heloise:

When you plan to tackle a big job (wash woodwork, wax floors, etc.), don't start it until you have straightened up the house, picked up the newspapers and anything else that may be strewn around. Do the dusting and whatever else is your daily chore.

Then start on that big job. You'll be surprised how well this works. Just don't try to crowd too many BIG jobs into one day.

I've been doing this for some time now and find it most rewarding.

Mrs. F. S. P.

Dear Heloise:

Here's a tip office workers and school teachers may like to use.

For easier handling of papers when your finger tips get slick and dry, wet a small sponge with a few drops of glycerine and keep it in a dish or ash tray.

Touch your fingers to the sponge and rub a little of the glycerine into your hands. It keeps your fingers from slipping on the papers and a few drops of glycerine will last and keep the sponge wet for two or three weeks.

I buy it at our local drug store.

Candlelight Rites Unite B. Wiggins, K. Ragland

Miss Betty Anne Wiggins and Kenneth L. Ragland were united in marriage in a recent candlelight ceremony at the Broad Street Christian Church, Columbus, Ohio.

The Rev. Dr. Floyd Faust performed the double-ring rites before an altar graced with sprays of blue and white carnations flanked with candelabra. Pews were marked with white bows, greenery and candles.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. S. O. Crouso, Coshocton, Ohio, and Mr. and Mrs. William H. Ragland, 2021 W. Kiowa St.

Given in marriage by her brother-in-law, James Foster, the bride chose a floor-length gown with tiered skirt and long, tapered sleeves. The fitted bodice of lace with scallops and sequins featured a scalloped neckline. Her elbow-length veil fell from a crown of rhinestones and pearls and she carried a cascade of white rosebuds and bridal lace.

Mrs. James Foster was matron of honor for her sister. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Virginia Brothers, sister of the bride; Beulah Ragland, sister of the bridegroom; Diane Shryock, Eileen Shryock and Maxine Schieder of Columbus. Susan Foster, niece of the bride, was junior bridesmaid and flowergirl was Tina Turner.

Each of the attendants wore a long blue gown and nose tip veil. They carried colonial bouquet of blue and white carnations with greenery.

Chauncey Brothers of Columbus served as best man. Ushers were Delbert, Darrell and Eldon Ragland, Elmer and John Shrock of Newark, Ohio. Michael Turner acted as ring bearer.

A raspberry suit with pink accessories was the choice of the mother of the bride for her daughters wedding. The bridegroom's mother selected a brown suit with beige accessories.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church parlor.

For their wedding trip to Niagara Falls, the new Mrs. Ragland chose a white knit suit with white orchid corsage. The newlyweds are making their home at 2924 N. Arcadia St.

The bride graduated from Conesville High School, Coshocton, and was employed by Ohio Bell Telephone. Her husband, a staff sergeant at Ent AFB attended Ohio University, Lockbourne Center, and Colorado University on the local campus.

Studies Take Her Far

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Yet Ghee Yap, or Yap Yet Ghee as she is known in her homeland of Brunei, a tiny British protectorate on Borneo, has come halfway around the world to study at the University of Maimi.

The 20-year-old daughter of a Chinese businessman, Yet Ghee, is a freshman majoring in chemistry. She speaks three dialects of Chinese, flawless English and some Malay.

She planned her school wardrobe by looking up Miami's temperature in an encyclopedia and brought along about what she would wear in her own tropical country, but she was unprepared for the way-out campus fashions. "We are more reserved in our dress," she explains.

SILENT NIGHT BORN

NEW YORK (UPI) — The introduction of the guitar into the church is not as revolutionary as might be supposed. The world-renowned Christmas carol "Silent Night, Holy Night" was introduced in 1818 to the strains of a guitar.

Father Joseph Mohr, pastor of the church in Obendorf, Austria, in 1818, found it necessary to create a carol that could be accompanied by an instrument other than the organ after mice nibbled at the bellows of his church instrument.

Father Mohr composed the lyrics while walking through snowy fields and presented his ideas to church organist Franz Gruber, who then wrote the music.

The guitar's revival in folk Masses is gaining particular favor with young people. Many Protestant congregations have used guitar accompaniment keyed to sermon texts or introduced new hymns specifically created for guitars.

Dear Abby--

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Child May Need Care

DEAR ABBY: Is it normal for a 5-year-old to tell adults, "I hate you, drop dead," and so forth?

This child is a neighbor. She curses like a mule skinner and will throw anything she gets her hands on.

Yesterday she called me an insulting name for a female dog, so I shook my finger in her face. Then she threw a flower pot at me. Another time this little demon stabbed me in the back with a rake!

She sits in the yard and shouts dirty things at strangers who pass by. Her parents say, "Ignore her. She's just spoiled." Well, I have seen some spoiled children in my day, but I've never seen one like her.

Could there be something more seriously wrong with her? What is your advice?

CONCERNED

DEAR CONCERNED: It would be a kindness to suggest to the child's parents that they take her to a doctor for some thorough testing to determine the cause of her anti-social behavior. A child who is as hostile as this one appears to be without provocation could be emotionally disturbed. And early treatment could help her.

DEAR ABBY: I recently married a man who was married before. (Our mates died.) I had many lovely household items, and so did he, so we consolidated them. I assumed that everything belonged to US.

Recently I had a dinner party and asked my husband if he minded if I used a cut glass bowl which came from his home. He informed me that I shouldn't, because if it were accidentally broken it would represent a $60 loss.

Abby, I was shocked. I would certainly be as careful with his things as my own. Now I feel as though I don't want to touch any of "his" things. I want to have a good relationship between us, but my having to ask him if I may "use" one of his possessions, and then being turned down, has causel me to wonder. What is your opinion?

HURT

DEAR HURT: There is more involved here than a $60 cut glass bowl, and if your relationship can't stand the strain of a heart-to-heart talk, it's even more fragile. Let him know how you feel and ask to have his side of it. Perhaps that bowl is reminiscent of something he didn't want to be reminded of. Give him a chance to clear it up.

DEAR ABBY: That woman who complained because of her sagging bosom is just plain stupid, but she's typical of thousands of other women.

Who does a woman think she has to please? Her husband, her mirror, or strangers on the street? I'll bet her husband has never complained about sagging bosom, nor is he looking for a more bosomy companion. When will women learn to shut their mouths and use what they have to please their husbands, instead of trying to tell them what a man wants. No sensible man expects a woman of 50 to look like she did when she was 25. And no woman in her right mind expects her husband to stay slim and have all his hair after he's reached middle-age. We all change. So what?

Many an attractive, mature woman, by flapping her gums about how she's lost her "youth," and can't compete with younger, prettier women, has driven her husband into the arms of another woman. It never occured to HIM, but if he hears it long enough, he can be convinced.

KENTUCKIAN

CONFIDENTIAL TO "CO-WORKER" IN BOSTON: Probably one of the most dangerous generalizations is, "People who are always talking about committing suicide never do." They sometimes do. Steer your friend in the direction of some professional help, and alert those close to him.

A July wedding is being planned.

Household Hints

By United Press International

Don't store old mops and rags in close corners or unventilated places. Such storage is a fire hazard.

With children in the car or on the street, motorists must expect the unexpected. Children do not appreciate danger and have the utmost faith in adult ability to control a vehicle. Especially, don't depend entirely on the rear view mirror when backing. Small children may be out of sight, below trunk level.

If you select less tender cuts of beef for grilling — blade, chuck, arm or flank — the best bet is to tenderize them first. To do this, marinate them with a mixture of oil, seasonings, and lemon juice, vinegar, or tomato juice, or use a commercial tenderizer. Meat should be refrigerated during marinating, but give it a few minutes to lose its chill before grilling.

Enameling furniture? The National Paint, Varnish and Lacquer Association suggests that you remove as much hardware as possible before painting. If you mount drawer pulls, knobs, and other decorative pieces on a cardboard backing, you can quickly and easily enamel them with spray paint. Put masking tape on any pieces that cannot be removed to keep them from getting spattered.

Liquids, including wax, will penetrate the pores of asphalt tile and lineoleum floors that are worn badly. To correct this situation apply a clear penetrating sealer with a tung oil base. Remove old wax before applying sealer.

Are windows spotted or cloudy? Summer watering may have left mineral deposits on the glass. Use an ammonia type cleaner to remove these stains. If the stains resist ordinary window cleaners, a strong solution of tri-sodium phosphate is effective.

Feet grow thin or thick as their owner expands and contracts, says Jane Speece, University of Nebraska Extension textiles, clothing and design specialist. If your shoes ever feel tight, one good reducing treatment is a footh bath in Epsom salts. And never insist on getting the same size shoes you've been wearing. Have your feet measured each time and accept the size indicated by the gadget.

Silk farmers kill the insects inside the cocoon before they come out because such emergence would spoil the cocoon.

When rolling cereals, crackers, or dry bread, keep crumbs from scattering by placing them inside a paper bag, twisting the top tightly and holding it closed with a rubber band. Then roll the bag on the outside until crumbs are as fine a you want them.

Should Fathers Be in the Delivery Room?

EDITOR'S NOTE: Judy Jacob, Detroit News Staff writer, took a look at the controversial matter of the presence of fathers in the delivery room during the birth of a child and decided that there are two sides to this interesting story. Here are both.

BY JUDY JACOB
The Detroit, Michigan News

NEW YORK (AP)—"We had a baby," the husband proudly announces.

He feels that he, too, had an important role because he was in the delivery room for the birth of his child.

"I saw the delivery," Stuart Trager will add casually when talking about his second child, Danny.

"And now he's more a proponent than I," says his wife Stina, who was the one originally interested in natural childbirth and in having her husband present for the delivery.

All the fathers we talked with who had watched the deliveries of their babies had attended local Childbirth Education Association classes and had seen the film on natural childbirth. But as Mr. Trager says, "There's quite a difference between the film and the real thing, especially when it's your wife."

Most of those who wish their husband to be in the delivery room feel that both the man and woman created the child, hence they should share his birth.

However, the practice of allowing fathers intc delivery rooms still isn't widely accepted in the medical profession. Some states still have laws prohibiting it.

Although Michigan has no such law and the Detroit Health Commission leaves that policy up to the individual hospital, few Detroit area hospitals allow it.

Even if the hospital gives permission, both the obstretician and expectant mother must grant permission too. It isn't enough that a husband can talk his wife into it. If there is any hesitance at all on the wife's part, then the answer is an emphatic 'no.' In the final analysis, it's up to the doctor anyway.

"If both husband and wife view participation as honorable and objective, then it's meaningful," he adds. "And there's good reason to believe that a father who watches his wife give birth has a stronger feeling of responsibility. He also has a better understanding of what his wife has gone through during birth and of his role as husband and father."

Mrs. Flora Hummel, a registered nurse and head of Detroit's chapter of the International Childbirth Education Association, thinks that the practice will be accepted more widely here when more doctors have seen it in operation.

Chester E. Pearson, associate administrator of South Macomb Hospital where fathers have been allowed in the delivery rooms without fanfare since it opened in March, 1964, explains his hospital's stand:

"It's our policy to work with the family and physician as much as possible. If both decide it's a good idea, we let the husband into the delivery room.

It is also understood when a man enters the delivery room that he must leave immediately if asked to do so. "We'll back the doctor right down the line," Mr. Pearson adds.

As with Hutzel and Metropolitan hospitals where the practice also is allowed, the primary requirement for a father's presence is that he has had preparation for it. North Detroit General and Detroit Osteopathic hospitals also will agree to the father's presence in specific instances.

As Dr. Thomas N. Evans, professor and chairman of gynecology and obstretrics at Wayne State University School of Medicine says: "In selected instances it's not only an acceptable but desirable practice.

"However, it's all a matter of advanced planning. I wouldn't allow a father I didn't know or one who hadn't had some preparation for it into the delivery room. A doctor must be captain of the ship, he can't acquiesce to the demands of a father at the last minute."

Proponents of the practice, mostly advocates of the Lamaze method of natural childbirth, offer these arguments in favor of the father's presence:

First, they feel it hould be allowed if both husband and wife desire it, because it's at this time that they should share the mutual pride of self-accomplishment and acquire an immediate attachment to their child.

"This togetherness is a great help to a marriage," says one Detroit obstetrician who saw the birth of the latest of his four children.

This brings up another argument in their favor: Husbands are needed in the delivery rooms to help their wives remember the techniqus taught in natural childbirth classes. In these instances, the mothers receive no anesthetics.

Proponents feel the presence of the husbands saves the doctors' and nurses' time. Fewer visits and examinations are required during labor since both husband and wife know what to expect.

Rosalie Cracchiola, head nurse of the labor and delivery rooms at South Macomb Hospital where about 170 babies are born each month, says that often a wife feels more secure with her husband's physical and emotional support. "They calm at the sound of his voice.

"Certainly it's no place for morbid curiosity or for the father who's in the least unstable," she says. "I wouldn't advocate it in every case, but it's a nice idea if the situation merits."

BY JUDY JACOB
The Detroit, Michigan News

NEW YORK (AP)—How far can you carry togetherness?

Too far, say most Detroit obstretricians—if it means letting fathers invade the delivery room.

There are no federal or state laws regulating fathers in delivery rooms. The Detroit Health Department leaves this policy up to the individual hospital. All but five ban fathers from their delivery rooms.

And those who do allow visitors require consent from the attending physician, as well as from the mother. Even then the father must have had some orientation prior to the birth.

More on principle than for specific reasons, most Detroit doctors prefer to deliver a baby without the father's presence.

Dr. Lee Stevenson, of the Ford Hospital staff and chairman of the maternal welfare committee of Wayne County Medical Society, is one of these.

He thinks a state law regulating visitors in the delivery room is needed.

"Generally, a doctor needs the freedom to do what must be done without worrying about a visitor, even a father," he says. "You can never predict what an individual will do."

"Will you hold his hand?" asks Dr. Ethelene J. Crockett, who recently retired from private practice to become director of the maternal and infant care clinic at Crittenton Hospital.

"A hospital delivery isn't the same as a home delivery where everything but that experience is familiar. All the procedures, people and instruments are new to the father, and it's too much to be absorbed at once, especially under the strain."

"If there ever was a place where you can have unexpected emergencies, it's the delivery room," she continues. "And they crop up fast. We don't need any unskilled hands in the delivery room."

Avoiding contamination is another reason. "Society demands that delivery rooms be as aseptic as operating rooms," Dr. Crockett says. "This is one of the reasons we've been able to cut down on maternity deaths.

Fewer doctors would object to a father's presence if delivery rooms were equipped with glassed-off partitions from which visitors might watch, she adds.

Even though most fathers have some orientation, such as the films and lectures in natural childbirth classes, some aren't prepared for the actual experience, according to doctors.

As one obstetrician says, "A delivery is a surgical procedure. A man wouldn't watch his wife's appendectomy, so why should he want to see a birth?"

"A majority of our obstretricians don't allow fathers to go into the delivery room for the same reasons they don't watch a relative's operation," Dr. Crockett says. "It's hard on the attending physician because too many things can go wrong in a hurry.

Critics of the policy also note the likelihood of an increase in malpractice suits. "There have been problems that resulted from the presence of any visitors," Dr. Stevenson said, "and a father would be overly critical."

Dr. Thomas N. Evans, professor and chairman of the department of gynecology and obstretrics at Wayne State University School of Medicine, is in favor of allowing fathers to attend their children's births in selected instances, but adds, "Not if he is emotionally unstable or if morbid curiosity draws him into the delivery room. It's nothing to make a circus of."

He also adds probably the opponents' strongest point: "Requests of this sort aren't frequent and, when made, get lots of publicity.

"Furthermore, many women prefer that their husbands not be present because the event is too traumatic and embarrassing."

A hospital administrator put it this way: "I've been told that the last person on earth you want to see is your husband."

As one new mother says, "I've never been uglier."

86 Women And 2 Men!

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP)—With the enrollment of two men, the Arthur B. Ancker Memorial school of Nursing has gone coeducational for the first time in its 77-year history.

Officials of the school, at St. Paul-Ramsey Hospital, hope that the entrance as freshman student nurses of Myron Moen and Richard Boyd will start a trend. "We would like to have more young men enroll," said Mrs. Ruth C. Smith, associate director of nursing education.

So far, the only problem of the two males in a class with 86 women, plus an all-feminine corps of upper classmen, has been uniforms. They are wearing their own clothes until the arrival of new outfits—white pants and blue-and-white-striped overblouses. And they hope they'll get only pins and not caps at the capping exercises at the end of the year.

By HELEN HENNESSY
NEA Women's Editor

NEW YORK—(NEA)—If the candles on your mantel and the angel that tops the tree are your prettiest Christmas decorations, you'll miss a lot of holiday fun.

The most decorative item in your home during this festive season should be YOU.

There's not a woman worthy of the name who doesn't delight in being the belle of the ball. But unless you're a Sophia Loren, you can't make the grade with a slap-dash approach. It takes imagination and planning to decorate yourself a little differently.

But when your husband does a double-take, the kids gape in admiration and at your own party the male guests serve YOU, you will know it was worth the effort.

If you don't ordinarily use a high-gloss lipstick, try one for a different look for the holidays. Try a new length of lashes, a special Christmas hairdo—or all three.

Softness is the key to the season's hairstyles. Hair may be upswept or left to fall—but always softly.

"Even with the increasing use of elegance in hairstyling, we are retaining a good deal of the natural look," claims one stylist at a well-known New York salon. "Severity has never been further from the fashion fore."

Updos are woven loosely into loops or curls. Every woman should learn the magic of letting a few wisps or tendrils escape at the sides.

Have a Christmas ball with little colored ornaments meant for the tree—but such perfect decorations for you. Tiny ornaments may accent a curl, form a headband or dangle from clips as homemade earrings.

Long hair is romantic right for the party season. Middle-girl banana curls, updated, are a favorite among fashion models.

Hairpieces should complement, not cover, your own crowning glory. Some models like to attach a tendril tot he side. Others use the fakery to add thickness to their natural style and there are still others who take fake curls only at the nape.

The secret of holiday hair is really the secret of any season—freshly shampooed tresses, the right selection of setting aids, a firm, neat set and a little imagination.

Old and New Blend In For Real Indian Christmas

TAOS, N.M. (UPI) — Taos Indians in their finest ceremonial dress will celebrate Christmas this year, as they have for centuries, with traditional Indian dances.

In this ancient pueblo village, and in other likes it throughout the state, Indians will commemorate the birth of Christ through a unique blending of their Indian and Christian heritage.

The Christmas festivities at Taos will begin on Christmas Eve with midnight mass in the old adobe mission which, followed by a procession around the pueblo. The statue of the Blessed Virgin leads the processiosn, and the route is marked by luminarias — small bonfires of pinon wood.

On Christmas day, the traditional Catholic rites are set aside for the equally ancient Indian dances.

Commemorative Indian dances originated long before Spanish priests brought the Roman Catholic religion to the isolated pueblos of New Mexico in the 1600's. But with their conversion to Catholicism, the Indians blended the new and old, and the outgrowth was the Christmas dance.

The practice of Christmas dances originated when Spanish explorers and priests asked the Indians to perform whatever dances they thought would be appropriate for the religious holiday.

Customarily, either the Deer dance or the Matachines dance is performed on Christmas day. But the selection of the dance and dancers is not nanounced until five days before Christmas.

According to the Indians, the Deer dance was chosen hundreds of years ago because the Indians thought the deer was one of the animals that might have been present when Christ was born.

The Matachines is a dance honoring the mother of Christ. According to an Indian spokesman, the dance was developed by the Indians from their interpretation of Spanish Catholic teachings about the Virgin Mother.

Dances at other pueblos originated in much the same way and continue today. The dances have become so popular that hundreds of visitors flock to the many pueblos that celebrate Christmas with the annual dances.

At Santo Domingo between Albuquerque and Santa Fe, the dancers don colorful costumes, adorned by fox tails, evergreen branches, bells, shells, ribbons and ther animal skins to carry on a tradition that began in 1605.

To the Indians, their special way of celebrating Christmas is as traditional as Christmas tree and popular carols are to the rest of the country.

SHAKY SLAM COMES HOME

West's two-club call was not as whimsical as it appears. He was trying to get out of the trouble his takeout double got him into and while he was on the way to two hearts, he tried the club bid as an extra chance. Maybe he wouldn't even have to show his heart suit.

That is just what happened. South didn't want to stand for North's double and was encouraged to overbid in view of his void in clubs. It took South just two bids to get to the spade slam.

West opened his king of hearts. South looked over dummy and saw that he was in a doubtful contract. He would have been far happier had he held just one club but he couldn't do anything about that.

South tried to find a way to count 12 tricks. One way would be to play ace and one diamond to set up dummy's queen. Then he would be able to ruff one heart and throw the others on the queen of diamonds and good clubs. After that he would have to take a spade finesse and pray. South saw there was a far better play — to ruff three hearts in dummy and discard a diamond and a heart on the ace and king of clubs. After that he would lay down his ace of spades and pray.

He ruffed a heart at trick two, cashed dummy's ace and king of clubs to discard a diamond and a heart; led a diamond to his ace; ruffed another heart and was pleased hen East did not overruff. He ruffed a club, ruffed his last heart, ruffed back to his hand with a fourth club and played his ace of spades.

West's king dropped and South conceded a trick to the nine of trumps and claimed the rest.

The idea for the world's first Christmas plate was born in 1895 at Bing and Grondahl's old Copenhagen porcelain factory. In the course of the years the Christmas plate with its beautiful Danish motifs has become a tradition that brings happiness and Christmas cheer into the home.

The plates also have ever increasing value, being much sought after by collectors.

B'nai Sisterhood Plans Holiday

The Sisterhood of the B'nai Israel Congregation will meet at 1 p.m. Thursday in the synagogue with Mrs. A. Marylander as hostess. The opening prayer will be read by Mrs. S. Olesky.

Mrs. H. White will preside at the business meeting. The program will feature Mrs. M. Obodov, who will review the book "The Joys of Yiddish" by Leo Rosten.

The Sisterhood Gift Shop has been stocked with gifts for the entire family. Many new Minorahs (eight-branched candelabra) have been received for Chanuka which begins on the evening of Dec. 15 with the lighting of the first candle.

The holiday lasts eight days. It commemorates the rededication of the Ancient Temple in Jerusalem by Judah Maccabee and his followers who defeated Antiochus in the successful struggle for religious liberty. The lighting of the candles is a reminder of the miracle of the tiny jug of oil that burned for eight days and eight nights.

Faculty Women's Club Replace Club Meeting

The Faculty Women's Club of the University of Colorado on the local campus, replaced the regular December meeting with a dinner-dance.

Some 100 attended the event, held recently at the Dublin House. A regular business meeting will be held in January.

Christmas Toys Should Be for Enjoyment of Child

Buying a toy for children this Christmas? Think you know what you're doing? Think you know what the children will enjoy?

Unfortunately, parents are often dead wrong, says Marvin Glass who has become a millionaire by psychoanalyzing America's kids. Glass isn't an MD but he's parlayed a psychology degree into a reputation as Mr. Toy by designing the world's best selling playthings. Four of his creations currently rank among the top ten in sales and Glass-designed toys this year will total $100 million.

Working in his closely guarded Chicago workshop, he has consistently designed spectacular toys for more than 20 years. During this period 19 Glass creations have passed the million unit mark — a record that leads manufacturers to consider him the modern Pied Piper.

Glass, who refuses to design guns or other violence toys, states that U.S. adult toy buyers yearly spend an average of $31.15 per child — most of it for Christmas. Here are Mr. Toy's suggested do's and don'ts for buying playthings:

Do find a toy that is fun, and this is the primary consideration. Parents tend to choose toys which edify, challenge, or teach a lesson. If a plaything can do any or all of these things, very good; but if it isn't fun, forget it.

Do insist upon toys that have continuous play value, develop motor skills, and help the youngster express his or her feelings. Remember the unparalleled toy is another child, a playmate who can play back. Toys are nothing more than substitute playmates.

Do consider scaled down versions of adult life because youngsters want to emulate and imitate adults and their activities. However, such toys must afford more than one or two play reactions. A toy which does the same thing, or requires the child to do the same thing, will soon be discarded.

Do look for the appeal of color, sound, and motion which fascinate youngsters. Children like bright color, special sounds, toys that can do things and that children can do things with, and also, a toy should be gay.

Do try to know and understand your child's needs, whims and dreams as this enables you to make the best toy selections.

Don't buy toys which are extensions of your own taste as children and beware of selections which relate to what you wanted but didn't have as a child. The impact of our meteoric scientific advance, brought to the child through television, has created a toy generation gap.

Don't be one of the so-called "hip" parents who have a tendency to buy "way-out" toys as this is usually a pitfall. Small children are ultra conservative and too insecure to be innovators.

Glass believes that adults can be aided in toy selection if they will understand their own desire for an expensive late model automobile. The car is, in effect, an adult toy, a wish fulfillment, an escape from reality.

Mr. Machine, the largest selling mechanical toy ever manufactured, was inspired by a visit to a large corporation's computer room. Glass was intrigued by the sacrosanct temple atmosphere and the awestruck reverence of the corporation's executives when viewing their complex machine. This visit inspired the robot-like machine toy which resulted in a record-breaking $12 million gross sale.

The 54-year-old designer contends that his toy philosophy and designs are based on reactions to the everyday life around him.

STEEL-CORD

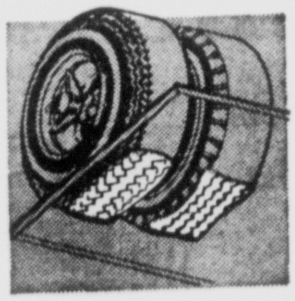
ALLSTATE Radial Tires
Perform Like 6 Tires in One

Sears

Double Bands of STEEL CORDS for Strength. Double Radial Plys of Rayon Cord for easy ride.

Safest Tire We've Tested

- Safer at High Speeds
- Resistant to Skids
- Contour Safety Shoulders
- Road Hazard Protection
- Traction in Snow
- Added Gas Economy



Longer, Wider Tire Footprint

Steel belts reinforce the tread ... so more tread comes onto the road, so it comes on flat ... sidewalls flex and absorb strain ... so tread stays flat. You get better traction.

Sears Radial Tires established a new standard of excellence. More crown strength, more traction, more protection from road hazards . . . truly more for your tire dollar than any tire we've ever sold. Regardless of make of car, it will handle differently with radial tires . . . and you'll find the difference to your liking.

ALLSTATE 40,000 Mile Radial Tire Guarantee
Sears guarantees the ALLSTATE Radial Tire, so long as it is used with ALLSTATE Radial Tubes on passenger cars or station wagons, as follows:

Tread Life Guarantee

For How Long: For the life of the original tread.

What Sears Will Do: In exchange for the tire, replace it, charging only the proportion of current regular selling price, plus Federal Excise Tax, that represents tread used.

Tread Wear-Out and Road Hazard Guarantee

For How Long: 40,000 miles.

What Sears Will Do: Repair nail punctures at no charge. In case of failure or tread wear-out, at Sears option, in exchange for the tire, replace it, or give you a refund charging in either case only the proportion of current regular selling price plus Federal Excise Tax, that represents mileage used.

MONTGOMERY WARD

2nd TIRE 1/2 PRICE

THE GLASBELT

LOW AS $10*

When you buy first 6.50-13 tubeless blackwall at reg. price plus 1.81 F.E.T. each

2 fiber glass belts stabilize the tread with a tensile strength greater than steel. The tread won't squirm like it does on ordinary tires. So it wears longer – up to 40% longer than same tire without these belts. 2 plies of nylon cord for stability, resistance to flex-fatigue and impact. 30-month tread wear guarantee.
